Many from Gully attended the funeral services for Ervin A. Weberg on Friday January 23rd, at Sand Valley Lutheran Church in Trail. The church was packed with friends and relatives who came to bid Ervin "farewell", many also came to do their part in making it a memorable day. Rev. Bob Kelly came to officiate, Cindy Bjerklie was the organist, Carol Tharaldson was the soloist and sang "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Nearer My God To Thee". Ervin's sister, Bernice Lorentsen's friends, Pastors Harvey and Donna Holberg sang, "Sheltered in the Arms of God" and "There's Room at the Cross for You". Rev. Bob Dahlen from Goodridge came and played the trumpet to accompany the songs. Ervin's grandchildren and friends were honorary pallbearers. Pallbearers were Almore Halvorson, Emery Olson, Lorenzo Eck, Kurt Halvorson, Robert Olson and Ole Waine. The Sand Valley Ladies Aid members served a nice lunch. Members of the Gonvick American Legion Post No. 304 and Trail V.F.W. Post No. 6428 did the Military Honors. Ervin passed away Sunday evening January 18, 1998 at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Fargo.

We attended funeral services for Orville Kjelgren of Star Township on Saturday January 24th, at the Ekelund Lutheran Church north of Gully. Orville was only 67 years old and lived on the Kjelgren farm. He took care of his mother, Margaret Gmild Kjelgren until she passed away in 1991. Orville was a Veteran having served with the Army stationed in Iceland. For the last ten years Orville worked for Duane Erickson on the Erickson Farms, but still lived on the Kjelgren Farms. Orville had many friends in this area, when he had some time off he often would drive in to Gully or Trail for a cup of coffee and visit with friends. We saw him gradually grow weaker and last October, he was admitted to the Veterans Hospital where he remained until eleven days before his death, which he spent at McIntosh Manor. Rev. Bob Dahlen officiated at the service assisted by Intern Pastor Teri Stage. Grace Hammer was organist and soloist who sang, "On Eagles Wings" and "Because He Lives". The Ladies of Ekelund served a noon meal. The Military Honors were provided by members of the VFW Post 2793 and American Legion of Thief River Falls.

It was strange two Veterans being friends and not living far apart, both worked on construction and farming, both Lutherans, both fairly young 72 and 67 years and passed away only a few hours apart. Orville's funeral the 24th of January and Ervin's the day before on January 23. As Veterans we owe them much and we are grateful for what they did for us and for our Country.

Sherry Rollman visited and was a luncheon guest at the Kenneth and Alice Forsberg home on Saturday. On Thursday Margeth Modin visited at Forsberg's and enjoyed lunch with them.

So many friends and relatives in this area have been touched and affected by sorrow lately. Irvin Brenna only 75 years old passed away on January 10th at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls. Irvin was the son of Milton and Inga Brenna and was born in Eden Twsp. near Gully. Irvin was a Veteran and was in the U.S. Navy based in Great Lakes, IL. Irvin was married to Joan Hennessey and they have lived in Thief River Falls since 1956. Irvin worked for the Minnesota Department of Transportation for 20 years. He is survived by wife, Joan, daughter, Barbara Brenna of New Brighton, brother, Martin of Proctor, sisters, Inez Gordon and husband Andrew of Klamath Falls, OR., Gladys Megordon and husband, Philip of Palm Harbor, FL and Vivian Rikje and husband Halvor of Gully. He was preceded in death by parents, three brothers, Atwood, Kenneth and Clifford and sister, Ruby. Mass of Christian Burial was on Friday at St. Bernard's Catholic Church in Thief River Falls, with Military Rites by the American Legion and V.F.W. of Thief River Falls. Interment was at the Salem Lutheran Cemetery south of Gully.

Lund Ladies Aid will meet Wednesday February 11th, at the Lund Lutheran Church in Gully. Business meeting at 2:00 p.m. with installation of the new officers elected which are Alice Forsberg - President, June Berg and Vivian Rikje will share the Treasurer office, Luverne Fore - Secretary and Cheryl Nybo - Vice President. With a potluck lunch served by the members. Everyone welcome.

Inez Brenna of Klamath Falls, OR has been spending a few days with Halvor and Vivian Rikje. She came for the funeral of their brother Irvin Brenna.

A group met at the Gully Cafe for dinner on Sunday for a chance to visit after attending the funeral for Irvin Brenna in Thief River Falls, on Friday. Those there were Chester and Norma Lee, Harry and Agnes Weinemo of Fosston, Lloyd and Vina Anderson of Proctor, Inez Gordon of Klamath Falls, OR and Halvor and Vivian Rikje.

"If You Haven't Got The Horses...."

Jeff Olsen, wrestling coach at Roseau high school and a columnist for the Roseau Times-Region, struck a chord with area coaches and many of the public in his January 16 column which suggested in its title, "Save some rope for the chumps who want to hang the coach."

Olsen began by saying he can understand if Denny Green is fired as Vikings coach. "Pro football is a big business, and they have the coins to toss around if they want to hire another prima donna for a million plus to run their operation," he wrote. "The problem is, we've got this same mentality permeating local high school sports. Look around the state, in just about every small town, and the local yokels are clamoring for some coach's hide. It all depends on which sport a town is most dependent upon to bring fame and glory back to the community."

He discusses one community where wrestling is a favored sport, another where hockey is revered. Then he continues as follows:

"A week ago, Warren Keller, a fine gentleman who coaches in Warroad and is the school's athletic director, wrote in his column in The Warroad Commonwealth that parents and fans should back off and let the coaches coach.

"'One of the biggest changes I have noticed in high school sports in the past 10 years,' wrote Keller, 'has been the over-critical attitude by the public toward coaches. Overbearing fans and parents have helped take the fun out of high school sports. These individuals are into over-analyzing the coaches who work at the grass roots level.'

"He ain't just a whistling Dixie. What I can't understand is how a bunch of fat, over-the-hill, middle-aged geezers suddenly feel called upon to decide that they know more than the coaches. Or know more than the high school administrators, who are painfully aware that finding suitable coaching applicants is a very tough process.

"Besides, who the hell wants to coach in some town with a reputation for running out decent people who get paid peanuts to sweat blood for the good of these parents' kids? I'd be willing to bet that more than half of them probably were flunkies who rode the bench in high school but now want to fire a coach because he didn't win the big one.

"Keller, who tolerates losing like Gen. Patton once tolerated tactical retreats, had this final comment to say to the coach bashers: 'Back off and let coaches coach!'"

Olsen says there are still parents who won't talk to him years after their sons failed to qualify for the state wrestling tourney. He said they would probably make it if they were in school now, because the Minnesota State High School League "...has, in its infinite wisdom, seen fit to make enough classes so that just about everybody's kid can get to the state tourney."

Olsen expresses the opinion that the most successful high school sports programs are those with the most continuity. The longer the coaching staff remains intact, the more likely it is that the program will be successful. He quotes Doug Dahl, long-time wrestling coach at Greenbush high school, now retired and a member of the Minnesota High School Wrestling Hall of Fame: "If you haven't got the horses," Dahl said, "you aren't going to win."

Olsen wrote that the best quote he ever heard on what it takes for a coach to win was, "Have you ever seen a jockey carry a horse across the finish line?"

If there is second-guessing going on regarding coaching staffs in communities where winning percentages have been traditionally high, we would imagine our own community is not immune to the same disease. Our winter sports teams are not having a banner season in the win columns this year, but it's not for lack of effort by either coaches or players. Certainly they feel the frustration of losing more keenly than the fans.

Nor is it only here where victories on the court or the ice are elusive. The University of Minnesota has the same circumstance in its hockey and basketball programs, both of which have successful histories. Such is the nature of athletics....and of life. We do not always— perhaps mercifully, in some cases—get what we deserve.

And while winning the game must always be the goal, we should not forget that amateur athletics are more than simply winning the game. We've heard it all before—how it's all about learning the team concept, camaraderie, developing thinking skills, self discipline, working hard—and it's all still true. Few who have participated in high school competition on the field, the court, the ice, the stage or the podium later regret that participation, regardless of their won-lost record. And that participation would have been impossible without coaches.

Olsen concludes his column as follows:

"You can badmouth coaches all you want. Fire them, too. But guess what? It'll catch up to you. And, until I see these same bickering chumps put in the long hours that dedicated coaches of all levels put in with the kids that we all care about, I say, 'Shut your trap.' It sure would be refreshing."

LETTERS

To The Editor:

On January 29 I worked until 3 p.m., came home and let my dog "Blue" out of his kennel to play while I went in the house to take a short nap. After napping I went out to play with "man's best friend." To my amazement, my dog was lying dead in the ditch.

I always though it was a common courtesy to stop and find the owner to tell him, especially when the house is only 50 feet away. If you would have stopped, maybe "Blue" could have been saved.

Sincerely,
Scott Novak

The weather in Northwest Minnesota has been warmer than it usually is in the month of January, so much that some of the old timers blame the warmth, for the flu that so many are trying to overcome. In some schools barely half the students are present due to the flu. Some folks are wishing for real cold weather to freeze the flu-bug and if that would do the trick we could have it below zero and feel good about it. As is most of us just forget to button-up.

Rainbow Pastry Shop Opening Last Saturday

"The Rainbow Pastry Shop operated by Jungs Brothers on Labree avenue attracted throngs of visitors for its formal opening last Saturday. The attractive quarters were adorned with a large number of bouquets, contributed by local firms. Approximately 700 postcard notices, sent out to advertize the opening, were turned in and for each of these the proprietors of the shop donated 10 cents to the local Girl Scout organization. The postcards will continue to be redeemed for the remainder of the week, it was announced."

St. Hilaire Youth Gives To Polio Fund In Tokyo

"That the March of Dimes reaches distant points with its campaign to raise funds to combat polio is revealed in a photograph taken this month in Tokyo, Japan, and published recently in newspapers in St. Paul and other cities. The picture shows Pfc. Orval Kolden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thorval Kolden of St. Hilaire, in the act of making a contribution to the March of Dimes in Tokyo, where he is stationed on occupation duty with the First Cavalry division."

Five Freight Cars Leave Track At Steiner

"Believed to have been the result of a mechanical defect, five cars, most of them loaded with pulpwood, were derailed a half-mile north of Steiner late Saturday morning. They were part of a southbound Great Northern freight. A wrecker was summoned from Crookston and had cleared the track by Sunday noon permitting the northbound passenger train to go through after having been held in Thief River Falls since Saturday noon."

Elks Fathers and Sons Dinner February 4

"The annual Elks Fathers and Sons banquet will be staged in the municipal auditorium next Wednesday evening, February 4, starting shortly after 6 o'clock, F. S. Gibson, exalted ruler of the lodge, announced today. The after-dinner program will include community singing, greetings in behalf of the fathers by Dr. M. D. Starkow, response by Dale Larson, a brief talk in behalf of the former heads of the lodge by Andrew Anderson, accordian numbers by Bob Sjulestad and piano selections by Harold F. Harrison."

From The Editorial Page

"Hockey fans will have an opportunity to see a preview of future local stars when the best of the Thief River Falls midgets meet the best of the Winnipeg midgets at the arena Friday night. If enough nickels and dimes are laid on the barrel head the youngsters will be able to play a return game in Winnipeg. Maybe you should organize a party for Friday night's game."

Subzero Temperatures Here Abate Wednesday

"After another week of subzero temperatures, the mercury rose Wednesday afternoon to a high of 18 above zero, while early this morning a low of -3 was recorded. Radio station KTRF reported a low for the past week of -36 last Friday morning and -34 on Tuesday morning. No snowfall of any consequence occurred during the week."

News Items

"Wheat 82 cents today.

"H. Tway is acting as night watch at the mill.

"Will Olson returned from the lumber woods Monday. The hours for doing blacksmith work did not agree with Willie.

"A gang of men are at work this week widening out the mill to make room for a 'Saw Mill Hog.' This is a machine that is used for preparing the logs for the gang saw.

"Prof. Hicks predicts a late spring, but perhaps he meant this for the Klondike country. However, now is the proper time to get your seed grain cleaned in case of an early spring.

"Will Smith, the boilermaker of Minneapolis, is here putting a patch on the planing mill boiler. He is assisted by a right hand man from the same place. This is the third time Mr. Smith has been here doing work for the company.

"Let's see. During the past year we have had a daily train, weekly tain, semiweekly, tri-weekly, ten days and also a semi-monthly. If you go down to Wylie or Crookston, it's no telling when you can catch a train back unless you figure on walking and that's been good up to date.

"The Scandinavian Ladies Quartette appeared at Brink's hall Wednesday evening to a well-filled house. The programme rendered was very interesting and judging from the number of times the singers were encored their talents were appreciated by the audience. Such an entertainment was a rare treat to people living in this vicinity.

"When the St. Hilaire Lumber company were shipping out from ten to thirty car loads of lumber every day, Jim Hill was perfectly willing to run a daily freight up this line, but since the planing mill shut down for repairs only for a short time, he pulls off the daily train and gives us three doses a week, thus depriving us of our daily mail service. Citizens! How long are we going to stand this situation of being dictated to by one man?

"The masquerade ball given under the auspices of the fire department at Thief River Falls last Friday evening was a success in every sense of the word. About 150 were masked and all seemed to enjoy themselves immensely until 11:30 when the time for unmasking was announced. After that everybody danced and enjoyed themselves more than ever. Bleck's orchestra furnished the music and Prof. Barnes did the prompting to the satisfaction of all concerned. The floor managers are to be complimented on the way they handled the large crowd and it only goes to show that what the firemen undertake to do, they do well. The following St. Hilairites were present and all speak in glowing terms of the way they were used by the people of the upper falls [Thief River Falls]. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Martineau, Mr. and Mrs. F. Wittemier, Messrs. Woods, Tedford, Trodler, Soll, O. A. Wiste and Martin Hoff."

Rocksbury Notes

"That basket party held at Valhall last Saturday night for the benefit of Mr. Bocke was a success. Everybody enjoyed themselves very much and the proceeds of said party netted the respectable sum of $22.00.

"At a special meeting held by the members of the Valhall society last Saturday evening at the residence of Peder Engelstad, the following persons were unanimously expelled as members of the Valhall society, to wit: Gunerius Olson, Halfdon Olson, John Anderson, Lars Erickson and A. Husby, the first two for conduct unbecoming members of said society and the three last named for lack of interest and neglect in paying their dues."

Polk Centre

"The Young Peoples society met at the Naplin home last week.

"Stone is being hauled which will be used for a foundation for the school building in District 99.

"The question among our boys at present is: 'Why are girls so scarce just in this locality? The ratio is 16 to 1."

Sixth graders from Franklin Middle School in Thief River Falls participate in a break-out group. The students were participating in Courage Retreat at Redeemer Lutheran Church. The workshop was presented by Youth Frontiers Inc., a non-profit agency whose mission is to provide schools with programs designed to nurture young people in the development of their character, values and relationships. The event was held last Friday.

$210,000 pledged for elements of MECC

Over $200,000 has been pledged in donations to complete elements of the Multi-Events Cultural Center in Thief River Falls. Tuesday, February 3, the joint powers board for the project learned of the donations and appointed the City of Thief River Falls as fiscal agent for donations.

The entire project consists of several phases. The first phase, which received $3 million in state funding and requires $1 million in matching funds, includes football field, track, baseball/softball fields, and soccer fields. In the first bidding attempt, bids came in above what was available for actual construction. Project architects cited Grand Forks flooding construction as one of the reasons that bids came in high. In order to secure bids within the financial limitations of the project, about $1 million had to be eliminated from the project prior to the second bid letting last fall. This time, bids came lower than anticipated, and some of the alternates left out after the first bid letting, were included. Currently, the joint powers board still has $92,650 available for construction. Another $75,000, which exists to cover contingencies, is unlikely to be touched by the board until bided construction nears completion.

At its last meeting, the joint powers board decided to pursue a private fund-raising effort to raise additional funds to cover those elements of the project which had to be left out.

Tuesday, February 3, the board learned that they had pledges for $105,000, which will be matched by another donor. Those donations include donations from Pepsi - Cola Bottling of Thief River Falls for a score board. The joint powers board also learned that there are two to four other parties that might make contributions to the project.

Items that had to be left out of the project after the first bid letting, and that they are seeking private donations for include: bleachers, a press box, sidewalks and landscaping, and a concession-restroom-storage facility for the track and football field; and lighting, and a concession-restroom-storage facility for the softball/baseball field, soccer fields, two additional softball fields, four tennis courts, and part of a parking lot.

In anticipation of obtaining private donations for the project, the board approved a motion to name the City of Thief River Falls as its fiscal agent.

Rick Nelson, a project coordinator, explained that he is continuing efforts to obtain $950,000 from the legislature through the Amateur Sports Commission. The funds would be used to enhance the complex and provide additional opportunities for youth in the community. He explained that originally, the project was third on the list given to the Governor, but ended up fourth on the Governor's recommendation. The top three are expected to be funded this year, but Nelson is continuing to pursue efforts to obtain funding for the project. Nelson explained that the funds would not require matching funds from the community and could be used for anything at the Multi-Events Cultural Project.

The board also heard from the members of the public at the meeting. One individual criticized the board for being too optimistic, stating that it didn't have $160,000 left on the board, but was still about $1 million short of a complete project. Another individual suggested that the public be included in the project by allowing them to donate their

Deadline draws near for FMS principal job

Friday is the final day for job applicants seeking the position of Franklin Middle School Principal.

School District Superintendent Jerry Robicheau reported Monday night to the school board that they had received 10 requests for information and three complete applications for the position. Early in the search process, Robicheau had expressed concerns that not many people would apply for the position because of the tight job market. Monday, he reiterated those concerns. He also explained that the district had advertised regionally and nationally.

Student achievement

Robicheau also reported on discussions with students and staff about student achievement. Prevailing themes in the discussions involved attendance and grade inflation. Robicheau said staff seem to favor a tougher attendance policy. Teachers cannot teach if a student is not in school, he said. Another issue being discussed is grade inflation. Surprisingly, he said, the students were interested in weighted grades. He described the discussion with students as "very interesting." Robicheau said he will now complete an analysis.

Public presentations

New guidelines for public presentations to the school board were approved Monday night. The guidelines extend an invitation to presenters and explained how the presentations will be conducted. Presentations can be placed on the agenda right up until the start of the meeting. They will be limited to five minutes and by number, depending on the time available. The presentation policy does not include personnel issues. Personnel issues cannot be dealt with in this forum due to data privacy regulations.

Bus rental

The board approved the request of the Evangelical Free Church to rent a school bus from June 26 to July 5 for a youth trip to Ft. Collins, CO. The school board rarely allows bus rentals and when it does it's usually to church groups. During discussion of the request, board members requested that a policy be established for bus rentals and that any group wishing to rent a bus, be required to sign a hold harmless agreement.

The school board recognized the following achievements and contributions in the district: Challenger Principal Glenn Espe received a 1998 regional Distinguished Service Award from the Minnesota Elementary School Principals' Association; the Lincoln High School Mock Trial Team represented the defense and outscored Detroit Lakes 155 to 144 in season prosecution against Moorhead in Ada on February 12;

Officials to study TRF emergency underpass

CP Rail engineers will assist the city in improving the emergency underpass, according to Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser. In his report to the Public Safety committee Tuesday, February 3, Chief Froschheiser outlined the discussion held with CP officials earlier in the day.

The meeting with CP officials was held to address the problem with the emergency underpass and delays on city streets caused by trains. Chief Froschheiser said Mike Radloff, trainmaster in Thief River Falls for CP Rail, had conducted a survey that shows that on average trains block intersections for seven minutes. He explained that that does not include Eighth Street where trains are often blocking the intersection because trains are being put together. There are eight trains a day passing through Thief River Falls and the average length ranges between 7,200 to 7,400 feet. The maximum train length is 8,000 feet. Chief Froschheiser said they had asked about increasing the speed of the trains traveling through Thief River Falls from 10 miles per hour to 20 miles per hour. He said he was told that safety specs on the rail bed allows the trains to travel only at 10 miles per hour. The cost to upgrade the rail bed through Thief River Falls, which would allow for trains to travel at a faster speed through Thief River Falls, was estimated at $1.2 million. Numerous other safety concerns inherent with faster speeds were addressed.

The only solution to residents using Eighth Street discussed was education — apparently a suggestion that they use Third Street.

Of more importance to local officials was the emergency vehicle underpass. While emergency vehicle height has changed over the years, the underpass that exists only for emergency vehicle use, has not changed. Currently, only one fire truck fits under the bridge. Only after the grade was lowered however, was the new ambulance able to fit through the underpass.

Chief Froschheiser said a number of solutions were discussed. Solutions discussed included an underpass, overpass, new bridge, and fire hall on the other side of the tracks. He said they agreed to engineer the emergency underpass to allow passage by emergency vehicles.

The public safety committee approved a recommendation to the city council transferring $1,600 from a FEMA reimbursement to the fire department. The funds would be used to purchase some new equipment.

A request to install a handicap sign was delayed until the problem could be addressed by a Community Policing Officer. Robert Bruun, 617 North Duluth, explained that he wanted a handicapped parking sign in front of his private residence, because he lives near an apartment and people are constantly parking in front of the residence. As a result, it becomes very difficult for his wife to get to the house. He does have a handicapped parking sticker on his vehicle.

County looking at enhanced 911 system

Seven counties are examining an enhanced 911 system and a proposal to work together to reduce costs in obtaining an enhanced 911 system.

Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe appeared before the Pennington County Board of Commissioners Tuesday to discuss a number of issues including an enhanced 911 system. Moe explained that the county is receiving state funds to assist it in obtaining an enhanced 911 system. Now they are actively looking at a system that several counties have expressed interest in obtaining. Those counties include Marshall, Kittson, Roseau, Red Lake, Clearwater, and Polk. The purpose of working together on the project is to reduce costs for all of the counties. The specific enhancement they are looking at involves a system able to identify cell phones and locate them through GPS.

Sheriff Moe also presented the board with a resignation from Wayne Nomeland, who has served on the Northwest Sentence to Service program. He explained that Nomeland has obtained a new job as a probation officer for Marshall and Kittson counties. The county board accepted the resignation.

Sheriff Moe then asked and received approval to begin advertising for a replacement on Northwest STS.

Incidence of Dutch elm disease continues to fall

Number of trees removed in Thief River Falls because of Dutch Elm Disease continues to decline. According to the 1997 forestry report submitted to the Thief River Falls City Council Tuesday, January 27, the number of trees removed due to Dutch Elm Disease decreased from 81 to 53.

The city recorded the highest losses in 1989 when 344 trees were removed. Of the 53 trees removed last year, 26 were on city property, a decrease from 35 last year, and 27 on private property, a decrease from 46 last year.

Thirty-six other trees were removed last year. Most of the trees removed were Maples and Chinese Elms that did not survive the cold temperatures. Others were dying box elders or obstructions.

Twenty-eight trees were planted on city property in 1997, this includes the two Arbor Day trees. According to the report, the reasons for the difference in trees planted and removed involve being too close to an existing tree, residents not wanting a tree replaced, and utilities (gas, phone, water, electric).

Arbor Day for 1997 was held on Friday, May 2, at Friendship Gardens and Tourist Park. Two bur oaks were planted in recognition of the contributions given to the city by the VFW and American Legion. Second graders participated in a coloring contest and the planting of the two trees. The coloring contest winners received coupons toward the purchase of a tree.

The forestry department performs other services as well. One of their chief concerns in the past two years has involved pruning, but for the second year in a row snow stopped them from reaching their goals. Street tree pruning was suspended in mid February due to high snowbanks. The department then moved to alleys to prune trees and shrubs that were causing problems for the sanitation department. During the summer and later fall they conducted pruning for vision obstruction, traffic control devices and improve access by street department equipment at various locations throughout the community.

It was the fourth year the city has provided residential brush pick up. Forestry department director John Johnson said there has been no reduction in the amount of material being picked up, possibly a slight increase. The service is provided May through October. The city picks up brush on one side of the city one week and the other side of the community the next week. The city is picking up five to seven tons of brush each week.

Johnson recognized a donation from the local VFW which allowed the forestry department to purchase forestry equipment. Last year, the department purchased a seven-foot power pruner, gas powered hedge pruner, portable generator, 12-volt sprayer, root feeders, pole pruner, saw and other forestry hand tools and equipment.

Grandma was played by Kaitlyn Maurstad in the Newfolden fourth grade production of the play "Stone Soup" last Friday at the Newfolden elementary school gymnasium. She is the daughter of Kevin and Nancy Maurstad and LuJean and Ben Kleinwechter. (Story and more photos on Page 12.)

Dr. Bray is back in practice after brief retirement

Following a 16-month retirement which was quite eventful, long-time Thief River Falls surgeon Dr. Jerome Bray is back in practice at the Dakota Clinic in Thief River Falls.

Dr. Bray retired in August of 1996 after 28 years of surgical practice in Thief River Falls. He says he has been "recycled" and is presently practicing full-time and plans to help the clinic with planning and opening of its new regional clinic and ambulatory surgery center.

Valentine's Day is every day for Al and Phyllis Sollom

by Kathi Carlson
The Times Reporter

Soft classical music plays in the background as the couple, dressed in their finest, share drinks and then sits down to a meal. As they talk, laugh and exchange knowing glances, the evening belongs only to them.

And while this scenario sounds romantic — almost magical — it is a regular Saturday night occurrence at the home of Al and Phyllis Sollom and has been for most of their 55-year marriage.

The Solloms' Saturday night ritual began almost out of necessity. As young people they didn't own a car and couldn't afford to go out. So, the couple dressed up and created a special evening for themselves at home.

The duo met conventionally on the campus of Bemidji State College. Originally from Goodridge, Phyllis was a freshman. Al was a sophomore who, while born in Thief River Falls, moved with his family to Bagley as an infant and grew up there. Al was acting as a guide on the autumn day when he spotted Phyllis and invited her to a bonfire that evening. "She said yes, and that was it," he says.

The couple dated, and in his senior year, Al enlisted in the Marine Corps. After he was called to active duty, the relationship continued by mail. "I think we had known for a long time that we'd eventually marry," Al says, "but I actually proposed in a letter." Once again, Phyllis said yes.

With only 15 days leave, Al returned to the area to claim his bride. Train was the most common mode of travel in those days, and seven days of his 15-day leave were spent in transit. Al and Phyllis were married in 1943 in Goodridge. They spent seven days together before Al left for overseas. He was sent to Bermuda, a perfect honeymoon spot. Phyllis, however, remained behind and didn't see her new husband again for a year.

Al returned to the states, and the couple spent six months together before he was sent with the First Marine Division to Okinawa, Japan. He was gone for another year.

"During the first four or five years of our marriage, we were together very little," Al says.

The couple's first child was due to be born during one of his leaves, but Al was back in Okinawa before the big event occurred. He says that he received a big stack of mail one day, gesturing to indicate a pile about a foot high. It wasn't until he was half-way through that stack of letters that someone made mention of his new son, Bob, who was six weeks old by then. It was the first Al knew of his arrival.

After the war, the Solloms decided that Al would make a career of the Marines, and the young couple spent a number of years moving up and down the West Coast.

Al went overseas again in 1952 during the Korean Conflict. When his ship got back to the United States, Al didn't think anyone knew for certain when he was returning so he waited onboard as the others got off. Standing on the deck of the ship he spotted Phyllis, his parents and other family members waiting for him below. Phyllis had found out through a friend when he would be home and was there to greet him.

While Al missed the birth of his first child Bob at the Naval Hospital in Oakland, California, he was nearby when the rest of the couple's children were born, all in different locations. Don was born at the Naval Hospital at Port Hueneme, California. Daughter Tobie came into the world at Quantico Marine Base in Virginia. Twin daughters Carrie and Kathy completed the family and were born in Jacksonville, South Carolina.

During his 20-year military career, Al estimates that he was absent for five of those years. Often he left for extended periods on very short notice. Phyllis was not only left to look after herself but their children as well. "She did a good job," Al notes with obvious pride.

Ingredients of a Happy Marriage

It's hard to believe, but not much research is devoted to what makes a happy marriage. Much of what there is though has been done by Florence Kaslow, Ph.D., director of the Florida Couples and Family Institute. Her research revealed a group of factors that highly satisfied couples seem to have in common.

- Open expression of love and devotion.
- Mutual trust and respect.
- Shared interests and values.
- Shared love for and interest in their children.
- The ability to give and take.
- Sensitivity to each other's needs and wishes.
- An egalitarian relationship in which power issues are not a battleground.
- Playfulness and having fun together.
- A good sense of humor.

The family moved about 22 times in those 20 years also. "If you spent three years in one place, you were looking for orders," Al said. Rarely were their quarters ready when the family reached their new destination. The military was expanding rapidly during those years. "Living accommodations were the last thing they spent money on," Al said.

His last assignment was in Washington, D.C. where he served as an advisor to the commandant of the Marine Corps, a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Colonel Al Sollom ended his impressive military career and retired from the Marines in 1963 just as things were starting to happen in Viet Nam. "It was a good time to get out," he says.

Still youthful, Al and Phyllis came to Thief River Falls where he began another career as an educator, teaching at Lincoln High School and working for the Minnesota Education Association. Oldest son Bob moved to Thief River Falls in time for his senior year in high school. Twins Carrie and Kathy were only three years old, and Thief River Falls is the only home they remember.

Together Al and Phyllis built a number of homes. They never remained in the same place for too long. Only recently, they moved to a lovely older home on North LaBree. Going to auction sales is one of the many things the couple enjoys doing together, and their home is filled with beautiful antiques and mementos of their years together.

Born in 1921, Al is just a month older than Phyllis. They consider themselves fortunate to both be very healthy, and they make a conscious effort to stay that way, attending aerobics three times a week at the Heritage Center and walking, instead of driving, whenever and wherever they can. They remain active in the community with Al currently serving as state president of the Minnesota Senior Federation.

Would they want to be young again? "No way," says Phyllis, "we're having too much fun now!"

Some insight into this couple's relationship comes from son Don's wife Geri. While Phyllis says, "Our kids think we're nuts," just the opposite is true. The pair is deeply admired and a source of inspiration for their children and grandchildren — though Geri says they are "fiercely independent and not always easy to find!" Geri's son-in-law Marty Semanko describes them as "the world's oldest teenagers."

Asked if they have any advice for other couples with regard to maintaining a long and happy relationship, Phyllis quickly says, "Hang in there!" Surely those first years of frequent separations and uncertainties, during what Al referred to as "trying times. . . when major world events were occurring," were not easy for the young couple.

Al stressed that one needs to "pick the right mate." Pointing at the young woman in the 55-year-old wedding picture Al said, "Can't you see why I fell for her?" The couple is as handsome and happy today as they appeared all those years ago.

They both agreed that an optimistic attitude — the belief that nothing is impossible — and patience are elements of a lasting relationship.

Al and Phyllis don't remember exactly when their Saturday night tête-à-têtes began but know that it was sometime during the early years. They have missed very few.

Visiting with Al and Phyllis at their dining room table one easily senses the ageless love and devotion that this couple shares. It's enviable, inspirational and on Saturday evenings, it's nothing short of magic.

Al and Phyllis Sollom posed for this wedding picture in 1943. Al was serving in the Marine Corps, and the young couple spent only seven days together before Al was sent overseas. Phyllis didn't see her new husband again for a year.

Early in their marriage Al and Phyllis Sollom of Thief River Falls set aside Saturday nights as a time when they shared a special evening together at home. While the ritual began out of necessity, it became a tradition that the couple has continued throughout their 55-year union.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Jenna Tunbichl
Lincoln High School

While recently basking in self-pity during a bout with a cold, I got to thinking about things. That tends to happen when I've been on cough medicine too long. While I was sick, I started working on a list of accomplishments for college applications. It got me thinking about all the things I have accomplished, and it made me realize that my life isn't as pathetic as I thought. From tennis to speech, my days after school are full of adventure and excitement. It's also full of pushing myself to believe in myself and making me see that I can achieve many things.

One accomplishment has been playing tennis. I started playing tennis when I was in eighth grade. I had never taken a lesson in my life. By my junior year in high school, I made the varsity. I usually played exhibition, but that was okay with me. Most of the varsity girls could have kicked my butt to Kalamazoo and back, and I still wouldn't have even made a point. I saw a lot of the girls who they played against, and I thought, "There's no way I could ever compete against anyone that good." Towards the end of the season, I decided I didn't want to play exhibition the following year. I told myself that come next tennis season, I would be playing in the actual line-up. I would be playing number four singles for sure. I don't know why I decided this, but I just knew it was something I wanted for myself.

I went to tennis camp, I played hard during the summer, and when the fall of 1997 came, I was in top shape to play tennis. I had to miss the first week of tennis practice because of tennis camp, and shortly after I got back, we were already preparing for two upcoming tennis matches. I was disappointed to find that I had barely missed the regular line-up, but I kept pushing myself. I challenged up on the "ladder" (this is basically a list in order of who is number one to last on the team.) I was challenged back, but each time I managed to pull off a win. It wasn't always easy. Finally, I won the spot as number four singles. However, just because I had won that spot, didn't mean there wouldn't be others who wouldn't want it, but I stayed in that spot for the rest of the season.

As the season progressed, I soon found myself playing the girls that, in the previous year, I had told myself I would never be able to play. Yet here I found myself winning matches. My two toughest opponents were Alexandria (who I never could beat) and Bemidji (who I did beat to help my team advance for the first time in 20 years to regions.)

I found myself in a lot of three set matches. For those of you who aren't that familiar with tennis, the winner is determined by whoever wins two out of three sets. Each set consists of a six game pro-set, which means whoever wins six games first wins the set. Each game starts at love, which is basically 0-0. The first person to win a point goes to 15. Therefore, the score would be 15-love. If the other person doesn't get a point the whole game, the scores after each point would be as follows: 15-love, 30-love, and 40-love. The next point after 40 is the game. A person must win six of these games in order to win the set. However, if the game score (which is how many games each person won) is 5-5, the winner must win by two games. If the score goes on to 6-6, the players would have to play a tie-breaker. A tie-breaker is the deciding game to see who wins.

I can remember that it kind of got to be a joke because I was continually going three sets. By the end of the season, if I had lost the first set, the girls would say, "Oh, she'll just go into a third set." Most of the time they were right. Even though we lost at regions, we still accomplished a lot last season. With our final record being 13-6 and going into subs ranked third, I would say we had a great season.

I've reached many goals in other things like reaching my goal of getting at least alternate to regions in speech and getting a lead role in the fall play at least once. Those were goals I have set for myself and accomplished.

I think that with determination and will power, one can achieve almost anything – except flying. I don't think we'll ever be able to fly without airplanes, helicopters, jets, etc. Determination and the will to do something take just as much work as actually doing it, but in the end, one usually is happy with the results.

On Principles Of Truth

"GOALS 2000"

Unless "Goals 2000" is stopped (and stopped soon) the future of America's education will be further jeopardized. The same philosophy of government that took God and Biblical morality out of public education is now wanting more control of how and what our kids will learn (or not learn) in school. I wish to say at the beginning of this article that Goals 2000 isn't just targeted at government (public) schools. All schools (public, private, home, etc.) will be affected if it is allowed to continue.

In 1994 Congress passed the "Goals 2000, Educate America Act." Shortly after Minnesota (Mn.) joined Goals 2000 by agreeing to enforce its mandates. By doing this Mn. just handed the federal government the authority to run our schools. This authority was previously held by parents and school boards. What does this mean will happen? Well, it's described best in one of the statements of Goals 2000; "All children will be knowledgeable about the diverse cultural heritage of this Nation.." Let's take a closer look at this statement. It doesn't say "some students," it says "all students," not "maybe " but "will be"; it also doesn't say "exposed to," it says "knowledgeable about." Federal bureaucrats are determined to put what they think should go into your children's minds. Let's review what they've accomplished so far. First they've removed your voice in your child's education, and now they're telling you what and how your child will learn. Speaking of what and how your child will learn, here are some examples you might find interesting. First of all, the curriculum of Goals 2000 will consist of forty-eight sets of profiles which consist of twenty to thirty-five pages. Each packet includes a number of projects which teachers have estimated an average student will take about two weeks to complete. By forcing this educational goal, they're dumbing down the system by forcing teachers and students to spend much of their time on State-mandated projects and paperwork instead of systematic study of academics Craig Stoneberg, a teacher of social studies, stated that "The packages are a bureaucrat's delight and an educator's nightmare." Let me enlighten you to one of these profiles which will be taught under the authority of Goals 2000. It's called "Decision Making: Individual and Community Health." You'd think that this would include knowledgeable things like good nutrition, abstinence, exercise, or even the hazards of drug abuse. If you thought that, I'm sorry to say you're wrong; for example, one of the six components of this packet is called "HIV/STD/Unintentional Pregnancies." And what the students (your children) are required to do is to be well-informed about the contraceptives (birth control) at nearby centers headed by planned parenthood, as well as the most convenient abortion clinics -without parental knowledge or consent. In other words, the law is forcing your children to go into planned parenthood and high risk HIV clinics to obtain pamphlets, videos, etc.. Do you want your child to obtain this kind of knowledge at school? This same packet Includes a list of "Significant Adults" to whom a student may go to for information and guidance on all ideas including Aids, STDS, and unintentional pregnancies. Those on the list are emergency medical technicians, school nurses, school counselors and school social workers. Please notice that you as a parent are NOT listed. Allen Quist put it like this: "This is not education: it's government required social engineering." There is so much more to this curriculum than meets the eye. What it comes down to is the government taking control of your children which are the future of this country. If we tolerate this, I strongly believe that there won't be much of a future to look forward to. I believe we as a country don't need Goals 2000. We need to be educated in a way that teaches us how not to make mistakes instead of just learning how to get around them. And Goals 2000, will not make that happen. As I close, I wish to encourage you to get more informed about this matter. It's you and your children's future!

Baby boom at Riverview Hospital

For the first time in the memories of those who help deliver babies at Riverview Health Care Association in Crookston, six newborns arrived recently on the same day between the hours of 7 a.m. and 9 p.m. The obstetrics unit usually sees only about one delivery every two days.

Besides keeping the staff in the obstetrics department hopping, the accommodations became a little too crowded also.

The hospital recently built three new birthing suites and a new nursery and thought it had all the room it would ever need. Four of the new mothers had to be moved to regular patient rooms in the same wing leaving one of the birthing rooms ready for the next new arrival, and the six babies and their bassinets barely fit in the new nursery.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

It's Just Part Of Parent Continuing Education

In the last few months I've become more acquainted with the role of a hockey parent. This is my 7-year-old son's first season in hockey; it's also my rookie year. I feel I've made great strides and am quite proud of myself. I've advanced from level one to at least level two.

First, I've learned the correct names for all of the clothing and equipment and the proper order of putting it on. Do not, whatever anyone says, attempt to pull on snowpants AFTER the skates; it's a challenge that tests the patience level of a mother's endurance and commitment to hockey.

Second, I've significantly trimmed the dressing time from just under an hour to 15 minutes. The key here was teaching the hockey player to attire himself. It's hard to imagine that there's a skinny, 45-pound first-grader beneath all that equipment.

Now my job is only tying the ice skates. Even that has become easier as I've increased the strength in my fingers from much practice and repetition. The laces have to be tight, you know.

Third, I've resigned myself to the fact that I am the transportation, that an hour and a half of my day is allocated to hockey. I guess if it wasn't hockey practice, it would be basketball or wrestling or piano lessons. I have to get used to the idea that I'm the official chauffeur until he's of driving age, which I don't even want to consider right now.

I'm even getting used to being a spectator – biding time until practice is over. I've considered bringing a book to read for diversion, but then I wouldn't be attentive enough to give the thumbs-up sign when the player does something good. That's a part of this hockey parent role, too.

And during weekend games, when I'm forced to stand in a cold arena cheering on the little players, I've devised a plan: I keep the concession stand in business. I volunteer for a "snack run" as an excuse to go back into the warm waiting area.

During the last three months, I've also grown to enjoy (most of the time) this hockey stuff. Especially the Saturday games. The kids are excited about the challenge, and they work hard.

To me, this is as close as it gets to real hockey: no fighting, no penalties, no checking (on purpose, anyway) and lots of hustle. And with this level of play, it's easy to keep track of the puck. I like that.

These little kids' games are also entertaining – lots of thrills, spills, near misses and pile ups. It seems as if when one falls, they all fall, with the puck at the bottom of the pile.

It's fun watching the players as they improve and learn the technique and rules to the game. They know one thing: The object of the game is to score a goal. And when they score a goal, which is a proud moment, they raise their sticks and their arms in the air as if they've conquered the world.

They've conquered the hockey net and I think I've conquered this "hockey parent" thing, even though I wasn't excited about it at first. It's just part of my ongoing parental education.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Valentine Snowman

Cut small, medium-sized and large circles out of white construction paper. Set out paper circles, glue, scissors, blue and red construction paper, markers and red-heart stickers (optional). Have your children glue the circles to a piece of paper to make a snowman shape and use the markers to decorate their snowman as they wish. Let each child stick a heart (heart sticker or heart made from red construction paper) on his or her snowman.

The following rhyme can be written on the paper:

I made a snowman yesterday,
So jolly, fat, and fine.
I put a red heart on his chest
And named him Valentine.

PARENTING TIPS

Quality Time With a Toddler

The toddler: a most delightful creature! To them the world is a place to be discovered and conquered. They are constantly going from one thing to the next, never staying with one activity for any period of time. It has been said that a professional athlete could not keep up, movement for movement, with a toddler for an entire day without collapsing in exhaustion.

So if your toddler is constantly on the move, how can you, a busy parent, manage to share some moments of quality time? One thing is certain. You will have to do it when your toddler can "work you in."

The key to quality time with a toddler is to find just the right moment. Don't wait until he/she is tired or whiny. Find a time when you aren't distracted. Family routines will provide natural times for certain activities, for example, reading at bedtime or singing in the car on the way home from day care. Bath time provides another time for quality interaction with your toddler. Any time is quality time as long as both you and your toddler are having fun. Be willing to have many short interactions throughout the day. Follow your toddler's cues as to what he/she wants to do.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Try a little game of "show me your nose, show me your tummy, show me your toes." As long as both you and your child are having fun it is "quality time," plus you are helping to develop his or her language skills.

Northland to host annual blood drive

In coordination with United Blood Services of Fargo, the student senate, Phi Theta Kappa chapter and the Criminal Justice Club will host a blood collection drive Thursday, February 19, between 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. in rooms O 60, 61 and 62.

Preregistration will be held in the cafeteria Thursday and Friday, February 12 and 13. Through the cooperative efforts of all last year, approximately 60 students, staff and faculty donated blood and the goal is to exceed that number this year.

"We strongly encourage everyone involved with NCTC to stop by our preregistration table in the cafeteria and made a donation of blood on February 19," said Brent Waale, president of the PTK chapter.

"If you have never donated blood before, you should know that it's effortless," he added. "If you are a previous donor, you already know the sense of accomplishment you get in helping a hospital patient in need of this precious commodity."

Persons age 17 through 79 who weigh 110 pounds or more may donate blood. They must show identification showing their legal name and either a date of birth, social security number, United Blood Services assigned donor number or a photo identification. There should be an interval of at least eight weeks between blood donations.

There are a number of conditions which preclude donating blood. These will be available at the preregistration table and questioned prior to donation. Donors are also asked to bring a complete list of any medications they are taking.

SPEAKING OF...

Sharry LaCourciere

...Driving Safely...From Now On

I finally got around to taking the 55 Alive driving course last week. Let me tell you, if you've been considering taking the course but have put it off for one reason or another, don't hesitate. If you think you'll be sitting around with a bunch of old fogies reading the driver's manual, forget it. If you think the class will be so boring that you'll fall asleep, forget that too.

The class is fun and interesting and I never once considered taking a nap during the entire eight hours. Sure, I'll admit I felt apprehensive about the class. I wondered how in the world anyone could make driving interesting, after all. Who wants to review those same old laws we learned when we were taking driver's education? Maybe we would have to memorize them! Maybe we would be tested on how well we know the rules and if we failed they would take away our driving licenses! Maybe I would be so bored I would yawn in front of everyone - maybe I would actually fall asleep - maybe I would fall off my chair!

And how about all of those other old fogies. Surely it wouldn't be fun sitting around with them all night. Surely they would yawn, or fall asleep, or fall off their chairs. Well, let me tell you, I didn't see any old fogies there and none of us had time to fall asleep. If anyone fell off their chair, it would have been from laughing. We were all too busy enjoying ourselves.

The class is fun. I guarantee you won't be bored and I also guarantee that nobody is going to test you and take away your driver's license. Since only fun people take the class, you won't be meeting any old fogies there, either, just interesting people around your own age.

The class I attended was held two consecutive evenings, four hours each. There were 35 people in the class, the maximum number. We met at the Heritage Center, an appropriate place for a senior driving class, wouldn't you say? I called the Heritage Center to get on the class list and was called when there was an opening. The total cost was $8. Since the class is for an elite type of citizen, only those who are 50 years and older may take it, so don't try to get in if you're 48 or 49. It's only for us special people!

I only had two problems during the class. One problem was where I sat. No, I don't mean the part of the room - I mean my bottom. The chairs were padded, but I guess as one gets older, the fat moves around the body from one place to another, because it surely isn't in the place where I sit any more. I would recommend anyone who has the same fat displacement problem I have to take a pillow along with them to class. (Won't the instructor laugh when all 35 of his next month's students march into class carrying pillows?)

My other problem is one that I didn't want to tell anyone, but I'm going to bring it up just so you don't make the same mistake I did. Let's keep it a secret between us, though.

After my first class, I bounded out to my car, filled with the "Spirit of Safe Driving." Ah, yes, I knew the rules and I knew some new, special safe driving tricks, and the world was my oyster. I hopped into the car, turned it on and - with a bang - backed into the car behind me! Yes, I exited the Safe Driving course and immediately had an accident.

All right, the accident wasn't so bad, thanks to those fancy new bumpers they put on cars nowadays, and neither of the cars was even scratched. Nobody was hurt, except me and my pride. Needless to say, I paid extra attention when we discussed backing up procedures at the next class and I was very careful about getting out of my parking place after the second class. And there, now that I've told you, I don't want to hear another word about it - it's a secret, after all.

Feel free to email me with comments and ideas.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. My husband wants to file for retirement benefits but at present is still working and traveling a lot. Can I complete the application for him?

A. No. During the interview the SSA representative will be reviewing your husband's earnings record and asking questions about his work and future plans. In addition, various questions often come up during the interview as retirement options are discussed. In short, we need to speak to the actual applicant for benefits. Assuming that it is all right with your husband, it is fine with SSA if you are at the interview, but he needs to be present also. As a reminder, we can conduct the interview with him by telephone and would try to work within his schedule. To make an appointment, please call the national toll-free number 1-800-772-1213 between the hours of 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Q. How much is the monthly Medicare premium this year?

A. For 1998, the Medicare Part B monthly charge is $43.80 which is the same as last year. There is no monthly charge for Medicare Part A if the person is eligible for Social Security benefits.

Attention Area Employers: If you have questions about annual wage reporting or reporting wages by magnetic media for Social Security you can call the special toll-free phone number, 1-800-314-1964, which rings in Denver, CO. Expect to leave a message with your name and number for a return call from the magnetic media coordinator. This telephone number is only for employers. It is not for any other SSA business.

The county board is continuing to examine and weigh its options regarding a proposed low risk prison facility in Pennington county. At various times, the board has looked at or considered the Northwest Service Cooperative building next to the law enforcement center, the American Legion building, and the city auditorium. Sheriff Moe explained that Al Brinkman of the Minnesota Department of Corrections had looked at the city auditorium and Legion building.

Chairman Skip Swanson said he had talked to some contractors about getting some "rough" remodeling estimates.

After some discussion, the board approved a resolution to send a letter to the school district asking them for an offer on the Northwest Service Cooperative building.

Pennington County Commissioners will hire an architect to move ahead with plans to build a Highway department office and shop. They agreed to hire the same firm being used by the state. The state and county are planning to build one facility that can be used by both. Pennington county is expected to start construction on the facility before the state, but the facility will be compatible with addition of state offices and shop. Pennington county could begin construction this year. The state is expected to begin adding to the facility within four years.

Pennington County has entered into a lease/purchase agreement with Information Systems Inc. on an electronic imaging system. The system will allow county offices to store records on compact disks.

Pennington County has joined Koochiching county in asking the state to take the wolves off the endangered species list and put them under the management of the state.

Members of the committee were reluctant to set a precedent and allow the sign to be installed. Chief Froschheiser said there are a number of people in the community in the same predicament. Such a sign would prevent other people from parking in the spot, but allow anyone with a handicapped parking sticker to park there. Enforcement, of course, is another serious concern.

Committee members suggested that the a Community Policing Officer attempt to resolve the problem before the city takes any kind of action.

County-wide law enforcement is being discussed more frequently. Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe announced earlier this year that he plans to retire this summer. Since that announcement various committees and officials have discussed whether the county should have a county-wide law enforcement. No decision was reached by the committee. They asked for more information, but it seemed they were not receiving the matter favorably.

Chief Froschheiser presented the Paul Bunyan Narcotics Task Force annual summary to the board. That information will be presented in a separate news story.

Chief Froschheiser informed the committee that a skills training course for police recruits will be held at Northland Community and Technical College this summer. A large number of recruits will result in a greater law enforcement presence in the community. He said the public needs to know about that. He also believes that presentation of the course in the community is a real plus.

NCTC women in playoff race

■ Pioneers sweep Vermilion, Mesabi

A home court weekend sweep of Vermilion Friday night and Mesabi Saturday afternoon kept Northland in the thick of the race for a Minnesota Community College Conference women's state basketball tournament spot.

An impressive 71-54 win over the Northern Division-leading Ironmen was followed by a not-so-pretty 68-42 victory over the Norsemen as the Pioneers went over .500 in both conference play (6-5) and overall (10-9) heading into the final leg of the regular season schedule.

Both Vermilion and Mesabi beat Northland in an early-January road trip when the Pioneers lost close decisions at Ely 59-54 and Virginia 56-54.

Friday's rematch with Vermilion brought out the best in the Pioneers, according to head coach Rick Nikunen. "It was the best game of the year for us," he said. "We shot well, we executed well, and we played great defense. We held a very good team to 54 points."

The next-day matinee performance didn't come close to matching the Friday effort, but at this point of the season, Nikunen said a win is a win. "A game like last night takes a lot out of you both physically and emotionally," he explained after the sweep-completing victory over Mesabi. "We weren't as sharp today. But I told the kids they had to find a way to gut it out, and they did. It was a case of winning ugly, but winning ugly isn't anything to be ashamed of. Winning is the name of the game at this point, and that's what we did."

Top four regular season Northern Division finishers earn MCCC state tournament spots. Northland plays Central Lakes tonight (Wednesday) in Brainerd, then finishes the schedule at home with games Monday, Feb. 16, vs. Fergus Falls and Friday, Feb. 20, against Itasca.

Northland 71
Vermilion..........................54

Jenny Johnson scored 22 points, Naomi Wilebski 17 and Jamekka Lucas 10 as Northland produced a 71-54 win over Vermilion.

The two teams played to a 30-30 halftime tie and it remained closed until Northland backed Vermilion into a corner. The Pioneers then cashed in when the Ironmen were forced into a must-foul situation down the stretch.

Northland was only 11-for-23 at the free throw line for the night, but the Pioneers made the foul shots when they really needed them as they turned a 10-point lead with 3 1/2 minutes left into a 17-point victory.

Guards Jessica Coleman and Carrie Vobian led Vermilion with 16 and 11 points, respectively.

Northland 68
Mesabi..........................42

There were mistakes galore in Saturday's 68-42 Northland win over Mesabi as the two teams split 57 turnovers – 30 for the Norsemen and 27 for the Pioneers.

Northland led almost from the start, with Kerrin Stoskopf scoring on the inside, Paula Hovda getting the ball to drop on a drive and Darlene Nelson hitting from the side in a early spurt that provided the Pioneers with an 8-3 lead they never relinquished.

A few minutes later the Pioneers began a 10-0 run that gave them firm control of things as Naomi Wilebski and Jamekka Lucas both scored on the inside, Nelson drove to the basket, Lucas came up with a steal and a lay-up, and Meckenzie Malwitz went inside for an 18-7 cushion.

It was 26-16 at halftime, and Northland opened the second half with seven straight points to break it open even more.

Hovda scored 13 points and Malwitz 10 to lead a balanced Northland offense. Mesabi got a game-high 14-point effort from forward Livia Monacelli.

Northland's efforts to get the ball inside produced a 53 percent 25-for-47 shooting night. The Pioneers, after an 0-for-4 first half, wound up with a 18-for-28 showing at the free throw line. Mesabi turned in just a 30 percent 15-for-50 shooting performance from the field and went 11-for-16 at the line. Northland had a 28-26 rebound edge.

Otters rally to edge TRF girls

Fergus Falls overcame a 10-point third quarter deficit to beat visiting Thief River Falls 64-59 Friday in girls high school basketball.

The Prowlers had a 20-15 first quarter lead and took a 35-33 edge into halftime. But the Otters, after having chopped a 10-point Thief River Falls advantage to 48-46 by the end of the third quarter, wrestled the lead away from the visitors in the final period and made free throws down the stretch to clinch it.

"We made some mistakes on offense," explained Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe. "We forced some shots. We didn't handle the ball very well when we had the lead. We should have played smarter basketball."

Jamie Huskey and Missy McCormick scored 13 points apiece to lead the Otters, who had four others in the 8-to-11-point range. Nicole Kopan scored 23 points for the Prowlers. Teammate Amber Klinker chipped in with 10.

Thief River Falls shot 38 percent from the field (21/55) while Fergus Falls shot 42 percent (22/52). Both sides were busy at the free throw line, where the Prowlers made 14 of 25 and the Otters hit 18 of 21. Thief River Falls finished with a 33-32 rebound edge, but also had more turnovers, 16-13.

The loss dropped the Prowlers to 6-11 heading into a Tuesday game at Bemidji. They end regular season play with a four-game homestand that begins Thursday against Kittson Central.

B/G-MR boys beat Grygla-Gatzke 73-50...

Vacura sparks Gators' offense

Jeremy Vacura jump-started the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River offense with a second quarter assault from the outside that sparked the Gators to a 73-50 Friday night boys high school basketball win over host Grygla-Gatzke.

Both teams had trouble getting going offensively at the start, with the Eagles coming out of the first quarter with an 11-7 edge. The Gators, who made just one of their first 11 shots, took off when Vacura hit four consecutive three-point shots to push Badger/Greenbush-Middle River ahead 31-24 at halftime. The visitors continued to carry play in opening a 48-32 third quarter spread.

"We started out flat," admitted Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "Fortunately for us, they (Eagles) had some trouble early, too. Jeremy got us going with those three-pointers."

Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson agreed. "Those three-points by Vacura broke it open," he said. "We never recovered. They started rolling. They executed well offensively, and got a lot of offensive rebounds. We did a poor job blocking out under the boards."

Daryl Wockenfuss had a 19-point, 12-rebound game as the Gators out-rebounded the Eagles 45-28. Vacura and Bret Bentow joined him in double figures with 18 and 10 points, respectively. Grygla-Gatzke was led by Alex Anderson with 18 points and Philip Brateng 16.

The Gators shot 44 percent from the field (28/63) and went 13-for-16 at the free throw line. The 3-14 Eagles shot only 36 percent from the floor (20/55), which including a 1-for-15 showing from three-point range, and struggled with a 9-for-19 free throw night. Turnovers were even at 10-apiece.

Nordics improve, but lose 60-56

Wins are still hard to come by for the Marshall County Central girls high school basketball team. But the Nordics' improvement through the course of the 1997-98 season is readily evident. Thursday, for example, Marshall County Central challenged Lake of the Woods before surrendering a 60-56 decision in a game played at Newfolden. Three weeks earlier the Nordics were blown out of the water by the Bears, 78-35.

Sophomore Kristi Kilen scored 24 points and senior Miki Woterworth had 17 for the Nordics who trailed 18-15 at the end of the first quarter, pulled into a 35-35 tie at halftime and ended the third quarter with a 46-43 lead.

Lake of the Woods' offense featured Heather Hanson with 19 points, Ellie Waibel 18 and Kimi Bragdon 11.

It was the 17th loss in 19 games for the Nordics, but first-year Marshall County Central coach Alice Dahl was more than satisfied with her team's performance. "We played really well," she said. "We played with a lot of intensity for the whole game."

Kilen added 14 rebounds and seven steals to her 24 points to complete a strong all-around game.

Both teams let opportunities slip away at the free throw line, where Marshall County Central was just 14-for-25 and Lake of the Woods went only 10-for-22.

The Nordics shot 36 percent from the field (20/56), while the Bears shot 48 percent (25/52). Lake of the Woods had a 40-25 rebound advantage, but also had more turnovers, 17-10.

EGF stops TRF wrestlers 43-22

It might have been Thief River Falls' best chance to break into the win column all year, acknowledged Prowlers head coach John Belyea. But East Grand Forks had other ideas Thursday as the Green Wave controlled the action en route to a 43-22 high school wrestling victory.

The loss in the Prowlers' final home appearance of the 1997-98 season dropped their dual meet record to 0-16.

"When I woke up this morning, I had a feeling we would win tonight," said Belyea. "And early-on, I thought we were going to do okay. But we had some matches that went the wrong way. When I count on points, we've got to get them. We just don't have the people to make them up someplace else."

The Prowlers started the night with a 10-0 decision by eighth grader Beau Abrahamson at 103 pounds. But, thanks in part to three open-weight forfeits, it was 27-4 before Thief River Falls got back into the win column with a pin by Philip Hermanson, another eighth grader, at 140.

Only other Thief River Falls points came from sophomore Mark Chappelle with a pin at 171 and an East Grand Forks forfeit in the heavyweight finale.

However, the Prowlers' best individual performance came from senior Josh Stinson, who lost a spirited 13-12 decision to Jeff King at 152.

King, who ranks among the East Grand Forks leaders in career wins, had a 7-3 lead at the end of the first period. But Stinson chopped the difference to 9-8 after four minutes and caught King at 10-10 on a takedown with 1:40 left in the match. Stinson elected to give up a one-point escape, but was then taken down as King went back on top 13-10. Stinson got one point back on a penalty call against King, and tacked on an escape to pull within 13-12 with 1:01 to go. Although Stinson pushed King throughout the final minute, he couldn't come up with the takedown needed for the win.

"Josh Stinson wrestles with a lot of heart," pointed out Belyea. "He's fun to watch. No matter if he wins or losses, he wrestles hard. It was kind of emotional for him being a senior in his last home match. He really wanted to go out with a win. He might not have won the match, but I think he still went out a winner."

Nordics fall behind early, lose to Rams in boys basketball

Marshall County Central fell behind early and never fully recovered Friday in a 50-43 boys high school basketball loss at Roseau.

The Rams had a 5-0 lead just 30 seconds into the game and were quickly up 10, forcing the Nordics into an all-to-familiar come-from-behind mode, according to Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland.

Roseau led at the quarter stops 15-8, 26-17 and 37-26.

"We played really well defensively, but we didn't do a very good job on the boards, and we turned the ball over too many times against their pressure defense," explained Ueland. "We had a tough time getting shots off."

The Nordics shot 47 percent from the floor, but they put up just 34 shots (hitting 16). And they struggled with an 8-for-18 game at the free throw line.

Roseau went 19-for-46 from the field (41 percent) and 11-for-18 at the line. The Rams beat the Nordics on the boards 28-13. Marshall County Central topped the turnover charts 18-14.

Isaac Lang scored 18 points to lead the Rams. Caleb Holthusen and Matt Nelson netted 13 points each to head the Nordics' scoring.

Marshall County Central is 9-9.

Open weights lead to Prowlers' 32-21 wrestling setback

Moorhead picked up 12 points on open-weight forfeits and beat Thief River Falls by 11 Saturday, 32-21, in a high school wrestling dual hosted by the Spuds.

The Prowlers left three weights open, but the Spuds gave six of those points back with a forfeit of their own. That left 10 matches to be wrestled, and the two teams split 5-5. Three of those matches were one-point decisions, and another was decided by three points.

Thief River Falls winners were Beau Abrahamson at 103 pounds, Josh Hagen 145, Jeremy Houske 160, Mark Chappelle 171, and Cody Crapeau 189.

The loss closed out a 0-17 regular season dual meet season for the John Belyea-coached Prowlers.

Post-season matches begin this week for the three classes of Minnesota State High School League wrestling competition. Thief River Falls will compete in the Section 8AA team meet Saturday at Cass Lake, where the Prowlers will join host Cass Lake-Bena/ Blackduck, Red Lake County Central, Crookston, Deer River/ Northland, Detroit Lakes, East Grand Forks, Eveleth-Gilbert, Fosston/Bagley, Greenway/ Nashwauk-Keewatin, Mahnomen/ Waubun, Park Rapids Area, Roseau, and Walker-Hackensack-Akeley/ Nevis.

Individual portion of the Section 8AA meet will be held Feb. 20-21 at Bagley.

RLF gymnasium will be renamed in honor of Matzke on Feb. 15

Lafayette High School gym in Red Lake Falls will be renamed the Robert Matzke Gymnasium during a dedication ceremony Sunday, Feb. 15, at 2 p.m.

The program will feature a variety of speakers, including former players, fellow coaches and school and city officials.

Renaming of the gym was initiated by the Class of 1998 as a tribute to Matzke for his dedication and service to the school and community.

Robert (Bob) Matzke passed away in July 1997 after a lengthy battle against cancer. He was a long-time social studies teacher and basketball coach at Red Lake Falls. He also served nine years on the city council and was well known in the surrounding communities as a softball umpire for 15 years.

Everyone is invited to join the tribute.

Size advantage belonged to 6-7 Matt Krebs of Mesabi as he went over 6-2 Northland defender Malvin Whitney Jr. during Saturday's Minnesota Community College Conference men's basketball game played in Thief River Falls. The Norsemen beat the Pioneers 77-64.

Girls basketball vs. Wolfpack...

B/G-MR offense has a tough time in loss

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River had a tough time getting an offense cranked up Thursday in a 49-39 girls high school basketball loss to Kittson Central.

The two teams played to an 8-8 first quarter tie before the visiting Wolfpack went ahead 22-16 at halftime. The Gators stayed within 31-28 through three quarters, but lost ground down the stretch. Seven Kittson Central free throws at the end helped pad the Wolfpack lead.

"It wasn't a ten-point game," noted Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Nelbauer. "We played well enough to win, but the name of the game is basketball, and we can't put the ball in the basket. You can do a lot of different things, but eventually you have to put the ball in the basket, and we're just not knocking them down."

Kara Kuznia scored 11 points and Tiffany Hagen had 10 for the Gators. Janna Lindegard and Jamie Visness led the Wolfpack with 10 points each.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River shot 34 percent from the field (15/44) and went 9-for-14 at the free throw line, where Kittson Central made 13 of 17.

The loss dropped the Gators to 13-5. Earlier this season, Badger/ Greenbush-Middle River beat Kittson Central 45-36 in the semifinals of the Warren-Alvarado-Oslo Invitational.

Wolverines fall prey to Wildcats' balance

Tri-County had too many weapons for Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke Thursday as the Wildcats beat the Wolverines 74-56 in a girls high school basketball game played at Goodridge.

Putting special emphasis on stopping Anna Bogestad in the first half, the Wolverines succeeded in limiting the high-scoring front line player to six points through 16 minutes. But that opened the door for Afton Hanson, who netted 19 first half points as the winner turned a 16-11 first quarter lead into a 36-21 spread at intermission.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke went back to a straight defense in the second half, which slowed down Hanson, but gave Bogestad room to operate. By game's end, Hanson had 26 points and Bogestad 25.

"You can't run a chaser on them," acknowledged Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "They just have too many good shooters."

Tri-County turned in a 50 percent 26-for-52 shooting performance from the field and an 85 percent 17-for-20 night at the free throw line.

"They shoot the ball real well," noted Gast. "We had a bad first half. We had 10-to-12 inside shots that we missed. We hit the boards tough, but we couldn't come up with the points."

The Wolverines played the highly-regarded Wildcats on near-even terms in the second half, but they couldn't make up the first half deficit, trailing 57-39 at the end of the third quarter.

Kathryn Stanley scored 21 points to lead the Wolverines' offense. They were 23-for-60 from the field (38 percent) and 9-for-16 at the line while controlling the boards 38-29.

The loss dropped Goodridge/ Grygla-Gatzke to 10-8.

Pioneers lose pair at home

Northland saw its record dip to 1-18 over the weekend with a pair of home court Minnesota Community College Conference men's Northern Division basketball losses to Vermilion and Mesabi.

The Pioneers were out-scored by the Ironmen 116-94 Friday night and were shut down by the Norsemen 77-64 Saturday afternoon.

Northland, 0-10 in the MCCC, will close out the 1997-98 season with Northern Division games tonight (Wednesday) against Central Lakes in Brainerd and Monday at home against Fergus Falls.

Vermilion..........................116
Northland..........................94

Vermilion three-point shooters turned a two-point deficit with two minutes remaining in the first half into a 57-48 lead at intermission, and the Ironmen carried that momentum through the second half for a 116-94 Friday victory over Northland.

The game featured nine double figure scorers, led by Vermilion guard Dejuan Goodwin, a 6-2 freshman from Cleveland, OH, who poured in 32 points. Teammate Ronald Dodson, a 6-3 freshman from Detroit, MI, had 25. Northland's top production came from Chaka Ali, a 6-4 freshman from Minneapolis, who collected 29 points, and Dwight Goodwin, a 6-3 sophomore from Milwaukee, WI, who netted 25.

"It was a shoot-out," noted Northland coach Ted Krize. "That run they made at the end of the first half was kind of the difference."

Scoring

Mesabi..........................77
Northland..........................64

An injury sabotaged a Northland bid for a Saturday afternoon win, leading to a 77-64 loss at the hands of Mesabi.

The two teams played to a 36-36 halftime tie, and the Pioneers were down just 48-44 with 12:47 remaining in the game when Josh Whitlock, a 6-2 sophomore guard from Lancaster, went down with an ankle injury.

Northland managed to hang in there briefly as a basket on the inside by Chaka Ali made it 49-46, and after Mesabi's Matt Krebs slipped underneath for a bucket, the Pioneers' Grant Skabicki finished off a drive to keep things close, 51-48, with 11:20 to play.

But without Whitlock at the point, the Pioneers' game unraveled down the stretch. Over the next ten minutes they hit just one field goal and were out-scored 22-7.

"The turning point of the game was when Josh went out," said Northland coach Ted Krize. "We played it out to the end, but it's tough when you lose your floor leader."

Northland got a game-high 22-point performance from Ali, while Whitlock picked up 13 before he was carried off the court and Dwight Goodwin contributed 10.

A balanced Mesabi attack featured 6-3 guard Jason Carlson of Tower-Soudan with 19 points, 6-4 forward Joe Chambers of Milwaukee, WI with 18 and 6-6 center Jason Wefel of Eveleth with 17.

Northland was 24-for-51 from the field (47 percent) and 11-for-19 at the free throw line. Mesabi went 30-for-58 from the floor (51 percent) and was a busy 13-for-28 at the line. The Norsemen out-rebounded the Pioneers 33-21, and Northland headed the busy turnover charts 25-17.

"We're playing better, but you're never satisfied with a loss," noted Krize. "We made too many unforced errors."

RLCC boys knock off Bears

Red Lake County Central recovered from early-game troubles to knock off Clearbrook-Gonvick 56-44 Friday in a boys high school basketball game played at Oklee.

The Mustangs started the game in a 16-2 hole. They were down 18-7 at the end of the first quarter, but pulled within 28-24 by halftime, went ahead 39-35 at the close of the third quarter and pulled away at the end.

"It started out really shaky," admitted Red Lake County Central coach Chris McLean. "They (Bears) like to push the tempo. I called a time out and told the kids that if we we tried to run with them, we were going to get beat. We really tried to slow the ball down, and that got us back in the game."

The Mustangs have struggled with their shooting much of the year, but they came up with a 50 percent 23-for-46 showing against the Bears. And they made 13 of 20 free throws.

Clearbrook-Gonvick, meanwhile, shot only 31 percent from the floor (18/57) and had a quiet 3-for-4 free throw game.

Red Lake County Central got big games from Nick Waldal, who scored 20 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, and Matt Bjerklie, who scored 19 points and pulled down 10 rebounds. Mark Lorenson joined them in double figures on the boards with 11 rebounds.

"The big key was our rebounding," noted McLean. "They didn't shoot the ball very well, and we were there for the rebounds. We didn't give them many second shots."

Jon Gerlofs led Clearbrook-Gonvick with 16 points.

It was the third straight win for the 6-11 Mustangs.

Gators' winning streak is ended

■ Red Lake beats Gators 79-64

Defending Section 8A champion Red Lake put together an attention-grabbing performance Saturday in a 79-64 boys high school basketball win over Badger/Greenbush-Middle River during the series of day-long match-ups at the annual Grand Forks Shoot-Out.

The loss snapped a nine-game win streak for the 14-4 Gators.

"We ran into a good basketball team," reported Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "They played good, disciplined basketball. They took good shots, and they made them."

The Gators led 11-10 before Red Lake went on a 13-1 run to take control. The winners had a 21-12 lead at the end of the first quarter, maintained a 41-22 halftime spread, had a 57-45 third quarter advantage, and sealed it with a 6-0 spurt early in the final quarter.

"We didn't play poorly," noted Sparby. "We went after them aggressively, but they handled everything we threw at them. I was very impressed with the way they played."

Gerald Kingbird of Red Lake led all scorers with 20 points and was joined in double figures by teammates Charlie Charnoski with 18 points, Kyle Garrigan 12 and Delwyn Holthusen 11. The Badger/Greenbush-Middle River offense featured Jeremy Vacura with 13 points, Daryl Wockenfuss 11 and Adam Holmes 10. Both the first and fourth quarter Red Lake runs occurred with Wockenfuss on the bench because of fouls.

RLCC girls beaten in overtime, 53-51

Jackie Ostenaa hit a 15-foot shot at the buzzer Thursday to give Win-E-Mac a dramatic 53-51 girls high school basketball win over visiting Red Lake County Central.

The Mustangs jumped out to a 21-9 first quarter lead, had a 35-20 halftime cushion and ended the third quarter with a 43-35 edge. But in the process they lost the services of center Angie Chervestad, who aggravated a back problem. She played only briefly in the first half and missed most of the fourth quarter and all of the overtime.

The two teams took turns trying to hold on to the ball for a final shot at the end of regulation time. The Patriots wound up missing two free throws with six seconds left, sending the game into overtime tied at 47-47.

"It was a pretty decent game," offered Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto, whose team shot 71 percent from the field in the first half (17/24), but just 28 percent after intermission (7/25). "We had the same shots, but they just weren't falling," he said.

Nicki Hole led a balanced Win-E-Mac offense with 14 points. Katie O'Neill scored a game-high 19 points for Red Lake County Central, with all of them coming in the first half.

For the game, Red Lake County Central was 24-for-49 from the field (49 percent) and a quiet 2-for-3 at the free throw line. Win-E-Mac went 22-for-49 from the floor (45 percent) and 6-for-11 at the line. The Mustangs finished with a 21-18 rebound edge, but they also had more turnovers, 21-18.

DNR NEWS

DNR Youth Summer Jobs

Applications are now being taken for the Department of Natural Resources Minnesota Conservation Corps summer program. Seventy positions are open for youth ages 15-18. They will work in crews to complete conservation projects.

Youth have the opportunity to live and work together for eight weeks at the MCC program site in St. Croix Park. In addition to the learning and educational components, participants can expect to work hard on labor-intensive projects. These projects include trail construction, erosion control, bridge building and campsite construction. Corps members will work around the state in parks, state and national forests, as well as other resource managed lands.

In addition to the work, the Corps members will learn about the environment and how it is managed. Corps members will take classes on career development, environmental topics, education planning and life skills development. On weekends, education members go on canoe trips, hike and participate in high adventure challenges.

Applications should enjoy working in an outdoor rustic environment. The summer conservation work program will start June 21 and run through Aug. 15. The MCC, which hires an equal number of males and females, encourages minority youth to apply. Twenty deaf and hard-of-hearing youth, who will work with deaf staff and trained sign language interpreters, will also be hired to work at the program.

Applications are due no later than April 17. To receive an application, write to the Minnesota Conservation Corps, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 5155-4004, or call 1-888-MINNDNR.

Thefts. David Allen Lopatowski, 21, Thief River Falls, has been charged with gross misdemeanor theft. The charge against Lopatowski stems from an investigation into the use of credit card numbers to make 1-900 calls. On February 5 at 12:24 p.m. the sheriff's department received a report of a snowmobile theft. A 1979 TX440 Polaris had been taken from the Hazel Elevator. Theft loss was estimated at $600.

Assault. On February 4 at 5:38 p.m. police received a report of a domestic situation. Ronald Parker Northup, 45, Thief River Falls, was cited for fifth degree assault. The female victim did not require hospital care.

On January 27 police received a report of a disagreement and fight between two juvenile females. A 15-year-old female was cited for disorderly conduct and assault, another 15-year-old female was cited for disorderly conduct.

Disorderly conduct. On January 23 some individuals were walking their dog. The dog was on a leash but got away and went after another dog which was loose in an individual's yard. An individual came out of the house with an SKS rifle and threatened to shoot the dog. The rifle was confiscated. John Drury, St. Hilaire, faces a charge of disorderly conduct.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Attempted murder charge filed against SD man

Jeremy Buchholz of Huron, SD, is being charged with attempted murder in the second degree and two counts of assault in the second degree following a struggle with police officers Saturday evening.

Jeremy Peter Buchholz, 23, Huron, SD, and Nathan Lee Jennewein, 24, of Thief River Falls, were arrested Saturday evening following a disturbance and fight at a local establishment on the south edge of Thief Rives Falls. Protective vests prevented two officers from serious injury after Buchholz allegedly struck the officers with a knife.

On February 7 at about 11 p.m. police received a report of a disturbance at a local establishment. Investigation revealed that bartenders had asked Buchholz and Jennewein to leave several times because they were being verbally abusive in the bar. They left the bar and got into a fight outside the bar. Police then arrived on the scene and Buchholz left the gathering. When asked to stop he began running across an open field. Eventually he stopped. At that time he struck an officer three times. A second officer was thrown to the ground. A third officer was struck but able to restrain Buchholz. As Buchholz was being restrained and arrested, Jennewein came up to the scene and began to become verbally abusive and argue with officers. Officers asked him to leave but he continued to cause a disturbance and was also arrested.

After the struggle officers confiscated a knife they observed on the ground. While at the law enforcement center two officers discovered that their vests and clothing had been slashed. They also discovered that Buchholz was wanted on a warrant out of Beadle County, SD, (Huron). The warrant was for violation of terms and conditions of a sentence for aggravated assault — non family assault with a gun.

Buchholz has been charged with two counts of assault in the second degree, punishable by seven years in prison, $14,000 or both; and with attempted murder in the second degree, punishable by 20 years in prison, $30,000 or both. Bond has been set at $50,000 cash or surety.

Jennewein has been charged with obstructing legal process, disorderly conduct, and fifth degree assault.

Three research wolves killed

Three wolves have been killed in two separate incidents near Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge. Both incidents remain under investigation.

One wolf was killed on approximately January 29 on the east side of Eckvoll Wildlife Management area. This male was the alpha or dominant male of the Golden Valley Pack that occupies the east side of the refuge. It appeared the wolf had been run over by a snowmobile near the edge of the state-owned Eckvoll Wildlife Management area that adjoins Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge. Researchers had been following this wolf since July 18, 1997. Its mate was the female wolf that was shot last November southeast of the refuge.

The other two wolves were shot on private land south of Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge. These wolves were killed on February 2. Both of these male wolves were radio-collared in August of 1997 as part of the Elm Lake Pack.

Both of these incidents are under investigation. People with information regarding these incidents are asked to call 218-720-5357, state conservation officer at 218-523-5131 or the Turn In Poachers hotline at 800-652-9093. Information will be kept confidential and callers can remain anonymous.

The fine for taking (killing) a threatened species within the United States is $25,000 and/or six months in federal prison. The radio-collared wolves are part of a research project at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge investigating how wolves use the refuge and surrounding lands and their role in livestock depredation in the surrounding area.

Two youths face charges after breaking windows

Two juvenile males face charges in juvenile proceedings following an investigation into vandalism at Marshall County Central by the Marshall County Sheriff's department.

On February 8, the Marshall County Sheriff's department received a report that several bus windows were broken. Upon investigation two juvenile males were identified. They now face charges in juvenile proceedings. The damage loss to the buses has not been determined.

Drug task force releases report

Paul Bunyan Narcotics Task Force seized drugs with a street value of over $400,000 last year.

The Paul Bunyan Narcotics Task Force is a special drug task force that operates in northwest Minnesota. Member counties of the Paul Bunyan Narcotics Task Force include Beltrami, Clearwater, Norman, Roseau, Hubbard, Cass, Wadena, Pennington and Red Lake. Each member county participates by providing operating funds, information, and officers to assist undercover operatives. For many years any discussion about the task force and its presence was closely guarded. This is the first year that a summary of the task force's activities has been released publicly.

Membership in the task force has varied from time to time, but it has been in operation since 1988. According to an arrest comparision released by the task force, arrests were down from about 150 in 1996 to 131 in 1997. The highest number of arrests were recorded in 1996.

Task force activity last year included 125 active investigations, execution of 53 warrants, 131 arrests, and six arrest warrants issued. It also resulted in the seizure of drugs with an estimated street value of $415,238.25. Those drugs included 61.85 grams of cocaine, an unlisted amount of crack, 686.92 ounces marijuana and 123 plants, 23.10 ounces of amphetamine or methamphetamine, and 66 mushrooms.

They also seized 12 handguns, 14 rifles, six shotguns, and three sawed-off shotguns.

Asset seizures, such as the seizure of vehicles and property, used in the commission of a crime, were also included in the report. According to the report, the task force seized 10 vehicles, $235,521 in currency, real property valued at $15,000, and weapons valued at $6,650.

According to Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe and Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser, the $235,000 in currency resulted from one case in Cass County and it hasn't been turned over to the task force yet. In all, the task force's share of the forfeitures currently totals $14,506. According to Moe and Froschheiser, 70 percent of an asset forfeiture goes to law enforcement, 20 percent to the prosecuting attorney, and 10 percent to the state.

Other income to the task force included fines of $5,088.50, which again is a portion of the total.

Moe and Froschheiser said these funds are turned over to the task force to help continue operations.

Both Moe and Froschheiser are very pleased with the results of the task force, and believe the county is receiving "quite a bang for its buck."

Of the 131 arrests made by the task force, 45 occurred in Beltrami, 30 in Pennington county, 15 in Hubbard, 14 in Roseau county, eight in Cass county, five in Red Lake and Clearwater counties, three in Norman county, and two in Wadena.

Froschheiser noted that Pennington county is second highest among the participants because of the work that's being done in Pennington county — not necessarily because the county has a drug problem worse than any other county. He credited his officers, especially Investigator Tim Miller, for the work that resulted in so many arrests.

Froschheiser and Moe believe that being a participant in the task force is a definite advantage. Froschheiser explained that the task force doesn't have to stop at jurisdictional lines, since it has been invited to operate in several counties, whereas local officers have to stop at jurisdictional lines. Moe and Froschheiser also believe they would not have the all resources they need to successfully investigate drug crimes without participating in the task force.

Esther Rulkowski spent most of her life in Gully, was born here and lived here much of the time, but the time arrived when it wasn't good for her to live alone. Several years ago she moved to Fosston to the First Care Nursing Home. Esther was interested in people and relationships and likes to visit. So right away she became involved in activities and projects and seemed happy having people to visit with. Her birthday didn't change dates with her moving and soon Friday, the 30th, some of us decided to drive over to Fosston to share her day. Esther Thorson, another resident, joined us in the birthday corner. Alice Forsberg baked and decorated a birthday cake. We spent a fun time visiting and enjoying cake and coffee. Friends of Esther that were there were Luverne Fore, Alice Forsberg, Sanna Brovold, Delores Ringstad and the other Esther. We plan to be back next year if the weather and roads are this good.

Larry and Beverly Forsberg and Clifford and Carrlon Strande visited at the Harry Watnemo home this past week.

The Lund Congregation held their annual meeting on Sunday after the 9:30 service. Robert Carlson cooked coffee and had sweet rolls for us before the meeting. When officers do a good job we like to see them continue and many were re-elected. The officers now are Lonnie Carlson, President, Nancy Lee, Vice President, Patty Carlson, Financial Secretary, Luverne Fore, Treasurer; Noreen Carlson, Secretary. Elmer Halverson and Marvin Berg, Trustees, Cory Carlson, Alice Forsberg and Vivian Rikji, Deacons.

Frank and wife Sara Forsberg of Buffalo spent this weekend here with his folks, Kenneth and Alice Forsberg. On Saturday evening they and other friends and relatives met at Angelina's Supper Club with Gene and Barbara Peterson of Bagley to help Gene celebrate his birthday. On Sunday Frank and Sarah brought her mother, Emma Therbuck over to Gully for dinner.

Voice Of Democracy State Winner Advances

Noelle Smoley of Cold Spring, a senior at Rocori high school, won the Minnesota Veterans of Foreign Wars "Voice of Democracy" contest and will advance to national competition in Washington, DC. She read her speech at the Midwinter Conference of the VFW and her speech was published in the Gopher Oversea'r, the official publication of the state organization.

We believe the thoughts expressed in Noelie's speech deserve as wide a hearing as possible, and therefore are reprinting the speech as our guest editorial for today:

MY VOICE IN OUR DEMOCRACY
by Noelle Smoley

Within music, there is melody. Within painting, there is spirit. Within writing, there is cause. Within voice, there is power, the power of my voice. This power is possessed by the singer, the painter the writer, the politician, the senior citizen, the man, the woman, the child. This voice was founded on the bedrock of our American culture, traced out within the poetic penmanship of the Constitution, and has, throughout history and modern times, dramatically affected the fate of the world.

Fundamental to the survival of democracy is the principle that all people, regardless of race, sex, age, religion, or sexual proclivity, have a voice which they may exercise unimpeded. While other countries unceasingly attempt to curtail the voice of their people in pursuit of power, our democracy has struggled to safeguard it. This principle was based on the realization that the voice is the ultimate power source, and without it, society would endure as a wasteland of untouched canvases.

I, as an American, can be comfortable with the knowledge that I have the power to pursue, with my voice, what is important to me. I have the power to submit a bill which may become law and perhaps save money or even lives. I have the power to cast a vote which may elect the official who makes a difference in my community, state, or nation. I have the power to paint a picture which could inspire a person to be optimistic among seemingly hopeless times. I have the power to write a song that supports a cause which may perhaps change a set standard. I have the power to publish my opinion which could influence others to see a different point of view.

From the establishment of a speed limit, saving money and lives, to the novels of Mark Twain illustrating the incorrectness of society, to the music of John Denver expressing a concern for conservation and peace, the voice has defined and enriched our democracy, bringing the United States even closer to an ideal state. Our democracy allows one voice to function as the catalyst for refinement by collaborating with many voices, contrasting with different voices, and uniting with all voices. History has proven time and time again that the voice of one person has the power to check, and conceivably mend, the imperfections of society.

Rosa Parks remains a heroine to the black community for using her voice as a cry for freedom, and motivated others to follow her lead. Margaret Sander has effectively improved the condition of society by establishing the legalization of birth control and increasing respect for women. Upton Sinclair's The Jungle, exposed the adverse condition and indecency of the workplace in the 1900's, which led to the establishment of The Pure Food and Drug Act and inspection policies.

The brush of the painter, the hands of the sculptor, the pen of the writer, the articulation of the speaker, the crying of the child, is the breaking of the silence that binds us to the safety of being, and rises up against the soaring summits of life, risking pain, criticism, and even rejection that will, with a hard fought battle, in the end, bestow on the nation the prevailing values of truth, honor, and justice.

My voice bears power as well, which has the capacity to choose the colors from the palate of our democracy, to pain the landscape of the human spirit, perfecting, enhancing, and advancing the distinctive society in which we live. This is my voice in our democracy.

It May Be Electronic, But It Won't Be Debate

A group called Minnesota E-Democracy has announced what it calls an electronic debate involving 11 candidates for Minnesota governor. To be conducted via the Internet, the free-for-all will begin February 9 and continue February 11, 13, 16, 18 and 20.

Political debates—real debates—can tell the public a lot about the candidates. Their ability to respond to challenges, to think quickly, to control emotions, to make their points can give voters an idea of how they will perform under duress. The spontaneity of responses is what makes political debate interesting.

The idea of having questions asked and responded to in the morning and responses given in the evening over a period of nearly two weeks may be fine from the standpoint of providing information about the candidates, but it isn't debate.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Last May we had to go to court in Marshall county because our 12-year-old son was skipping too many days of school. A social worker from Marshall County Social Services brought our case to court. Since I'm not sure we can use this worker's real name, I will call her "Jane."

At court, "Jane" wanted a social worker to come to our house once a week for counseling. We agreed, and one has been coming to our house once a week since last June.

In September our son started classes at the same school. He had the same teachers and refused to listen to them or do his work. In October "Jane" brought us back to court and wanted our son sent to Thistledew for a three-week program. There were no school classes there, so he missed that much time in school.

He returned to school with the attitude to do his best, but failed the first quarter. We were back in court in December. "Jane" called and said she wanted our son placed in a satellite home in Roseau. We disagreed, because the only days he missed from school were when he was at Thistledew or in court. We decided to let him move in with his grandmother and attend school in her town.

We told the school the problems he was having in his last school and were told this school had someone in each class to help students when needed. We thought this was great.

He started this school on December 10 and told his grandmother he liked the school and the teachers. "Jane" called the new school to let them know how much trouble our son was having in his other school and the principal said she did not want trouble in her school. "Jane" took us back to court on December 23, after our son had gone to the new school for only eight days. We didn't feel this was a long enough time for him to get on track.

I called the social worker's supervisor and she also said she didn't feel it was a long enough time, and that "Jane" had also told her this. In court we asked for more time and "Jane" and her lawyer said they would agree to two more weeks. Because of Christmas vacation, this would mean he would only be in school one more day—a total of only nine days.

Our last court date was January 27, when we were able to tell the judge we didn't feel our son had been given enough time in this school. The judge said he would give us his decision in a week.

On January 30 at 9 a.m. "Jane" called and asked if we had heard from the court. We had not. She said she had and that our son was going to the foster home on Monday, February 2, and she would pick him up. We told her that if he had to go there we would bring him there.

I am writing this letter on Monday morning, February 2, and we still haven't received any court order. Why would social services hear from the court and not the parents?

I thought social services were to help keep families together. This social worker has been trying her hardest to get our son sent away, even if he has shown a big improvement in his attitude in school and is trying hard to improve.

We would like to know how other people feel about our situation. Would you bring your child to this foster home without a court order? Do you feel he has been given enough time since moving in with his grandmother and attending a new school? Has anyone else had problems with "Jane?" We would like to hear your comments.

Thank you.

To The Editor:

A message to last week's letter writer Scott Novak:

I sympathize with you in the loss of your dog "Blue" and shame on those who hit him and did not have the courtesy to knock on your door to inform you. Be thankful, though, that they did not leave him on the road to be hit again. There are so many uncaring folks that leave both domestic and wild animals in the road and never look back.

I must say, though, that I am sure they did not come into your yard and hit "Blue," so he must have been on the road where he should not have been and due to poor training on your part. If he needed to be kenneled while you work, what made you think he could run free while you slept, both instances being unsupervised.

I must say letting a dog run free in an unfenced yard within 50 feet of a roadway is a sure sign that although he may have been man's best friend, you were not his. Surely you would not let your kids run in the yard while you nap.

Too bad for "Blue" you learned a lesson at his expense and he may also have been saved if you had been awake to rush him to the vet, as maybe he only had enough in him to crawl to the ditch. Please take better care of your next "man's best friend" and do not chastise others for your lack of responsibility.

Sincerely,
Roberta Stelton
Owner of five of man's or woman's best friends.

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

50 YEARS AGO • FEBRUARY 5, 1947

by Jerome and Donna Myhrer

Huge Gathering At Elks Banquet

"Nearly 400 men and boys were guests of the local Elks lodge Wednesday evening at their annual Fathers and Sons banquet in the municipal auditorium. Kern Olson officiated as toastmaster. Following the invocation by Tom Peck, group singing was led by Walt Larson and piano and accordion selections were supplied respectively by Harold Harrison and Bob Sjulestad. Dickie and Bruce Robertson, with Dad Robertson as referee, put on a boxing exhibition which was one of the main highlights on the entertainment schedule for the evening."

Bantam Hen Hatches Out Three Chicks in -20 Degree Weather

"Undeterred by 20-below-zero weather, a small Bantam hen belonging to Melvin Hamre of the Mavie community hatched out three chicks in a cow barn January 21, it was learned here this week. Hamre took pity on the chicks and is now keeping them in the house."

Mid-Week Lenten Rites Scheduled For Each Wednesday

"'Pictures of the Passion' is the title of the series of Mid-Week Lenten sermons scheduled for every Wednesday evening at 8:00 p.m. at Trinity Lutheran church. Rev. G. S. Thompson, pastor of the church, announced today that each sermon in the series of informal services will be based upon a scene which will be shown on a screen in the church and will be printed in color for distribution to all who attend.

"At the conclusion of the seven services, a fine reproduction of Sallman's 'Head of Christ' will be given all who have attended all of the services. The picture, suitable for framing, is recognized as one of the finest and most sensitive portrayals of the Saviour.

"Following are the seven pictures and names of the artists: 'Christ at Heart's Door' by Sallman; 'Praying Hands' by Durer; 'Christ in Gethsemane' by Hoffman; 'Christ before Pilate' by Munkcasy; 'Christ on Calvary' by Munkcasy; 'Holy Woman at the Tomb' by Ender; and 'The Last Supper' by Da Vinci."

County Board Requests Highway Patrolmen Here

"The Pennington county board at a brief February session Tuesday adopted a resolution requesting Highway Commissioner M. J. Hoffman to station two members of the state highway patrol in Thief River Falls in the event that approximately 30 men are added to the patrol as contemplated. At present this area is served by patrolmen stationed in Crookston and Roseau."

Local Church To Dedicate Chimes Sunday Evening

"A special service of dedication for the new organ chimes and the new chancel arrangement in the Community Methodist church will be held at 8:00 p.m. Sunday, February 8, with the Rev. A. A. Stave of Fergus Falls, district superintendent, in charge. The new Maas chimes, consisting of 21 individual chimes, were installed in the church shortly before Christmas. At the same time the chancel of the church was rearranged."

"Registered borrowers increased from 5,542 at the start of 1947 to 5,826 on December 31, this number including 2,589 adult and 3,237 juvenile borrowers. In addition to its other functions, the institute serves 37 rural schools in Pennington county."

The following day a sleighload of participants and patrons journeyed to the sectional 'meet' of the Starlight Circle, where a hard fought battle took place. One of our pupils won by a close margin. We are 'rolling 'em up for further battle.'

"We are enjoying a good average attendance.

"The sectional spelling contest was enthusiastically attended and much 'peptimism' was shown. The parents showed a great interest, one taking part in the written spelling test. We are glad to note the 'Home Fires' so active.

"Some very excellent work was exhibited. Annie Rindahl, first, and Lillian Loylan, second, carried away the honors of the occasion. – Secretary."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Editorial comments from the files of Norm A. Halen

—If you want an excuse for celebrating next week, you might bear in mind that it's National Boy Scout Week.

—They tell about the fellow who gave his wife a cigaret lighter bearing the inscription "To My Matchless Wife."

—Times are really getting tough. Snuff is now selling for 15 cents a box.

—A lot of folks will ponder the item in a Minneapolis paper last week to the effect that the four-year Marshall Plan calls for shipping more than $900,000,000 worth of tobacco to Europe.

—Conditions are spotty over in Grand Rapids. An epidemic of measles has hit the town.

—That fuel oil shortage has been of little benefit to manufacturers of oil burners.

—Wes Meyer of the Detroit Lakes Tribune has received the suggestion that the service rendered by the Swedish surgeon who was called to Russia was to operate on Molotov's "Noes."

—Often, we read, it is the absent member of the bridge club who receives the most grand slams.

—President Truman is adding a balcony to the White House. He evidently doesn't intend to give up his lease on the place for some time yet.

—Protect the birds, they tell us. The dove brings peace and the stork brings tax exemptions.

—The only thing that's down in these inflated days is the stuff on a goose.

—Human nature, says an Iowa editor, is what makes you swear at a pedestrian when you are driving, and makes you swear at a driver when you are walking.

FROM THE NEW CITY

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER • FEBRUARY 10, 1898
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

IN RE MR. BERGH
The News now Rests its Case With the People

"The following was published in the last week's issue of THE PRESS:

"'The editor of THE NEWS in the issue of January 27, as I understand it, admits that he lied but says the admission is for the sake of argument. This I do not think is right. I think he should admit it for truth's sake. He did not truthfully state the number who stopped the paper. Simle & Locken, Swenson & Bothum, O. P. Johnson, K. Jorstad and others should have been on that list. These are not candidates for appointment to office. Thus we see he continues to deceive.
– P. O. Bergh.'

"As will be seen, Mr. Bergh fails to make any reference to the proposition which was published in THE NEWS. We do not care to argue with him regarding this matter and if he is so sure that he is telling the truth why doesn't he accept our proposition and have the grand jury investigate the matter? It is something that should be settled by a jury and not in the newspapers.

"Regarding the people who stopped their papers, we will state for the benefit of Mr. Bergh, as he seems to be more interested in that matter than anything else just now, that Simle & Locken gave as their reason for stopping THE NEWS 'that they could not afford to take it any longer;' Swenson & Bothum, 'that they are going to dissolve the partnership and go to Alaska;' O. P. Johnson's reason is not known, but we understand it was for a different cause; K. Jorstad is still a subscriber to THE NEWS; and the 'others should have been on the list' is a lie. This includes every person that stopped THE NEWS since January 1. We will also state that since THE NEWS has been under its present management, a period of about six months, over 100 new subscribers have been added to its list and that it is weekly read by a majority of the people in Red Lake county.

"And now, Mr. Bergh, when you have the required courage to try titles with us before the grand jury, we will meet you halfway. Until then, it will be better for you to remain silent and make the most of the humiliating position you find yourself in. The mud that is being thrown by your stooled pigeons in no way affects us and we believe that in time it will splash back in the faces of the authors."

All being comfortably seated, the refreshments were served which consisted of pie and milk. Many were the attempts, and failures about the same number, by the gents having the luxury of a heavy mustache, trying to appease his appetite with a piece of lemon pie without soiling that much admired part of facial beauty. Mrs. Willie Prestegaard of Thief River Falls was a caller at the home of Floyd and Wavell Sorenson's home on Tuesday. Saturday visitors at the home of Amelia Eskell were her daughter Karen and Lowell Johnson of New York Mills.

Happy Birthday Brother

On Tuesday Idella Rewertz, Ruth Wilken, Sherry Wilkens, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Yonke, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Swanson helped Idella's brother Allen Hanson celebrate his birthday. His party was held at the River Road Casino. Many more happy birthdays Allen!

Myrl and Bernice Vettleson and Lloyd and Wavell Sorenson left January 5th for three and a half weeks South. It was a snowy blustery day and slippery roads through Kansas. Their first stop was Yankton, SD to see Pastor Kirsten Frentsvog, former pastor at Salem Lutheran of rural Oklee. Say "Hi" to all my friends. Their second stop was Greensburg, Kansas to see the Largest Hand Dug Well. The people looked miniature way down there on the bottom. January 8 and 9 they stayed at Benson, Arizona with Neil and Margarete Carruther. (Bernice's brother) They toured a new home made out of adobe bricks and saw how it was done. It was very interesting. They also visited Neil and Margarete's son Edward and wife Mary Lou. They toured Tombstone, known for its O.K. Corral, gun fights, Western souvenir shops and graveyard. January 10th on their way to Quartzsite, Arizona to see Wavell's uncle and aunt, Earl and Angie Marquis, (snow birds from Goodridge.) Wavell's cousin Brian and Mona (Marquis) and Jared Solberg also visitors from Goodridge. They also saw Wavell's uncle Lester Race and friend (snow birds from Texas.) He lives in Minneapolis. They met so many great people, and couldn't believe all the thousands of campers, rocks, dirt and cactus. McDonald's was busting with music jams (Gospel and Oldtime) every evening. Myrl and Bernice continued on to Jamas and Maggie Lokvas at Parker, Arizona. Myrl used to work in Arizona for many years. January 18th Kenneth and Doris (Gorardy) Laliberte came from Mesa and got them for four days. They visited snow birds Art and Gloria Fossum from Plummer, Wally Moe of Trail, Arvin Sundby and Yvonne Stephens from Karlstad, as well as, Odell and Marge Braaten (Lloyd's cousin) from Fargo. January 20th Lloyd and Wavell were overnight guests of Glen and Judy Falk at Quartzsite, Arizona, snow birds from Kalliher. They also visited with Bernice Bergot (snow bird from Oklee.) January 21 Lloyd and Wavell took a bus to Anaheim, California to see Kern and Alice Tillman, Brandon, Mark, Pam, Joanette, Jeffrey, Jacob and Jared Tillman. They toured the Crystal Cathedral and Dana Point and Laguna Beach. It was a very fun day. In the evening Mike and Mary Ellen Flannery from Agoura, CA came down and Kern and Alice entertained supper for all. January 24th Lloyd and Wavell went to Fullerton, CA to see three great-aunts, Hattie Lux and Ann Siebart at a nursing home. They saw Mayme Loomis at her home and cousin Audrey Wagner. January 26th on their return trip they stopped to see the London Bridge at Lake Havasu City, Arizona. Rev. A.B. and Evelyn Haline at Scandia, Kansas. (Formerly from Goodridge Lutheran Church.) He married Lloyd and Wavell. Hi to all! January 29th their last stop was Fargo, Moorhead and they were supper guests of Roger and Sharon Vettleson (Myrl and Bernice's nephew.) They had a great time and saw snow in every state but Arizona and California.

January 28th Gerald and John Siebert from Noshkoro, Wisconsin arrived and were house guests of Tom, Rebecca, Tricia and Todd Willott. Gerald is Wavell's uncle and John, her cousin.

January 30th Tony and Sheila Gorardy entertained Gerald and John Siebert of Noshkoro, WI, Willie Prestegaard of Thief River Falls, Lloyd and Wavell Sorenson, Karl, Rita, Kassandra, John, Jeffery and Karleigh Sorenson, Tom Rebecca, Tricia and Todd Willott, and Mallory, Brett and Abigail Gorardy.

News From Effie

Greetings to all of our friends on the home front. We're glad you've had a fairly mild winter and hope there's no return of last year's cold and snow. Here in Texas, the cold snaps have not come so often either and the time is going rapidly by. Today, January 25th, we had our Minnesota dinner attended by about 140 people from our park. We are getting better acquainted each year and enjoyed it very much. My favorite activities are choir, group sewing of tale bags for crippled children's hospitals, shuffleboard games and visiting. Bunnie shuffles even more and occasionally goes fishing in our little lake. This past week has brought us company. On Thursday cousins Sandie and Lonnie Wood, who winter at Hidalgo and work at Border Mission, came for supper and the evening. On Friday we welcomed Penn Milligan of Plummer, and Pat and Earl Collins of Corpus Christi, Texas. We enjoyed showing them our park and having supper here at our home. On Saturday we had breakfast at their nearby motel, after which, we took them to Harlingen to visit the Iwo Jima Memorial. We then drove out to South Padre Island together, another fine day, before they returned to Corpus Christi. Penn will soon be going to Florida to spent the rest of the winter with daughter Sharon and family. See you all in the spring.

Hollyhocks Met

On Tuesday the Hollyhocks home study club met at the home of Edna Hyde in Plummer. Chairman Lorna Nielson called the meeting to order and Secretary Rosemary Eskell, Treasurer Glenna Gagner and Councilor Kathy Juneau gave the reports. After the meeting some of the gals showed some of the crafts they are making or have made since Christmas. And all had fun showing old eye glasses that the gals have kept through the years. Edna served a nice lunch and we all embellished paper bags for the craft of the month.

Wavell Sorensen had a very nice visit with Emily Skjorven.

Gully

There have been a lot of sad messages lately – Last week we heard of the death of Stanford Anderson of Trail; he was only 61 years old. Stanford was born in Trail, the son of Oscar and Gertrude (Kolshus) Anderson of Trail. He grew up and attended school in Trail. He served in the U.S. Army and returned to Trail where he married Patsy Woods. They lived in Rockford, Illinois for some time where he worked for Chrysler Corporation. He retired a year ago and moved "back home" to Trail in November of 1997. Too bad he wasn't permitted to enjoy the home territory and friends very long. On Saturday, January 24th he said "farewell" and rests among "home folks" in the Sand Valley Cemetery at Trail.

The Lund Ladies Aid Quilters were busy at Lund in Gully on Monday. The quilt we finished two weeks ago had been sold so we finished another one that's for sale. The scissors were clicking and the machines were "whirring" in case we should get another sold spell. We also made some "lap robes." Those that worked on Monday were Alice Forsberg, Luverne Foro, Vivian Rikje, Millie Brovold, Mary Borg and Sanna Brovold.

Criminal calls	812	918	826
Total	6,546	6,607	6,561

County crime statistics show decline in many areas

Criminal and miscellaneous calls to the Pennington County Sheriff's department dropped slightly during 1997, according to statistics recently released by the sheriff's department.

Nearly all categories showed a decline in 1997, said Sheriff Gerald Moe.

There were only a few categories that showed increases. Juvenile arrests showed a significant increase jumping from 77 in 1996 to 124 in 1997. Traffic complaints, criminal sexual conduct complaints, and disorderly related complaints also increased. Total arrests, dropped from 918 in 1996 to 812 in 1997. The number of incidents dropped from 670 in 1996 to 607 in 1997. Adult arrests dropped from 482 to 420. Juvenile arrests, however, increased significantly as already noted. Most of the increase can be attributed to arrests for liquor violations, runaways, and thefts.

Miscellaneous calls increased, but only slightly from 5,689 in 1996 to 5,734 in 1997. Increases were observed in officer traffic stops, lost property, calls for assistance, attempts to locate individuals, stalled autos, court orders, and transports. Some of the decreases observed in calls included calls due to accidents, alarm responses, dog and animal calls, jail related calls, protection orders, and subpoenas.

Permits to purchase guns increased from 32 to 42. In 1995 gun permits to purchase were 41. Permits to carry increased from 21 to 26.

Total traffic violations increased from 140 to 144. The largest increases was observed in the issuance of speeding violations (48 to 80). Some of the decreases were observed in issuance of open bottle violations, no insurance, and driving after revocation.

Persistent problems regarding checks and the passing of bad checks in Pennington county continued to climb in 1997. Statistics show that the sheriff's department received 2,083 bad checks in 1997, which compares to 1,876 in 1996. The total dollars of these checks increased from $96,873 to $102,833. The county's collection rate jumped from 89 percent in 1996 to 91 percent in 1997.

The total number of people jailed increased from 681 to 710 in 1997. The total number of days those individuals served, however, decreased from 7,926 to 7,747.

More money was collected in 1997 from prisoners serving their time on Huber (work release) privileges. The total amount of money collected to cover their cost of incarceration increased from $31,315 to $36,311.

More money was collected from housing prisoners from other counties. This statistic has fluctuated wildly in the past three years. In 1995, the county collected $80,334 from other counties. In 1996 they collected only $9,420. In 1997, it increased to $27,162.

While the county received more money for housing out-of-county prisoners, it also paid out more for housing. In 1996 it paid out $2,026. In 1997, that total increased to $4,900.

New director at VIP

Denise Sevigny became the executive director of the Violence Intervention Project (VIP) in Thief River Falls January 2. VIP offers 13 advocacy programs including sexual assault, domestic violence, child advocacy, a family visitation center and supportive housing services to the seven-county region of Northwestern Minnesota.

Sevigny's immediate goals are to focus on client services, funding concerns and a proposed building project. Sevigny said although she feels challenged, she does not feel overwhelmed. "My highest priority is now, and will remain the delivery of high-quality services. Continuing to strengthen partnerships between law enforcement, the judiciary, and the community are also high on my list of commitments."

Her prior experience at the North Dakota Small Business Development Center afforded a smooth transition to VIP. "At the North Dakota SBDC, we had a lead center and five regional centers with single staff members. Similarly, VIP has one main office and several single-staffed satellite offices. Issues and availability of services vary from county to county. All counties offer advocacy services for battered women, children and victims of sexual assault with criminal justice intervention services available in Polk and Pennington counties."

In addition to adjusting to her responsibilities as director, Sevigny is becoming acquainted with the area. "I'm impressed with Thief River Falls and the other communities in this region. Because I have experience in economic development, I'm always interested in knowing what defines a community or region. Although the region has many positives, we can't ignore that domestic violence and sexual assault occur here. We can, however, work together to make our communities safer places to live."

The organization offers 13 advocacy programs, including sexual assault, domestic violence, child advocacy, a family visitation center and supportive housing services to the seven-county region of Northwestern Minnesota.

Flood guages installed near Thief River Falls

Flood gages near Thief River Falls will be installed or improved. Arlo Rude, superintendent of utilities, reported to the city council Tuesday night that two gages will be improved or installed near Thief River Falls by the State of Minnesota Department of Public Safety.

A memo from the Department of Public Safety explained that the improvements include installing 39 new and upgrading five existing gages at key locations in 25 flood prone watershed. They will provide new information that will improve flood forecasting and warning capability. Each gage will be equipped with both telephone and satellite telemetry, to provide real time information to the National Weather Service, local officials, and other agencies. The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has committed to providing up to $50,000 annually for system maintenance and equipment replacement. The project leveraged over $640,000 in federal funds and close to $300,000 in state funds. The project is scheduled to be completed by September 30, 1998.

As a benefitted community, the city is expected to regularly inspect gages and perform light maintenance if needed, develop a new, or update as necessary, an all-hazard emergency operations plan; disseminate information to residents as to flood mitigation actions they might want to take as well as the city's flood response procedure; and maintain a phone line to the gage and cover the associated monthly charges (only if immediate warnings from the gage are desired).

Rude explained that one gage would be installed about two miles north of Thief River Falls on the Thief River. A second gage would be improved below the dam. It hasn't been determined where to place the gage.

■ The city council has approved a request to serve as the fiscal agent for the Multi-Events Cultural Center Joint Powers Board. Paul Ihle, city attorney, explained that the fund would be a repository of donations to the project. It's a control issue. The city was the recommended fiscal agent, because the college and school district feared that funds donated to those entities would end up in state hands and the property purchased with the funds owned by the state. Acting as the fiscal agent would not require the state to hire anyone or approve contracts. In addition, the city could withdraw at any time.

The council approved the request but only for Phase I of the project.

Sara Sundby wins spelling bee Tuesday

"Evaporation...thermal...equinox ...indecisively...misconception... inefficient...gorgeous...appropriate...preliminary...warily...spectacles...disintegration...agility...reassurance...constellation...concussion...synthetic...conglobe...uncooperative...chromosphere...celestial ...scruples...satellite...privilege..."

Eighth graders Sara Sundby and Adam Knott correctly spelled the above words in alternate order in head-to-head competition as the two surviving spellers in the School District 564 spelling bee Tuesday afternoon at Franklin middle school. The other contestants from fifth through eighth grade had already been given a word they could not spell and been eliminated from the contest.

"Obstetrician." For the first time in the contest Adam hesitated, then misspelled. Sara correctly spelled that word and the next—"lunge"—to be declared the winner. It was the 146th word pronounced during the spelling bee which opened with 31 correct spellings before a word was missed.

Sara is the daughter of Todd and Diane Sundby and Adam is the son of Glen and Donna Knott. Both students will advance to the regional spelling bee to be conducted Saturday, March 14, at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Meri Jo Paschke, media specialist at Franklin, was spelling bee coordinator and opened the bee with an introduction of the pronouncer and judges and a presentation of the rules.

Pronouncing the words was Loiell Dyrud, instructor at Lincoln high school. Judges were Carol Tranby and Jane Miller, instructors at Challenger elementary school, and Marvin Lundin, editor of The Times.

Other contestants who gained advancement to the district spelling bee through competition among their grades were the following:

Grade 5—Joshua Rantanen, Danielle Martin, Harlina Carpenter, Jenna Dillon and Ali Kalsness;

Grade 6—Emily Passey, Jordan Bauer, Daren Moen, Michelle Radloff, Ashley Morkrid and Katie Solberg;

Grade 7—Lance Pearson, Tiffany Sorenson, Andrea Stinson, Kate Levinson, Frannie Mann and Preston Johnson;

Grade 8—Sarah Willis, Alicia Borneman, Rebekah Solem and Bethany Brown.

Spelling Bee winners for School District 564 are Sara Sundby, first place and Adam Knott, second place. Both are eighth graders at Franklin middle school and both will advance to the regional spelling bee Saturday, March 14, at Northland Community and Technical College. The district spelling bee was conducted Tuesday afternoon, February 10, in the Franklin cafeteria with qualifying spellers from grades five through eight competing.

increase in the wastewater rates. The proposal was presented to the council in early January. Basically, the two-year proposal calls for both a usage charge increase and service charge increase. In the first year, service charges are expected to decrease. Usage charges, however, increase from $ 35 per 1,000 gallons to $ 65 per 1,000 gallons. The 1998 rate increase is anticipated to generate an additional $50,000 for operation and maintenance. The 1999 proposal proposes to increase usage charges from $ 65 per 1,000 gallons to $ 86 per 1,000 gallons. Service charges are also expected to increase. The 1999 rate change is anticipated to raise $140,000 for financing a construction project at the wastewater ponds.

Rude also notified the council that changes would be taking place in taxes appearing on citizen's utility bills.

It was explained that some new regulations require the city to impose a tax on every bill. Instead of the six and one-half percent tax and $2 annual charge, the utility department now has to charge a nine and one-half percent tax on residential bills and 17 percent tax on commercial property.

■ An allocation of $2,500 to the community band for 1998 was approved by the council. The band is directed by Les Torgerson. In a memo to the council, Torgerson explained that about 70 musicians participated in the band last year. Average membership sits at over 50. These musicians range in age of 17 to over 70 and come from Thief River Falls and many other communities. They participate in a number of concerns both in town and out of town and help support the High School Honor Band and Choir Festivals held in Thief River Falls. This summer, the band will embark on a particularly ambitious project. They have been selected, through an audition, to represent the United States in the Community and Military Band Division at the International Music Festival to be held in Sydney, Australia. Torgerson did request $5,000 from the council, but the council felt that due to budget constraints it could only approve $2,500.

In other business, the council: approved hiring of John Houske to fill the city mechanics position; approved the allocation of $1,600 of FEMA reimbursed funding to the volunteer fire relief association for the purchase of fire department equipment; approved a request to advertise for a volunteer firefighter to fill a vacant position; approved a salary progression raise for Teresa Mattison; approved a salary progression raise for Mark Bieganek; authorized advertising for bids on plastic garbage bags; approved a progression raise for Kem Larson; approved an agreement between Jobs Inc. and the city for calendar year 1998; approved a premise permit renewal application for a Class A gambling license for the Elks Club; approved a beer in the park permit at Oakland Park for the Elk's Club on August 16; approved a pull tab license renewal application by the VFW.

Random Acts of Kindness Week was observed at Franklin Middle School in Thief River Falls February 9-12. The purpose of the event was to promote activities emphasizing positive self-worth and empathy for others. On Wednesday, the seventh grade Respect Team served hot chocolate and cookies to the staff. Above, Kate Levinson and Maggie Stock make sure there are enough treats for the staff.

Organ donation is a welcome "Gift of Life"

by Kathi Carlson
The Times Reporter

You are exhausted. You were awake all night — waiting . . . watching . . . hoping . . . praying.

You gaze at the person lying in the bed next to your chair. Only yesterday he was so full of life. Today, he lies deathly still. The only noise in the room is the rhythmic drone of machines, one of them breathing for your loved one.

Soon, the machines will be turned off. Just moments ago you were told that the person you love is already gone.

Strangers enter the room and begin to speak. They are saying something about organ donation. Your mind is in a trance-like state. You can barely understand the words being spoken, and yet you realize that they are asking you to make a decision — a decision you don't feel able to make. You've never thought about organ donation before. Is this what he would want?

This sounds like a bad dream, and yet, a similar nightmare is faced by someone somewhere every day. Communication between loved ones could have made that final decision much easier to make.

Indicating your wishes on a donor card or driver's license is the first step to becoming an organ donor. However, it is not enough. Once the personal commitment is made, you need to share your wishes with your family. It is the next-of-kin who will see that your wishes are carried out.

During 1997, organ donation provided a second chance at life for more than 500 people in the three-state region. A total of 150 individuals who died in the region became organ donors, up slightly from 1996.

"The generosity of donor families in our region made it possible to save or enhance many more lives than the actual number of organ donors might indicate," said LifeSource Executive Director Susan Gunderson. "A single donor may be able to save eight lives by donating heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, pancreas and intestine. LifeSource is a non-profit, federal-designated organ procurement organization for the upper Midwest, the states of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

January statistics provided by LifeSource show that more than 56,000 individuals are waiting for an organ, a 12 percent increase from one year ago. In Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, the waiting list last month included the names of nearly 1,300 individuals. Many of these individuals are in critical condition.

A LifeSource survey indicated that 92 percent of the public in the Midwest support organ donation. Forty-two percent of the respondents, however, have not made a personal decision about being an organ donor. Of the 58 percent of respondents who have made a decision on organ transplant, 92 percent have shared their decision with their families. According to Gunderson, "This research tells us that our public education message is hitting home."

Gary Rux of Thief River Falls delivers that message "whenever, wherever someone will listen," he says.

Ten years ago this month Rux was diagnosed with a virus that had attacked his heart. He was placed on the waiting list for a heart transplant in November of 1990 and received a heart on November 15, 1992, his dad's birthday.

Today, five years later, 44-year-old Gary works hard and plays hard, putting about 60 hours into his insurance business in four days and then fishing for three days. He is accompanied on his outings by his two-year-old grandson, Aron, and Gary is quick to mention that without his transplant and a second chance at life, he never would have known this precious little boy.

As a LifeSource volunteer, Rux also makes time to speak to high school groups, service organizations, medical professionals, the media — "anyone who will listen," he says.

While he doesn't keep track of the number of hours he spends advocating organ donation because they vary from year to year, Gary says he speaks "a lot," and adds "I have never turned anyone down, and I have never asked for anything in return."

Rux tells his own story and will say anything or do anything to emphasize the importance of organ donation. "I've gone so far as to unbutton my shirt and show them the scar on my chest," he said. He then stresses the importance of telling your next of kin what your wishes are with regard to organ donation. "There is no legal document that will prevail. You can carry a donor card, have it marked on your driver's license or go so far as to have it tatooed to your forehead. However, you have to let your family know what you want. The decision is ultimately left to the family."

LifeSource and Rux remain concerned about the large number, 42 percent, of individuals who, although supportive, have not yet made a personal commitment to donation and shared their decision with family. If every potential donor became an actual donor in our three-state region, hundreds of additional lives would be saved each year.

Becoming an organ donor is often referred to as giving the "Gift of Life." Everyone has the power to save lives. Sadly, ten people die each day waiting because there are not enough organs available. And each day, another 18 names are added to the waiting list.

The White House has announced plans to promote organ and tissue donation through a series of public-private partnerships with large membership organizations such as the American Medical Association and the American Bar Association, as well as the nation's churches. Also, more than one million federal employees will receive organ donation information six times each year.

LifeSource Executive Director Susan Gunderson attended the White House announcement and said, "This federal support will play an important role in educating Americans about organ donation and the need for individuals to make a personal commitment and share their wishes with their loved ones."

The U.S. Postal Service will release the new Organ and Tissue Donation Stamp in May.

Organ donation advocate Gary Rux fishes with his two year old grandson, Aron. Rux was a heart transplant recipient five years ago. Today, he works at his insurance business during the week, goes fishing with Aron on weekends and finds time to talk about the importance of organ donation. Rux spends many hours each year telling his story in high schools, to service and professional organizations, the media — anyone and everyone who will listen.

If you are committed to organ donation, you need to tell your loved ones. Sharing your decision is as important as making the decision itself. Making others aware of your wishes helps them carry out your request without uncertainty and could eliminate guesswork during a time of grief. Families often find comfort in knowing they are honoring a loved one's wishes.

If you have questions about organ donation, LifeSource offers a toll-free information line for residents living in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota. By calling 1-888-5-DONATE (888-536-6283), callers may have questions answered and request free materials on organ donation.

Gary Rux will continue to tell his story, too. He says, "I owe an enormous debt to someone I never met." He needs to give something back and will make time to talk to any individual or group about organ donation. And when he's said all he's got to say about organ donation, Gary will tell you all about another matter of the heart — his little fishing buddy — the grandson he wouldn't have met without a stranger's gift of life.

Facts About Organ Donation

- Most people, newborns to 75-year-olds, can become organ donors. While age and medical history are factors, most people can donate.
- If you are injured and brought to a hospital, the doctors will do everything they can to save your life. The doctors trying to save your life are NOT the same doctors involved with donation.
- One organ donor can save the lives of eight people through the donation of heart, kidneys, lungs, pancreas, liver and intestine.
- There is no cost to the family for organ or tissue donation.
- It is illegal to buy or sell organs. Strict regulations in this country prevent any type of "black market" for organs from operating in the United States.
- After organ donation, you may still have a traditional funeral service.
- Most major religions, including the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, support organ donation.

These facts were supplied by LifeSource, a non-profit, federally-designated organ procurement organization in the upper Midwest, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Students to work Habitat for Humanity during break

Freshman Kristioa Price of Newfolden and sophomore John Gallagher of Goodridge will participate in Habitat for Humanity's Collegiate Challenge program during the 1998 spring break, February 27 through March 8. They are members of the Northwestern College Habitat Chapter that is working in Oakland, CA to build affordable homes for people in need. This is the fifth year Northwestern has sent a team to the Collegiate Challenge.

The Collegiage Challenge is coordinated by the Campus Chapters and Youth Programs Department of Habitat for Humanity International and offers construction experience to students around the country. Northwestern students raised the required funds for transportation and work supplies through home churches, a support letter process and financial assistance from Northwestern's Student Mission Fellowship. Faculty and advisors will lead the team.

Agency on Aging offers techniques for Alzheimer's care

According to the Northwest Area Agency on Aging, a program of the Northwest Regional Development Commission, there are specialized techniques that apply in the care of a person who has Alzheimer's disease. Some of these are contrary to the way we are taught to treat others.

- Join in a person's make-believe world, or life in the past. The person with Alzheimer's is often not able to live in the present and feels safer and more comfortable living in the past as he or she remembers it now.
- Do not accuse persons with Alzheimer's of lying. Their understanding of the world is different from yours. In order to make their world logical, they may often fill in the gaps of memory with past experiences rather than what actually happened. Relate to the underlying feeling of fear or loss of security rather than a specific statement or accusation.
- Use distraction. A temporary change of subject will often solve the problem and get the person's attention away from the undesirable behavior. The person's forgetfulness may work in your favor.
- Do not be upset if the person makes unkind remarks about you or is not tactful. The confused person often misjudges situations and is overly suspicious. Remember that the person often loses the memory of good manners.
- Follow simple, set routine. Eliminate distracting noises and activities if possible.
- Encourage the person to perform as many activities as his or her abilities allow.
- Demonstrate by modeling correct methods. For example, move arm up and down when brushing teeth, start eating motions, etc.
- Create a safe environment. Remove all hazards that could be dangerous for the patient.
- Avoid situations which bring about frustration or anger. Try to anticipate problems and prevent them from happening.
- Help the person to get adequate exercise. This is an important part of the daily routine.
- Be aware that the person with Alzheimer's has lost the ability to keep track of time. This may cause anxiety and frustration. A person may feel deserted when only a few minutes have elapsed. Reassure as much as possible.
- Break activity into small steps. Encourage the person to take each task one step at a time, and talk through each step.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Lincoln High School

Ah, Valentine's Day – one of the most beloved holidays (for women), and one of the most forgotten (for men). Personally, I can't understand why someone came up with one day out of the year when you're supposed to say "I love you" to your one true love. Why can't we tell everyone how much we love them every day of the year?

Yet, it's funny how many different "classes" of Valentine's Day gift givers there are out there. It seems everyone gets the same old box of chocolates and carnations every year, but that's not true. Just as there are different races in this world, there are different types of gift givers.

The way I figure it, there are five different classes of Valentine's gift givers. The first is, of course, "The Classic." These guys are usually tall, dark and handsome, and always give the same thing – chocolates, flowers and the usual cheesy, overpriced card. They are generally nice, but not too exciting.

The second is "The Poet." These guys usually keep their feelings to themselves until the last possible moment when they bare all in a mushy love poem. They're broody and insecure until they write their first poem, then they spill everything.

"The Original" is for girls who aren't afraid of getting something a little different for Valentine's Day, like a hair dryer or a tire iron. Nothing says "I love you" quite like a new set of snow chains.

"The Slacker" is the worst of the gift givers. He usually can't afford more than a half-eaten bag of M&M's, but his heart is usually in the right place. If gifts aren't a real priority in a girl's life, then these guys are perfect.

The final class of gift givers is "The-Get-Out-of-the-Doghouse" guys. They use Valentine's Day as a way to get out of every little mistake they've ever made. They shower women with every gift imaginable (and usually the cheapest possible) and TONS of chocolate. However, the chocolates only last so long, and the flowers wilt in a few days, reminding the women that these guys should still be in the doghouse for the bone-headed things they have done. So actually, no real progress is made for these guys. They just end up with mad girlfriends and empty pockets.

For many women the fairy tale romance situation would be: Tom goes to the most expensive boutique in town and buys Michelle a diamond tennis bracelet. Then he heads over to the gourmet candy store and buys her a five-pound box of her favorite (non-fat, of course) candy. He goes to Hallmark to find the largest, pink stuffed teddy bear he can, and ends his "love journey" at the flower shop, where he buys her a dozen red roses. That evening, after a ride in a horse-drawn carriage and a dripping candle-light dinner, Tom professes his undying love for Michelle with a love song he wrote that she inspired. Then he bends gracefully on one knee and proposes to her, while 'Endless Love' plays softly in the background. Of course, Michelle accepts and the couple lives "happily ever after."

Unfortunately, here's the more true-to-live situation. Dan gets off work at 11:30 P.M., and, remembering it's Valentine's Day, rushes to the nearest 24-hour convenience store, where he picks up a glow-in-the-dark watch for $2.99, and the last Valentine's card on the shelf, which is unfortunately 'To My Step-Son's Grandmother.' He grabs a package of Ring-Dings and a troll doll from the counter, and speeds over to Lisa's in his rusted Ford. He barges into her apartment, drops the gifts on the table, while mumbling, "Here you go, Babe," and plops down on the couch to watch reruns of The Simpsons. How romantic.

Why can't men understand that all we women want in a relationship is respect and a little romance? We don't need expensive gifts to keep us happy, just an honest relationship. I guess I'm one of the lucky ones, because I've never been doomed with a terrible Valentine. My best Valentine has always been my dad.

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

Gretchen Beito

In 1997 I was challenged by the Chamber of Commerce to write a one page history of Thief River Falls for the "Visitor Guide."

WHY DOES THIEF RIVER FALLS FLOURISH?

by Gretchen Beito

Perhaps there are answers to this question in what ad man C. J. Ramstad said in his book about Arctic Cat, Inc. He says in Legend: Arctic Cat's First Quarter Century that at the fledgling plant in 1969 he encountered a friendly, interested attitude. There was, he said, a "positive charge in the air, a feeling of enthusiasm and discovery."

That enterprising spirit has been a part of the city's development over the last 100 plus years.

The falls of the Red Lake River was the focus of two new settlements in the 1890's. The villages of Red Lake Rapids on the east bank and Thief River Falls on the west bank were linked for the first time in 1892 by the building of the First Street Bridge. The villages clustered about the falls that furnished power for the Kretzchmar OK Roller Mill and the Meehan Saw Mill. The waterfalls of fifteen feet were really a series of rapids that began at the steamboat landing (now Elks Park) and ended at the dam. A saw mill on the prairie seems incongruous, but this saw mill depended on logs from the great White Pine forests 100 river miles upstream that were floated through Red Lake and then down the Red Lake River.

The falls also provided power to generate electricity, and in 1900 the first major city building constructed was the power plant. The city was incorporated in 1896 after contention over the name (Twin Falls?? Beau Falls??) and over the objections of the owners of the Meehan Lumber Mill.

Before the trees were all felled and the saw mill closed, city fathers moved to make Thief River Falls a regional center.

In 1910 they petitioned to split away the northern half of Red Lake County and designate Thief River Falls as county seat of the new Pennington County.

During this time, farms were being established on the prairie all around Thief River Falls making the town an agricultural center. Wheat has been Pennington County's most important crop for over 100 years. Early writers compared the land to the Klondike because the county produced tons of golden wheat, about 3 million bushels each year.

When the two villages started up by the falls, the area already had a thriving village of 49 Ojibwe families upstream where the Thief River meets the Red Lake River. However, in the great demand for more land, in 1904 they were dispossessed and moved to Red Lake. In that decade Chief Miscoeneh also sold his own 640 acres that his father had been awarded in 1863. This included the downtown area and much of what is now the west side of town.

The saw mill had depended on the stub of the Great Northern Railroad Line that came from St. Hilaire, but as the lumbering ended, the Soo Line came to town, becoming the city's leading industry when the Round House, car repair shops, and Division Office were located here. Its new lines from St. Paul to Winnipeg were soon supplemented by the Kenmare line from the North Dakota city of that name to the head of shipping, Duluth.

If there's a single word to describe Thief River Falls people, it is "enterprising." Throughout TRF's history it seems just when a major industry downsized, residents would seek another. About the time railroading lost its dominance, Arctic Enterprises was started up in 1960 by Edgar Hetteen and then developed by Lowell Swenson, Bill Ness, and an innovative, hard-working team of employees. In the three-quarter 1996-1997 fiscal year, the second Arctic Cat Inc. net sales were $444 million dollars.

In 1971 Ronald Stordahl founded another major company, Digi-Key, which distributes electronic components world wide.

In 1997 Digi-Key was United Parcel Service' largest air-shipper in Minnesota.

In 1997, other "home-grown" businesses that do most of their business outside the area include Thief River Linen, Barron Specialties (wild rice), Northern Woodwork, Black Magic, Forsbergs, Hydra-Mac, Hi-Performance Engineering, Independent Machine Service, Hartz Wholesale, National Transmission.

A visitor to the city can discover some of this history firsthand. Arctic Cat welcomes visitors for a tour of the plant most weekdays at 1 pm. You can see the Soo Line Division Office being renovated into a new city hall. Or, a stroll on any section of the city's riverwalk will reveal local history. On the riverwalk you might see a pictograph of the sawmill at its site, now Hugo's, or perhaps pictographs of Ojibwe way of life where the two rivers meet, now the college woods.

Some things in our legacy have come full circle. People of Native American descent again live in town. The Red Lake Band of Ojibwe owns the River Road Casino near Highway 59 South.

Thief River is a community of people that take care of each other. In April 1997 after a wind-ice storm, residents had a unique chance to experience neighborliness during an unprecedented 40 hours without electricity. At the same time residents appreciated the town's location at the falls when the old generators, always kept oiled and ready for just such an emergency, supplied electricity for essential services.

City founders selected the site not only for the falls, but because the land was naturally sloped, providing good drainage to the river. This was evident later in April 1997 when the city and its environs remained high and dry during the greatest flood ever recorded in the Red River Valley. Citizens of Thief River were given the opportunity to be enterprising in caring for displaced flood victims.

ACTIVITIES

Bear Caves

During the winter, let your children pretend to be bears, fast asleep in a cave. Provide several blankets or quilts for them to drape over tables and chairs. Encourage them to cooperate as they decide how to make their caves. Then tell them that the cold wind is howling outside and they are in a safe and cosy cave. Ask them what they would dream about all winter if they were bears.

Sing the following song while they are in their caves:

Mr. Bear
(Tune: If You're Happy and You Know It)
Mr. Bear says all he wants to do is sleep
Now that winter's here and snow is very deep.
He was curled up in his den
And we probably won't see him
'Til the spring when all he'll want to do is eat!

We All Make Mistakes

"The average very good parent makes ten mistakes a day," according to Parents Magazine, January, 1992. To which we should all say, "Amen."

We often tell our children, "Everyone makes mistakes," to try to teach them to forgive themselves when they make mistakes. But what kind of an example do we show them? How do handle our own mistakes? Are we honest and open with our children? Do we admit to them when we have made a mistake?

Let's say you have had a really bad day (everyone has them) and then lets say you snapped at your kids. You probably even said some really nasty things to them. Are you able to say to them "I overreacted and there is no excuse for what I said to you. I'm having a bad day and I shouldn't be taking it out on you." By apologizing to your kids after making a mistake you become a good role model. That is probably the best way to teach them what they should do when they make a mistake. It also says to them in a very real way "everyone makes mistakes."

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Apologizing isn't always easy for us or for our children. But if we do it first it will make it easier for our children.

SPEAKING OF...

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Shhhh...Keep It Quiet

We've all heard, "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it," but this year it is just the opposite. Nobody is talking about the weather because nobody wants anything done about it. In fact, it seems as if nobody dares say anything about the weather, even if we have nothing but good to say about it.

It's as if we are afraid that Mother Nature might hear us and notice that she has forgotten this part of the country during this time of El Nino. She is certainly raising Cain with it in other parts of the country - the west coast is sliding into the ocean because of all the rain, the usually warm and sunny south is having cold weather and snow, and the east coast has had rain, snow and wind. Here we sit in the middle of the country, basking in the fact that we are somewhat forgotten.

Our weather has been unbelievable. I can't remember a February when the temperature was 36 degrees ABOVE zero when I awoke in the morning. I can't remember a February when the ground outside the back door had WATER on it when I put the dog out for the first time in the morning. I can't remember a February when it RAINED, never mind the bare ground it is raining on.

I think part of the reason we in the north country are being carefully quiet about the nice weather is because we have a fatalistic feeling about weather. We always look at nice weather in the winter as if it were something to be feared because "something bad is surely-coming." And this is often true. Many times we will have a January thaw and then get hit with several blizzards in a row. In fact, we can't seem to believe that any stretch of decent weather, even if it is just sunny and above zero, won't be followed by a blast of either extremely frigid temperatures or several feet of snow.

Maybe it isn't that we are fatalistic, but that we have seen such things too many times. We have learned, from many previous lessons, that we just can't seem to trust the weather in the north country. We can awake to a sunny day in February, but drive a mile out of the city limits and run into a white-out. We can be treated to sun in the morning and a blizzard at night. We can see a beautiful day out of the window, but step outside to go somewhere and slip on the treacherous ice that has covered everything while we slept. And, most of all, we learned a lesson from last year, when spring appeared to be on its way and then we were hit first with snow, then with ice, and then with water, water everywhere and no electricity to be found.

But let's enjoy this weather while we can and expect the best. Maybe there won't be any blizzards this year, or any floods. Maybe we will luck out. Maybe Mother Nature decided that she'd given us enough last year and is giving us a year of reprieve. Maybe she is showing all those people who moved south and west after the flood that the north country isn't the worst place to live.

But we'd better not speak too much about it anyway. In fact, it might be better to whisper when we talk about it. We surely don't want Mother Nature to hear that we are enjoying El Nino or she might zap us with something that we wouldn't like at all.

Feel free to email me with comments and ideas.

February activities at Old Mill state park are successful

Great weather made horse-drawn sleigh rides along the Middle River at Old Mill State all the more enjoyable on Saturday, February 7. An estimated 227 people took a ride in the the valley by the old mill stream.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. I am past 65 and on Medicare Part A (Hospital) but not Part B (Medical). My wife is still working and I have medical coverage through her work insurance. Do I need to purchase Part B? A friend said that I should have both parts.

A. While the choice is always yours, having Part B coverage would not gain much for you at this point. Most people who have insurance through an employer's group medical coverage do not purchase Part B until the employer's coverage ends-for example, when your wife retires. This is because Medicare will be the secondary payer after the employer's coverage. As a general exception of usual policy, signing up for Medicare Part B after an employer's coverage ends can be done at any time of the year, not only during a general enrollment period, and there is no premium surcharge for late enrollment. Someone approaching age 65, even if covered under an employer's group medical coverage, would still sign up for Medical Part A because there is no monthly premium for that part of Medicare.

Q. What is the Medicare general enrollment period?

A. The general enrollment period (GEP) is the period between January 1 and March 31 of each year when someone who does not have Medical Part B can sign up for it. The coverage would begin the following July and there is usually a premium surcharge. As in the question above, a person who does not have Part B because of coverage from an employer's group plan can sign up for Part B when needed and not just during a GEP.

Q. I will be age 65 later this year. Can I sign up for Medicare even though I am still working and do not expect to receive Social Security for several years yet?

A. Yes.

After eating, if your children do not properly clean their teeth, bacteria eats sugar and starch from food and uses is as a source of energy. Minnesota exceeds national average in CRP acres

Agricultural Secretary Dan Glickman announced on January 29, that the U.S. Department of Agriculture will accept 5.9 million acres of environmentally sensitive farmland into the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) from the 16th sign-up.

Of the 519,989 acres offered in Minnesota 87 percent or 455,178 acres were accepted. Nationally, 62 percent of the offered acres were accepted. The acceptance rate in Southern Minnesota went from an average of nine percent in sign-up 15 to 72 percent in sign-up 16.

Wally Sparby, Minnesota State Executive Director, stated "We are elated at the high percentage of acceptance. Enrolling the environmentally sensitive cropland into CRP will provide tremendous benefits to wildlife along with long term benefits to both water and air quality."

County Farm Service Agency personnel will start notifying producers immediately whether their offers have been accepted.

Grand Forks Symphony Spring Concert March 6

The Greater Grand Forks Symphony Orchestra will perform its spring concert for families on Friday, March 6 at the Chester Fritz Auditorium. In addition to the 7:30 p.m. performance, two daytime performances, at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., have been scheduled for area schools.

The concert will feature a performance of Serge Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf" narrated by local television personality Tom Szymanski and will also include performances by the Grand Forks Youth Symphony and by pianist Amanda Hahn, winner of the Symphony's 1998 Young Artists Competition. Ms. Hahn will perform the first movement of Ravel's "Piano Concerto in G".

For the second time in its three-year history, members of the Greater Grand Forks Youth Symphony will join adult musicians on the stage for a performance of Vaughn Williams' "English Folk Song Suite". The Youth Symphony will also play music from Rossini's "Barber of Seville" and the waltz from "A Little Princess". The 50-member youth group attracts student musicians from around the district and includes players from Crookston, Kennedy, Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls and Park River, as well as Grand Forks and East Grand Forks.

Admission to the evening performance costs $10 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under. Tickets may be reserved by calling the Chester Fritz Box office at 777-4090. To reserve seats for the daytime performances, call the symphony office at 777-3359. The Family Concert is made possible by a grant from the Myra Foundation. The Greater Grand Forks Youth Symphony is partially supported by Target Stores.

Private pesticide applicator training scheduled in area

Private pesticide applicators — farmers, producers and others who apply restricted use pesticides — must be certified according to federal mandates.

To assist applicators with their certification, a series of training workshops have been scheduled throughout the Northern Lites Extension Cluster February 24-26. Applicators are urged to attend a local PPAT session on Thursday, February 26 at 1:30 p.m. in Middle River at the Senior Citizens Center.

It's important to note that all users (applicators) need to be certified in order to apply products classified as restricted use. Private pesticide licenses are valid for a three-year period and expire on March 1 of the third year.

Minnesota pesticide dealers require a current certification number of the person applying the RUP before a purchase can be made.

Extension Educators, from the Northern Lites Cluster, Raymond Thompson and Hans Kandel, will provide the two hour training workshop which will assist applicants to complete the certification test.

Other workshops are scheduled for Tuesday, February 24, at 9:30 a.m. at the Goodridge Senior Citizens Center; Tuesday, February 24, at 1:30 p.m. in the Red Lake Falls Community Hall; Wednesday, February 25, at 9:30 a.m. in the Warren First American Bank; Wednesday, February 25 at 1:30 p.m. in the Hallock Courthouse, and Thursday, February 26, at 9:30 a.m. in the Roseau Courthouse.

Public hearing to be held in TRF on Wheat Check off

A public hearing on a proposal to increase the wheat check off rate from one cent to one and one-half cents will be held at the Best Western in Thief River Falls at 2:30 p.m.

The Minnesota Wheat Research and Promotion Council has proposed an increase in the wheat check off rate from one cent to one and one-half cents, and has called for a mail ballot referendum to be held March 15 to March 31, 1998, in conjunction with the annual commodity council elections.

Both the referendum and council elections will be conducted by the Minnesota Department of Agriculture. As required by law, the MDA will hold hearings to receive comments on the proposed referendum. The hearings are scheduled for February 19, at the following locations:

- 10 a.m. at the Red River Inn, South Highway 75, Moorhead.
- 2:30 p.m. at the Best Western, Highway 32 South, Thief River Falls.

Producers who wish to vote must request that a mail-in ballot be sent to them. Ballots need to be requested by March 13. The mail-in ballot can be requested by calling Marsha Gawboy at the MDA, 612-296-6883, or the Minnesota Wheat Council at 1-800-242-6118.

Persons, firms, universities, colleges, foundations, landlords or tenants may cast one vote in the referendum, only if they share in the profit and risk of loss from producing wheat during the current or proceeding marketing year. Each individual production unit may cast only one vote. Either the husband or the wife may cast this vote if both operate the production unit, but not both. A voter must be a Minnesota resident or permanent resident alien.

Taryn Pream published for third consecutive year

Taryn Pream, a Lincoln High School freshman, was recently informed that her submitted poem "Spit" was selected with high merit to be published in the book, A Celebration of Young Poets.

Spit

You crouch in one small corner
Frightened of everything, even life itself
And my regal laughter echoes around you
You can sense my heavy footsteps
From my long-suffered burden
Yet my feet feel light
I shoot forward towards you
Like a bullet from a gun
And my menacing smile makes
Your heart jump to your throat
You humble yourself before me
And beg for my mercy
I gaze thoroughly into your eyes
Which are pleading with me
And think about your burden
I spit on you
Because you resemble my inner self

This is the third consecutive year that one of Taryn's poems has been published in the book. Last year, two poems were selected for publication, one in A Celebration of Young Poets and one in Anthology of Poetry by Young Americans.

Taryn is the 15 year old daughter of Jon and Robyn Pream of Thief River Falls.

ON MY MIND

Going for the Gold

Men's and women's ice hockey, curling, figure skating, biathlon, speed skating, bobsledding (bobsleighing if you're in Canada), luge, snowboarding, downhill skiing, ski jumping, cross-country skiing. It's the Olympics, and for the sport-a-holic it's like winning the lottery every day for two weeks. There are enough sports on the television to occupy even the most diehard of sports fans.

When watching the games it's clear that all of the athletes possess some important traits. They're talented, well-trained, dedicated and they love what they're doing. They're also looking for gold.

In some ways I'm always looking for gold too, but I (and many other people) won't find it at the Olympics because I don't exhibit many of the qualities required to be an Olympian.

For instance, an Olympian cannot be afraid of heights. It just won't work, especially during the variety of skiing events, which I've yet to figure out how they all differ. I can see it now. Standing in the start house at the precipice of a very steep hill, these long fiberglass doodads attached to my boots like duck feet and saying, "We have a problem here. Could someone lower this mountain a little bit? I can't see the bottom. And straighten it out while you're at it. They are too many curves and bumps."

Here in Thief River Falls I have difficulty keeping my head from spinning while climbing the bleachers for a better view at the Huck Olson. Swooshing down any "Mount" is out of the question.

Also out of the question for me is ski jumping. There they are sailing through mid-air, their body parallel with their skis, with a nice view of the cold, hard, snow-covered ground, without a net or a soft cushion to land on - just in case. And the judges are worried about form? That's why I'm here in my nice warm house and the athletes are in motion in Japan competing for the gold.

An Olympian, though, cannot be prone to motion sickness. Take the luge event, for example. Just watching the athletes careen down an ice-covered tunnel at horrific speeds on a teeny sled attired in just the thinnest of clothing gives me a queasy stomach. It reminds me of an amusement park ride, only much more dangerous. It would not be cool to bring a barf bag along for the ride. Olympians have their dignity to consider.

It's also an important consideration that a person wishing to compete in the Olympics not be claustrophobic. I would not choose to be the bottom rider in the two-man luge. In addition to not being able to see where you're going at breakneck speed, someone is lying on top of you. If what they say about muscle weighing more than fat is true, many of those athletes could be pancakes at the finish line.

And in the two-man bobsled they duck their head under the inside of the sled. If I'm going to break arms, legs and other essential bones in a crash I'd at least like to see what I've hit.

In the Olympic competitions there is no room for a clod. I've noticed that a majority of the events require a great amount of grace and agility.

To have two left feet and weak ankles in the figure skating competition would not bode well for my country. The snowboarding event also requires agility. With both feet strapped to a skateboard-minus-the-wheels these men and women perform jumps and turns and don't have anything to hold on to. It's enough to remind me why I'm a spectator.

Yes, watching the Olympics reminds me of the training and dedication required to have an opportunity to have a gold, silver or bronze medal placed around their neck and have their country's national anthem played.

The only medal I'll receive this weekend is for eating the most Hershey's Kisses in one sitting.

Dick Reger elected governor of MN Lions district 5M-11

by Dr. Charles Samuelson

Richard (Dick) Reger of Thief River Falls was recently elected to serve as governor of District 5M-11 of Lions International at the annual Midwinter Convention held recently in Thief River Falls (January 15, 16 and 18). Elected as vice-district Governor was Curtis Benson of Stephen.

Governor-elect Reger is a member of the Thief River Falls Noon Lions Club and has held many positions within the club and the district.

Club offices held by Governor-elect Reger are first, second and third vice president of the local club and later as club president (1992-1993).

He has also held district offices including zone chairman (1993-94) and again, (1994-1995).

Governor-elect Reger served in the district governor's cabinet as public relations director from 1995-1996; co-chaired the leadership committee from 1995-1996, chaired the public relations committee from 1996-1997; co-chaired the leadership committee from 1996-1997 and as chairman from 1997-1998; and also served as vice-district Governor from 1997-1998.

Governor-elect Reger brings a wealth of Lions experience and knowledge of what it means to be a Lion as to his new role as governor of District 5M-11.

Governor-elect Reger and his wife Judy have attended many Lions seminars including the Canada-America seminar in New York state this past year.

Dick and Judy will travel to Burmingham, England, for the last part of June to be installed by the International President of Lions International as governor of District 5M-11 at the International Convention of Lions Clubs. Following installation as governor, Dick and Judy will attend many seminars and workshops on Lionism as it relates to local, district, national, and international Lions projects and protocol. Following the convention, Dick and Judy, along with Past District Governor David Fertig and Doris of Hallock, will have an opportunity to tour England.

Lions District 5M-11 includes 50 Lions clubs, eight Lioness clubs and one Leo club, all in northwestern Minnesota.

In addition to overseeing the work of the Lions, the new governor is obligated to visit each and every one of the Lions clubs in the district.

Dick Reger
Lions Governor-Elect

Special Lions projects include Leader Dog for the Blind; Campaign Sightfirst; LCIF; Helen Keller Fund; Lions Quest; Hearing Dog for the Deaf; Diabetes; Lions Eye Bank at the University of Minnesota; all on the district level and also, to oversee many projects on local levels.

The Lions Halloween Party is the major project of the Thief River Falls Lions. The Thief River Falls Lions meet every Wednesday at the American Legion club for a meal and a short program. There are almost 100 members. Guests are welcome at these noon meetings.

All money collected by the various Lions clubs is donated to local, district, national, and international projects. At the recent district Lions Midwinter Convention here in Thief River Falls, the Parade of Green was outstanding. A total of $26,172.25 was donated by district Lions and Lioness to various Lions charities.

The Thief River Falls Noon Lions club has raised and donated $6,464.75 to various charitable projects and organizations in our community. Among the organizations are Diabetes; Eye Bank; Hearing Foundation; Hearing Dog; Youth Outreach Quest; Drug Awareness; LCIF; Leader Dog; Buddy Bear; Boy Scouts; Girl Scouts; Kamp Kace; National Crime Prevention; Thief River Falls Chamber Bull Ride; DAC; Eye surgery; Students to Washington, DC; choir; flood relief; fair booth; and Halloween. Also, the local Lions collected 369 pairs of eyeglasses for the needy at home and overseas, all in the year 1997.

FDA approves pasteurization of red meat

Foodbourne illness will be reduced as a result of recent action by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). The FDA recently approved pasteurization of red meat by irradiation. "Food irradiation is not a new process and patent applications date back to the turn of this century," says Karen Holtmeier, director of nutrition and consumer information at the Minnesota Beef Council. She says, "In the case of meat products, irradiation is nothing more than a form of cold pasteurization and in the future, meat irradiation may be just as commonplace as pasteurization of milk."

Food irradiation has been approved in over 40 countries and, in the United States, has been used for a number of foods including pork, poultry, fruits, spices and vegetables, according to Dennis Olson, director of the Utilization Center for Agricultural Products at Iowa State University. The World Health Organization gave its support for food irradiation 18 years ago. The American Medical Association, the American Dietetic Association and the American Council on Science and Health have also endorsed irradiation technology. According to Olson, "forty years of research has proven that irradiation is a safe and effective method of killing bacteria in food. Astronauts in space eat irradiated foods because they are free of bacteria."

"Irradiation has long been used to sterilize such things as disposable medical devices, nipples for baby bottles, wine corks, cartons for milk and juice, contact lens solutions and cosmetics," according to Holtmeier. Other every day uses of irradiation include containers of all kinds and the tiny plastic cups used for milk at coffee shops.

Surveys show that support for irradiated products increases significantly when consumers understand the concept and know the benefits. Iowa State and Kansas State University scientists showed that some consumers were actually willing to pay more for irradiated chicken and when prices were the same, irradiated and non-irradiated chicken breasts sold the same amount.

Dr. Olson says, "The process of irradiation involves exposing food, either packaged or in bulk, to one of three types of ionizing energy: gamma rays, machine-generated electrons, or x-rays." Pre-packaged foods can be effectively irradiated. It is also possible to irradiate meat once it is frozen without thawing it out. Olson explains, "this is done in a special chamber for a few seconds. Gamma rays, and electromagnetic radiation of a very short wave length, are most commonly used for food processing. The process can prevent the division of living cells, such as bacteria, by changing their molecular structure." The gamma energy penetrates the food and its packaging, but most of the energy simply passes through the food similar to the way that microwaves pass through food. The FDA says that irradiating meat is totally safe and that it doesn't change food's nutritional content, smell or flavor and no residues are left behind. Microwaving and traditional cooking methods have been shown to cause more vitamin loss in meat than irradiation.

Some critics are concerned that irradiation will be used as an excuse for processors to ignore cleanliness standards in the packing houses. Irradiation cannot be used to make spoiled food good, or to clean up "dirty" food. Neither irradiation nor any other process can reverse spoilage and make bad food good. If food already looks, tastes or smells bad, before irradiation, it cannot be "saved" by any treatment including irradiation. Minnesota Beef Council Chairman, Dennis Swan, a Balaton cattle feeder says, "Before beef gets into the hands of the consumer it goes through many treatments to ensure that it is clean and free of contaminants. These processes include steam vacuuming, steam pasteurization, and hot water and organic acid rinses, which are required and regulated by the government's Food Safety and Inspection Service."

"Irradiation will not replace any of these processes that are already in place," says Swan, "but will be in addition to these procedures and will help insure that red meat is safe to eat before it reaches the consumer."

Holtmeier reminds us that irradiation is not a "silver bullet". She says, "the consumer still needs to handle ground beef with care and cook it properly. Irradiated beef can still become contaminated in the kitchen, restaurant, or at the family outing through poor handling practices."

The Minnesota Beef Council is a promotion and research board organized under state statute and certified by the Cattlemen's Beef Board to collect a mandatory $1 per head assessment on all cattle sales and invest those funds in prove programs to increase beef demand.

Workshop on farm viability, profitability set

Danny Klinefelter, director of The Executive Program for Agricultural Producers at Texas A&M University, will lead the mini-seminar "Exploring Ways to Enhance Farm Viability and Profitability," March 5 at the Holiday Inn in Grand Forks. Registration begins at 4:30 p.m., with the program running from 5 to 8:30 p.m., supper included.

The seminar is free to members of the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers and North Dakota Grain Growers Association, sponsors of the event. The cost is $20 per person for non-members.

Klinefelter's executive program at Texas A&M began in 1991 and has attracted farmers from across the United States and Canada. Its two-week long sessions challenge farmers to address topics that will decide their success into the 21st Century. In the March 5 workshop in Grand Forks, Klinefelter will discuss three topics relating to farm viability and profitability.

1) Finance — using alternative equity instruments and buy-sell agreements to achieve owner objectives;

2) Marketing — not options or futures, but where Klinefelter believes more marketing will head — using and negotiating production contracts,

3) Operations — Finding ways to improve farm operating efficiency.

The ball was knocked out of the hands of Kittson Central's Margo Iverson by Thief River Falls defender Beth Olson during Thursday's high school basketball game played in Thief River Falls. The Wolfpack broke the game open in the third quarter to beat the Prowlers 63-43.

Girls high school basketball...

Wolfpack runs by TRF 63-43

Kittson Central went on an 18-0 second quarter run Thursday to propel the Wolfpack past Thief River Falls 63-43 in girls high school basketball.

It wasn't even that close. The Prowlers were down 33 at the start of the fourth quarter before their only offensive flurry of the night took some of the sting out of the blow-out.

Thief River Falls' Laura Follett opened the second quarter by completing a three-point play off a rebound to tie the game 15-15.

But that's when the Kittson Central blitz kicked in. The Prowlers' defense collapsed and their offense disappeared during a seven-minute stretch. The Wolfpack run was sparked by freshman Jamie Visness who came off the bench to score eight minutes in a 3 1/2-minute burst.

It was 35-17 at halftime, and it got no better when play resumed as Thief River Falls went the entire third quarter without a field goal, putting the Prowlers' shooting at a microscopic 8.6 percent (2/23) over the two middle frames.

Kittson Central led 53-22 at the close of the third quarter and a basket by Jen Hatton on an in-bounds play underneath provided the visiting Wolfpack with their biggest spread of the night at 55-22 to open the fourth quarter. Twelve of those Thief River Falls points at that stage were free throws.

Nicole Kopari finally got the Prowlers' offense going over the final six minutes when she scored 17 of her game-high 23 points. She hit three treys during that late-game surge.

Visness led a balanced Kittson Central offense with 16 points, while Marisa Johnson netted 14 and both Janna Lindegard and Margo Iverson had 10.

The Prowlers wound up 13-for-50 from the field for the night (26 percent). They did go 14-for-18 at the free throw line, hitting 13 of their first 15 attempts. The Wolfpack turned in a 50 percent 27-for-54 shooting performance and made 9 of 11 free throws.

Kittson Central finished with a 29-25 rebound edge and Thief River Falls had more turnovers, 15-10.

It was the 13th loss in 19 starts for the Prowlers.

Scoring

	1	2	3	4	T
Kittson Central	15	20	18	10	63
Thief River Falls	12	5	5	21	43

KC - Janna Lindegard 10, Emily Dahl 8, Jamie Visness 16, Marisa Johnson 14, Margo Iverson 10, Jessy Webstal 5.

TRF - Laura Follett 6, Rachel Mathson 2, Amber Klinker 8, Becky Mooney 4, Nicole Kopari 23, Stephanie Leach 2.

Prowlers pick up second win

A late-game scoring flurry by Thief River Falls center Matt Myers staved off a Stephen-Argyle comeback Friday as the Prowlers beat the Storm 46-40 in boys high school basketball.

It was deadlocked 38-38 when Myers, a 6-8 junior, took over center stage. He connected from underneath to snap the tie with 3:37 to play, added a press breaking lay-up with 3:10 left and finished off a fast break with 2:43 on the clock as the Prowlers opened up a 44-38 lead.

A Thief River Falls turnover was followed by a long jumper by Reece Setterholm with 55.3 seconds remaining, ending a three-minute scoreless spell for the Storm.

But moments later Myers was open underneath again to complete the scoring.

Thief River Falls missed the front end of three bonus free throw opportunities in the final half-minute, but the Prowlers came up with a steal and an offensive rebound on two of those misses to eat up valuable time.

It was just the second win of the year for the Prowlers in 19 starts, with both victories coming at the expense of the 4-16 Storm. The first one was a 69-49 decision in the opening round of the Thief River Falls Russ Smith Northwest Holiday Classic back on Dec. 29. They lost 11 straight before picking up Win No. 2.

"I liked the way the kids put in the effort," said Thief River Falls coach Bob Johnson. "They finally got rewarded for working hard."

Stephen-Argyle led 12-11 after eight minutes. The second quarter started with the lead changing hands on five consecutive baskets before the Prowlers took over. Back-to-back drives by Jeremy Swanson and Kyle Waterworth, along with a short jumper by Myers, put the Prowlers on top 21-16 with 4:52 left in the first half. They never trailed again.

The half ended with Walseth scoring on a rebound and Collin Schafer knocking down a short jumper with 36.1 seconds remaining, making it 27-20.

Thief River Falls was shooting at a 61 percent clip (17/28) when Myers' basket from underneath made it 36-24 with 4:16 to go in the third quarter.

But the visiting Storm chopped the difference in half to 36-30 before the quarter ended, and continued on a 14-2 run that caught the Prowlers at 38-38 on a short jumper by Darin Adolphson with 4:07 left in the game.

That's when Myers took over.

"I thought the kids played real solid in the first quarter, and played steady in the second quarter," offered Johnson. "In the third and fourth quarters they started doing things that got them in trouble."

Like turning the ball over. The Prowlers had 23 turnovers for the night, a painfully high figure for this point of the season.

But they managed to keep the ship afloat against the Storm down the stretch. "You've got to give the kids credit for keeping their composure at the end," said Johnson. "Matt Myers and Casey Skjerven really stepped forward and got the job done down the stretch. Matt got some big baskets, and Casey worked really hard."

Swanson joined Myers in double figures with 11 points. Adolphson, one of four sophomores in the Stephen-Argyle starting line-up, led the Storm with 9 points.

The Prowlers were 22-for-43 from the field for the game (51 percent). They were a quiet 2-for-5 at the free throw line and were out-rebounded 31-27. The Storm went just 17-for-59 from the floor (29

B/G-MR girls lose lead, game

■ Tri-County rally overtakes Gators 50-48

Tri-County out-scored Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 15-7 in the fourth quarter Thursday to pull out a 50-48 win over the host Gators in a match-up of Sub-Section 32A girls high school basketball contenders.

The Wildcats had a 12-11 edge at the close of the first quarter, but trailed 31-20 at halftime and were still down 41-35 through three quarters.

It was a down-to-the-wire finish. Afton Hanson made one of two free throws with eight seconds left to provide the Wildcats with a two-point edge, 50-48. The Gators pushed the ball down the court and came up with a 2-on-1 break to the basket, but Anna Bogestad blocked the potential game-tying shot at the buzzer.

"First half was our best ball we played all season," reported Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer, "but down the stretch we couldn't hit anything."

The Tri-County comeback began at the outset of the second half when Neibauer opened with starters Tiffany Hagen and Kara Kuznia on the bench with three fouls each. The Wildcats promptly shaved that 11-point deficit to four.

Rotating defensive efforts by the Gators' Missy Smith, Kelsey Foldesi and Dezi Sovde in the middle helped keep the high-scoring Bogestad from hitting a first half field goal. But in the meantime, Hanson was popping threes – five of them – en route to a game-high 21 points. Anna Bogestad still finished with 16 points and Krista Bogestad had 11.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River was 17-for-40 from the field (43 percent) and made 13 of 18 free throw attempts. Tri-County went 10-for-17 at the line.

The Gators are 14-6.

Mustangs' defense dominates Knights during second half

A smothering Red Lake County Central defense led the Mustangs to a 53-20 girls high school basketball win over Fisher/Climax Thursday at Oklee.

Red Lake County Central started with a 12-9 first quarter lead and had a 25-16 halftime advantage before the Mustangs' defense took center stage. They gave up just four second half points, and did not surrender a field goal after intermission until the final moments.

"You can't play much better defense than that," noted Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto. "We didn't give them many good looks at the basket."

Playing full time for the first time since mid-January when she ran into back problems, the Mustangs' Angie Chervestad turned in a 21-point, 11-rebound game.

Red Lake County Central was 21-for-56 from the field (38 percent) and 9-for-13 at the free throw line. Fisher/Climax went just 8-for-37 from the floor (21 percent) and 3-for-8 at the line. The Mustangs had a 36-17 rebound advantage over the Knights, who topped the turnover charts 24-17.

Win streak ends for RLCC at Crookston

A four-game Red Lake County Central win streak ended Thursday with a 79-50 boys high school basketball loss at Crookston.

The Mustangs kept pace with the Pirates for a while, trailing only 20-17 after one quarter and 35-27 at halftime. But Crookston opened up a 64-33 third quarter spread.

"In the second half, we regressed back to our old style of basketball," explained Red Lake County Central coach Chris McLean. "They (Pirates) forced the tempo. They used a trapping defense, and our kids didn't handle it very well."

Jason Kuehn scored 19 points, Jeremy Voeller 18 and Carl Hunt 14 to lead the Pirates' offense, which featured 49 percent 33-for-67 shooting from the field.

Mark Lorenson and Matt Bjerklie scored 13 and 12 points, respectively, for the Mustangs, who shot only 36 percent from the field on a 20-for-56 showing.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke girls played an up-tempo style of basketball Thursday in a 70-52 win over East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

The Wolverines racked up points from the outset in building quarter leads of 27-15, 43-30 and 53-41.

"We got our fast break going," noted Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "Rebounding is the key to the fast break. We hit the boards, got the the outlet pass and ran the floor."

Kathryn Stanley scored 20 points, Jenny Nelson 19 and Angie Gast 17 for the winners. Chrissy Benson scored a game-high 30 points for the host Eagles, but she was their only double figure scorer.

The fast break lay-ups enabled Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke to shoot 52 percent from the field (31/60). The Wolverines went 8-for-15 at the free throw line. Sacred Heart shot 31 percent from the floor (19/61) and went 12-for-21 at the line. With Angie Gast grabbing 11 rebounds and Stanley 9, the Wolverines beat the Eagles on the boards 38-34.

Caleb Holthusen followed Wilcox in the scoring column for the winners with 14 points, while Greg Ueland contributed 13 and Jon Donarski had 10.

Marshall County Central won it with a fourth quarter kick. The Cougars doubled the Nordics in the first quarter 16-8 and had a 29-28 edge at halftime. Third quarter ended in a 38-38 draw, and the winners took over down the stretch with a 29-15 finish.

"In the second and fourth quarters, we did a pretty decent job on defense," reported Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "Offensively, we made our free throws down the stretch."

The Nordics' 20-for-31 free throw shooting included a 15-for-20 fourth quarter at the line, with Wilcox making 9 of 11 during that stretch.

Jeremy Hostrup of Kittson County North collected 20 points to share game-high scoring honors with Wilcox.

Marshall County Central went 22-for-51 from the field (43 percent). Kittson County North was 16-for-46 (35 percent) from the floor and 15-for-20 at the line. The Nordics out-rebounded the Cougars 35-26 with Wilcox and Holthusen both pulled down eight.

Nordics drop 61-45 contest at Warroad

Marshall County Central was able to keep Warroad's Heather Evans under double figures, but teammates Lisa Fry and Holly Pahlen picked up the slack Thursday in a 61-45 home court girls high school basketball win over the Nordics.

A third quarter exit with five fouls limited Evans to just eight points, but Fry scored 23 and Pahlen had 14 as Warroad turned a 14-10 first quarter deficit into a 31-24 halftime lead and opened up a 44-33 third quarter spread.

"We played well, but we just didn't shoot as well as we should have, and we didn't do a very good job rebounding, either," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Alice Dahl.

Kristi Kilen scored a game-high 25 points for the Nordics, while Miki Waterworth contributed 11.

Marshall County Central was 18-for-54 from the field (33 percent) and made 11 of 16 free throws. Warroad enjoyed a 26-for-50 shooting night from the floor (52 percent) and went 7-for-11 at the line. The winners had a 30-22 rebound edge and also had more turnovers, 15-11.

MCC girls collect second two-point win over Cougars

Marshall County Central has three wins to its credit this winter, but the Nordics have beaten just one team – Kittson County North. They closed out the 1997-98 regular season girls high school basketball schedule Monday with a 55-53 decision over the visiting Cougars to finish 3-19.

It was the second two-point victory over the Cougars by the Nordics, who won the first encounter 46-44 back on Dec. 16. The other game in the win column came via a forfeit by East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

Marshall County Central trailed at each quarter stop, but kept chipping away at the Kittson County North leads that were 19-10, 29-25 and 38-37 at the breaks.

"We didn't shoot very well in the first half, and they did," explained Marshall County Central coach Alice Dahl. "We didn't rebound very well in the first half, either. But we came out in the second half and did a much better job on the boards."

Final minute was full of dramatics, with the lead swapping hands before key free throws by Alicia Halvorson and Tiffany Bring helped secure the win for the Nordics.

"We didn't shoot free throws very well," said Dahl, looking at the Nordics' 10-for-26 showing at the line, "but we made the ones that really counted at the end."

A balanced Marshall County Central offense featured Miki Waterworth with 14 points, Kristi Kilen 12 and Bring 11. Kendra Hunter of Kittson County North led all scorers with 19 points. Teammate Shari Whitlock netted 12.

The Nordics were 22-for-69 from the field (32 percent) and finished with a 43-32 rebound edge. The Cougars went 22-for-54 from the floor (41 percent) and were 3-for-7 at the line. They also topped the turnover charts 19-12.

Northland women lose to Fergus Falls 63-41...

NCTC playoff bid put on hold

A state tournament berth wasn't enough incentive to bring out the best in Northland Monday as the Pioneers struggled from start to finish in losing a 63-41 Minnesota Community College Conference women's basketball game to Fergus Falls.

A victory would have guaranteed the Pioneers of a post-season spot. Instead, they left the court facing the prospects of needing to beat Itasca in a Friday regular season finale to pick up one of the four Northern Division MCCC state tournament berths. The Vikings beat the Pioneers 75-66 at Grand Rapids earlier this season.

The loss dropped Northland to 10-11 overall and 6-7 in the Northern Division. "We just played a poor ball game," said disappointed Northland coach Rick Nikunen. "If we play like that, we don't deserve to go to the state tournament."

Only Northland lead of the night came at 3-2 on a Jenny Johnson three-point shot in the first minute of play. Fergus Falls' Anita Follingstad promptly answered with back-to-back treys and the visiting Spartans were never headed.

Follingstad, a sophomore from Rothsay, had four three-pointers and 14 points by the 10-minute mark to provide the Spartans with a 16-10 lead.

They made it a 10-point game when Renae Levang muscled her way up for a rebound basket, Follingstad converted a steal into a fast break basket and Heidi Brunko hit a 15-foot shot for a 29-19 spread with 3:10 to play in the first half.

Follingstad closed out a 19-point first half with a drive that beat the buzzer and kept the lead at 10, 32-22.

Whatever comeback hopes the Pioneers harbored coming out for the second half all but vanished when they turned the ball over seven times in the first 6 1/2 minutes and fell a notch further behind, 42-28.

Follingstad finished with 28 points. Best Northland could do was a 13-point effort off the bench by Tammy Nerby.

Fergus Falls won it, pointed out Nikunen, on the boards. While Northland finished with a 34-32 rebound edge, the Pioneers were beaten on the offensive end 17-13.

"I can tolerate a lot of things, but to give up so many offensive rebounds is inexcusable," said Nikunen. "I don't understand it."

Northland was 17-for-54 from the field (31 percent) and 6-for-11 at the free throw line. The offensive rebounds led to a busier 36-for-70 Fergus Falls shooting night. The Spartans were 7-for-11 at the line.

Northland's offense took a hit with 23 turnovers. Fergus Falls lost it 14 times.

It was the second victory of the season over the Pioneers for the Spartans, who won at home 77-48 three weeks earlier.

TRF swim team to be part of 4A meet

New opponents and new surroundings will greet the Thief River Falls when they compete in the Section 4A high school swim meet at Hibbing this week.

It's the first year of two-class swimming and diving competition for boys in Minnesota, and the Prowlers find themselves heading to the Iron Range to face the likes of Chisholm/Mountain Iron-Buhl, Ely, Eveleth-Gilbert, Mesabi East, International Falls, Proctor and Virginia, along with more familiar area foes Crookston, Lake of the Woods and Park Rapids Area.

It's an open invitation-type meet, but Thief River Falls coach Orian Olson set post-season team qualifying standards for the Prowlers at the start of the year.

Competition will take place Thursday beginning at 12:30 p.m. and Saturday starting at 1:30 p.m. Qualifiers will move on to the combined Class A-AA state meet March 5-7 at the University of Minnesota Aquatic Center in Minneapolis.

Thief River Falls closed out the 1998 regular season Saturday at the Grand Forks Invitational, where Mandan was the team champion with 257 points, followed by Minot with 221, West Fargo 205, Fargo North 167, Moorhead 133, Jamestown 108, Bismarck Century 79, Bismarck 67, Fargo South 48, Grand Forks 46, Crookston 32, Center 20, and Thief River Falls 13.

Third quarter keys win for RLCC girls

Red Lake County Central outscored Bagley 23-3 in the third quarter Monday to erase a three-point halftime deficit, carrying the Mustangs to a 55-37 victory at Plummer.

Bagley opened with a 15-8 first quarter lead and was up 23-20 at halftime before the Red Lake County Central turnaround put the Mustangs ahead 43-26 heading into the final quarter.

"We were a little slow out of the blocks," admitted Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto. "We had a good third quarter. We switched defenses, and it took them a while to adjust."

The win put the Mustangs at 14-7 heading into their regular season finale Thursday against East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

Red Lake County Central multi-dimension attack featured Angie Chervestad with 16 points and 10 rebounds, Katie O'Neill with 12 points, Tracy Rosten with 11 points and 10 rebounds, and Jenni Morinville with 8 points and a team-high 13 rebounds. Bagley was led by Misten Hoie with 14 points.

The Mustangs were 26-for-54 from the field (48 percent), while the Flyers were just 11-for-52 (21 percent). The winners also had a sizeable 44-21 rebound advantage.

At the free throw line, Bagley was 11-for-19 while Red Lake County Central had a quiet 3-for-4 night. The Flyers topped the turnover charts 20-17.

All area teams in grades 5-9 will again have an opportunity to play for the Pacesetter Minnesota state basketball championship when qualifying begins in all eight regions in March.

Each grade-level tournament will be held on a single Saturday between March 28 and May 2, with each regional field open to the first 16 teams to register. All teams will play three to four games.

Top teams will advance to summer tournament play. The regional champion will qualify for the Pacesetter Minnesota state championships. Runner-up teams will be invited to play in the Pacesetter Minnesota Invitational. Both tournaments will be held at the Whitney Center in St. Cloud. Teams that win two or more regional games will be invited to play in the Pacesetter Open at New London-Spicer and Paynesville.

Over 800 teams participated in last year's Pacesetter playoffs when state championship honors went to boys from Fergus Falls, ninth grade; Kenyon-Wanamingo, eighth grade; Fergus Falls, seventh grade, Litchfield, sixth grade; and Waterville-Elysian, fifth grade. Last year's championship girls included Rochester Lourdes, ninth grade; New London-Spicer, eighth grader; Marshall, seventh grade; Hancock, sixth grade; and Litchfield, fifth grade.

Information has been sent to all Minnesota head coaches and teams that participated in 1997. Registration forms and a list of the regional qualifying sites are also available in the February issue of Minnesota Basketball news. Interested players or parents may call Pacesetter for the registration material at 320-243-7460, or write to Pacesetter, P.O. Box 222, Paynesville, MN 56362.

A pair of Fergus Falls defenders closed in on Northland's Nic Thompson during Monday's Minnesota Community College Conference men's basketball game in Thief River Falls. Jim Schlieman (43) and Ryan Ratzlaff were involved in the play for the Spartans, who won 137-71.

Spartans set scoring record

■ Fergus Falls 137-71 winner over NCTC men

A mismatch on paper turned into a mismatch on the scoreboard as Fergus Falls routed host Northland 137-71 Monday in a regular season-ending Minnesota Community College Conference men's basketball game.

The Northern Division champion Spartans will take a perfect 22-0 record into the MCCC state tournament. The Pioneers finished the year 1-20, along with a 19-game losing streak.

With the two teams at the opposite ends of the standings and Fergus Falls having won the first meeting between the two 121-84, Northland's hopes of keeping the rematch close hinged on the Spartans taking the game lightly. Fat chance. The visitors charged out of the starting gates. They scored immediately off the center jump on a lob pass-turned-slam dunk by high-jumping 6-4 Tommy Chatman, came right back with a fast break lay-up by Chris Heier, a second slam – on a rebound – by Chatman, a one-handed rebound basket by Chatman and another fast break lay-up, this one by Jim Schlieman, for a 10-0 lead with less than three minutes gone.

It was 15-0 four minutes into the game, 36-10 at the 10-minute mark and 67-27 at halftime.

And even with extended playing time for the reserves, the blitz continued through the second half. The Spartans got a little giddy at the end as they neared, then broke, their school single-game scoring record of 136 points.

Along the way, Fergus Falls set another school record with 17 three-point baskets. The Spartans launched 98 shots, hitting 56 of them (57 percent). Seven Fergus Falls scorers hit double figures, led by guard Johnny Reese who came off the bench to score 19 points, and North Dakota State-bound Jason Retzlaff, who had 18.

Northland had a 1-2 punch in Chaka Ali with 28 points and Dwight Goodwin with 23, while Nic Thompson chipped in with 11.

To add injury to insult, the Pioneers lost the services of Josh Whitlock and Garrett Borowicz to the Spartans' enthusiasm around the basket in the second half as Whitlock grew a huge lump on his head from an elbow, and Borowicz took a blow to the nose while battling underneath.

Northland was 29-for-76 from the field (38 percent) and 12-for-14 at the free throw line, where Fergus Falls went 8-for-11.

The Spartans out-rebounded the Pioneers 58-31. Northland had more turnovers, 24-14.

Only win for first-year Northland coach Ted Krize this winter came back on Dec. 5, when the Pioneers beat Rochester 83-76 at home to even their record at 1-1.

Poor shooting costs Wolverines

Poor shooting took care of any upset hopes harbored by Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke Saturday as the Wolverines lost a 58-37 girls high school basketball game to Kittson Central.

"We played them tough, but we shot real poor," reported Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "It was the worst we've shot all year. We had good shots, too. They just wouldn't go in."

The Wolfpack doubled the Wolverines 14-7 in the first quarter, had a 26-15 halftime advantage and opened up a 41-24 third quarter spread.

Jana Lindegard of Kittson Central and Angie Gast of Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke shared game-high scoring honors with 14 points each.

The loss dropped the Wolverines to 11-10 heading into the final game of the 1997-98 regular season Thursday at Tri-County.

Huskies lose to Eagles 50-47

Goodridge paid the price for missing free throws Friday as the Huskies lost a home court 50-47 boys high school basketball game to East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

The Huskies went just 9-for-20 at the free throw line and trailed by a single point at each quarter stop, 11-10, 23-22 and 36-35.

"The bottom line was, we didn't shoot free throws," noted Goodridge coach Eric Mickelson. "We went ahead at the beginning of the fourth quarter, but we made some mistakes at the end when we needed some big plays."

Joe Zavoral and Paul Stinar led a balanced Sacred Heart attack with 14 and 10 points, respectively. Jim Scheef netted 13 and Ben Hanson had 10 points for the Huskies.

Goodridge was 18-for-40 from the field (45 percent). Sacred Heart went 19-for-49 from the floor (39 percent) and 11-for-18 at the line. The Huskies had a 32-28 rebound edge, but also had more turnovers, 18-10.

Disinfection by-products may affect pregnancies

Thief River Falls Water Treatment plant addresses concerns generated by national news release

Thief River Falls Water Department is an active member of the Minnesota Section of AWWA and a subscribing member of the AWWA Research Foundation. Recently, a study suggesting disinfection by-products may affect pregnancies has raised a number of questions. The water department presents the following news release to help address some of those questions.

"Although we have not yet seen the complete study, we take it very seriously. We are particularly troubled about the potential connection between any disinfection method and risk to public health. Since we began disinfecting water at the turn of the century, waterborne diseases such as Typhoid and Cholera have been virtually eliminated. That is why any link between disinfectants we use to treat water and negative effects to public health is especially disturbing and of great concern to water utilities everywhere," said Beaudet

For several years, suppliers have taken many steps to reduce THM levels in tap water and ensure safe drinking water to the public. AWWA member utilities are currently working with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), collecting detailed occurrence and treatment information that will be used as the foundation for future disinfection by-products standards.

Research on THMs and other disinfection by-products has been under way since the early 1970s. The AWWA Research Foundation alone has spent over $140 million on drinking water research in the last decade, the largest expenditure in drinking water research in the world.

"AWWA strongly supports the study's recommendation for more research," Beaudet added. "For several years, water suppliers have taken steps to reduce THM levels in tap water and ensure safe drinking water to the public. Our member utilities will continue to take such steps consistent with the important requirements to maintain adequate disinfection.

"As an association that is dedicated to the safety of the nation's drinking water, we believe that the California scientific study merits public notice," said Beaudet. "Further, if pregnant women feel uncomfortable in any way with the findings of the study, we recommend they consult their personal physician for advice."

In order to help answer many questions, the Thief River Falls Water Department prepared the following question and answer story:

A recent California study suggests a link between miscarriages and disinfection by-products in drinking water call trihalomethanes (THMs). This is a fact sheet about THMs which are found at low parts-per-billion (ppb) levels in many public water systems, particularly those utilizing surface water as a source of supply such as the City of Thief River Falls.

Q. What are trihalomethanes (THMs)?

A. THMs and other disinfection by-products are formed when disinfectants such as chlorine — used to control disease-causing contaminants in drinking water — react with naturally occurring organic matter in the source water.

The primary trihalomethanes of concern are Chloroform, Bromodichloromethane, Dibromochloromethane, and Bromoform.

Q. Why are THMs in the drinking water?

A. THMs are the result of disinfecting water, which is essential for protecting consumers from life-threatening diseases. The health risks from THMs are extremely small compared to the risks associated with inadequate disinfection. It is important, therefore, that disinfection not be compromised in an attempt to decrease such by-products.

Q. How do you know if there are THMs in drinking water?

A. THMs may be present in most drinking water, including some bottled and home filtered water. To find out if THMs are in your tap water, call your local water department. For bottled water and home filtered water, check on the label or call the manufacturer.

Consumers can also test their own water for THMs by consulting a pre-approved, authorized laboratory in their state. For a listing of these laboratories call the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

Q. Are THMs monitored or regulated?

A. Yes. The EPA currently regulates trihalomethanes by imposing a maximum allowable level in drinking water of 100 parts-per-billion (ppb) on the average. To reduce potential exposure, EPA has proposed to lower that level in the future to an average of 80 ppb

Q. What about pregnant women. Should they be concerned?

A. Women in the early stage of pregnancy may wish to consult their physicians for advice. However, health officials who reviewed the THM study agreed that in general they would NOT advise women in early pregnancy to stop drinking water from public supplies.

Q. How can THM exposure be minimized?

A. THM levels in tap water can be minimized by boiling it for one full minute and letting it cool before drinking or by using a home water treatment device that is officially certified by NSF International as effective to remove THMs

Q. Where can you get more information?

A. The EPA Drinking Water Hotline 1-800-426-4791 is available to answer questions on disinfection by-products, trihalomethanes, and many other drinking water subjects. This hotline operates from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. EST, Monday through Friday. Brochures and other materials can also be requested through the hotline. Additionally, the office of Ground Water and Drinking Water at EPA maintains a website with much useful information on drinking water. The address is http://www.epa.gov/OGWDW/. Additional information can be obtained by accessing the American Water Works Association's website at http://www.awwa.org

Q. How can you get information on your city's water supply?

A. Call Allen Lamm at the Water Purification Plant, 681-3809.

The following are test results from 1996 and 1997 for the Thief River Falls Water Supply: Chloroform 58 ppb in 1996 and 84 ppb in 1997, Bromodichloromethane 4.1 ppb in 1996 and 3.8 ppb in 1997; Dibromochloromethane not detected in 1996 or 1997; Bromoform not detected in 1996 or 1997. Total THMs totaled 62.1 ppb in 1996 and 87.8 ppb in 1997

In cooperation with the Minnesota Department of Health, THM testing will be done on a quarterly basis in 1998. This is to prepare for a proposed future change in the maximum allowable limit of 100 ppb

Although the population of Thief River Falls is less than the Federally required limit of 10,000 people for this water quality regulation, your water department has monitored and/or treated the water supply for all water quality standards of the Safe Drinking Water Act.

Maggie Stock, Keta Levinson and Kara Larson were three of the four seventh grade Respect Team. The other team member was Nathan Browning. The Respect Team served hot chocolate and cookies to the staff at Franklin Middle School on Wednesday as part of Random Acts of Kindness Week at Franklin Middle School. The event promoted positive self-worth and empathy for others.

Don Schirrick elected treasurer of coalition

Board of the International Coalition for Land/Water Stewardship of the Red River Basin met recently in Grand Forks. Red Lake County farmer, Don Schirrick, who has been a director of TIC since 1995 was advanced to the executive board at that meeting. In the ensuring executive board meeting he was elected treasurer of the 19-year-old organization.

As treasurer, Schirrick joins other board officers, President Bud Oliver of Selkirk, Manitoba; vice president and former Grand Forks Mayor, Michael Polovitz; and Secretary John Oxton, a farmer from Hope, ND.

TIC presently maintains staffed offices in both Moorhead and in Winnipeg. TIC's byline of "Promoting Wise Stewardship of Land and Water Resources in the Red River Basin" is still its foundation. TIC has served as a uniting force in bringing people together from three major jurisdictions, Manitoba, Minnesota and North Dakota. Its annual conferences have focused on vital Basin concerns and have provided citizens of the Red River Basin a non-confrontational forum.

The current 1998 objectives of the TIC are: to update data gathering; storing and dispensing of technology to enhance its capability to communicate; provide personnel to carry out the task; explore ways of improving its board member representation with Basin-wide contacts; and to focus on expanding the annual conference to make it more accessible to citizens.

It was Judy Brovick's birthday on Saturday. Charles Reed brought her over to the Gully Cafe for dinner. Some of us showed up at the Cafe for dinner too and soon Judy was sharing her birthday 'goodies'. Edna surprised Judy with a decorated birthday cake. The Cafe customers were all treated to a taste of her nicely decorated and good cake to go with our coffee. Judy received many nice gifts and cards which she really enjoyed. We'll be waiting for February 7, 1909 Judy and a piece of cake again!

Rural Minnesotans, find new ways to be heard

A common theme expressed by local residents has been the neglect of issues facing northern Minnesotans by legislators and bureaucrats living in the Twin Cities. Quite often, it seems, northern Minnesota is described as anything north of St. Cloud. Other than our own legislators, we rarely see or meet the people making public policy.

How did this happen? This state of affairs probably occurred because of a shift in population and politics. There's not much that can be done to change that in the near future, so we must explore new ways of expressing our opinions and having our voice heard in St. Paul. Paul Olson, representing the Blandin Foundation offers the following opinion on the subject.

by Paul Olson
Blandin Foundation

In legislative politics, he who gets the ear of the majority wins. Unless rural Minnesotans redouble their efforts to explain their needs to non-rural lawmakers, that political truism could spell trouble for rural Minnesota.

The reality for rural Minnesotans is that our rural legislators are not a majority today and they will be a smaller minority after the year 2002. The reason: Every decade, the federal government takes a new census and state and federal legislative seats are rearranged based on where the census says people live. Because suburban areas have been growing more rapidly than rural areas, we can expect that the representation of rural Minnesota in the Legislature and Congress will decrease.

This upcoming political realignment is the result of a long-term demographic trend. In 1950, 46 percent of the Minnesota population was made up of rural citizens. Today, that percentage has slipped to 30 percent. As rural populations have diminished, rural clout in legislative bodies has also diminished.

So why should that matter to rural Minnesotans? Because governments distribute funds and develop programs that affect our daily lives. Rural legislators need support from urban and suburban areas to serve our needs. After the year 2002 redistribution of legislative seats, their job will get much tougher.

As we approach the new millennium, there are some promising developments in rural Minnesota. Telecommunications and computer technology now make it easier than ever to do business with the world in rural areas. Urban tourists attracted to our pristine environment increasingly provide a boon to many communities. And more than ever businesses are attracted to rural Minnesota's quality of life and highly motivated workforce.

But in order to fully seize these opportunities we will need a strong partnership with the public sector. We will have to convince an increasingly urban- and suburban-dominated state legislature to help provide more rural Minnesotans access to advanced telecommunications technology, balance environmental and commercial needs, and leverage private investment in fledgling rural enterprises.

Rural voices need to be heard in legislative debates because our needs are unique and different. In order to make good policy that works for all citizens, legislators need to understand that education vouchers have a different effect on a rural community with a single public school than they do on an urban community with dozens of public and private schools. They need to know that workfare programs have a different effect on rural recipients with more limited employment and day care options than they do on metro area recipients with more options. They need to learn how a managed care program has a different effect on rural communities with few health care providers than it does on metro communities enjoying the benefits of a more competitive health care market.

Just as importantly, legislators need to know that rural Minnesota is a good place to invest. It is unbelieveable to me how little some lawmakers know about the terrific things going on in our communities. We need to invite them out to our communities so that they can see for themselves who we are, where we are succeeding, and where we could use their assistance.

Just four years from now, rural Minnesotans will have a smaller number of bodies representing us in legislative chambers, but we must take steps to ensure that we do not have a smaller voice. Increasingly, what we lack in representation will have to be made up with creativity and diligence. Our arguments will have to be well reasoned, thoroughly researched and aggressively presented by an army of energetic, informed, and empowered rural citizens. In short, to keep the public sector an active partner in building successful rural economies we will have to take to hear the words of Napoleon Bonaparte: "Ten persons who speak make more noise than ten thousand who are silent."

Chipping away at the First Amendment?

Information in a recent edition of the Minnesota Newspaper Association Bulletin seems to corroborate some of the impressions I have about First Amendment rights. Because the Constitution and amendments were intended to provide direction for governance of a nation I've always tended to think of the them as flexible guideposts for a nation. In my experience, rules and regulations, now matter how stringent and punitive, tend to bend and waver in the face of public opinion or whimsy. Quite often I declare it whimsy because a clearly defined reason for the change doesn't always appear to have played a part in the decision to "bend" the rules. And so, it seems, theorists and people generally more knowledgeable than we are now declaring that we're chipping away at First Amendment rights.

As you read the following thoughts ask why the pollsters asked the questions they asked, and keep in mind the First Amendment itself, which reads: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for redress of grievances."

Americans overwhelming support the idea of the First Amendment, but many are willing to chip away at it over issues such as flag-burning and prayer in schools, according to a new poll by The Freedom Forum.

More than nine out of 10 respondents — 93 percent told pollsters they would vote yes if the Constitution's guarantee of freedom of speech, press, religion and association were being ratified today.

At the same time, 49 percent would amend it to prevent flag-burning, which courts have ruled to be a form of political speech, and 42 percent want to let communities decide about school prayer, a potential breach of the separation of church and state.

While 79 percent agree that newspapers should be allowed to publish freely and without government interference, 38 percent say newspapers now have too much freedom and 35 percent would stop the press from reporting government secrets.

In addition 44 percent would keep cameras out of courtrooms.

The figures are from a poll of 1,026 American adults taken July 17 to August 1 by the Center for Survey Research and Analysis at the University of Connecticut.

The sampling error was three percentage points. Ninety percent of those polled said people should be allowed to express unpopular opinions — but then 75 percent said they would not allow public speech that might be offensive to racial groups, 53 percent are against displaying art that may offend, and 47 percent would not allow songs with distasteful lyrics. — The Associated Press.

The Gully Community Club will meet on Tuesday, February 17, at 7 o'clock at the Gully Community Center. Members are encouraged to come and more members are very welcome and also encouraged to come.

A few weeks ago I mentioned the famous Terry Redlin picture at Lund church that had been given in memory of Gordon Huseth. I had gotten some wrong information at that time that I'd like to correct. Gordon's sister, Vinette Esperson from Brainerd, was along with Dianne (Gordon's wife) when they chose the picture "Almost Home", in memory of husband and brother. It reminded them of Gully and the church the way it was when Gordon and Vinette were growing up. Then Vinette and her husband Ray Esperson came from Brainerd to hang the picture. It can be seen as one enters the church. It is a peaceful looking scene reminding us of how fortunate we are living here without the ravages of floods and storms just now. For some of us older ones, it also reminds us of how long we've been blessed to have members of the Huseth family to do their part in shaping the community and promoting the church. We remember Tom and his wife Marie bring Gordon and Vinette to church in their "long ago" car so Vinette could play the organ and Gordon was always so ready to do his part. Further back we know Tom's folks (Gordon's grandparents) Mr. and Mrs. Ole Huseth took part in Lund church. After studying the picture, we are in a receptive mood to go up and hear the sermon intended for us living in this enchanted world. In one of the old reports written in Norwegian it says "Den Forste trustiskop: Ole Huseth 1909 to 1912 og Tom Huseth 1918-1921.

Dear Editor:

The Salvation Army Kettle Campaign was a great success this year. As kettle chairperson, I would like to take this time to thank everybody who was involved in making it such a success. There were many organizations that gave freely of their time as well as individuals.

We greatly appreciate all the businesses that allow us to put our kettles in their establishments. A special thanks to K-Mart for allowing us to have our manned kettle inside their front door. I know at times the staff must have gotten annoyed at hearing the bells ringing for hours on end. The end results of being able to make Christmas for those who would otherwise go without, I'm sure, is rewarding for all those involved.

Once again, thank you for supporting our kettle campaign. We have a great community of caring people and once again, they have had the opportunity to shine.

Sincerely,
Shannon Olson

Dear Editor:

Last evening at the First National Bank in Thief River Falls employees and directors took part in a CPR training class given by employees of Northwest Medical Center. In this class we used simulated victims called "Annies". These Annies allowed each person participating to have actual hands on experience in the CPR and Obstruction of Air or Choking person processes.

As a group we would like to thank the VFW Post 2793 for the donation of these "Annies". Without them it would not have been the excellent experience that each of us had. These classes are important to us all and the VFW is making it easier for more people to have that hands on experience that is so necessary.

So, thank you again Chet Aubol and the VFW Post 2793.

Polio Drive Nets More Than $5,000

"Slightly more than $5,000 had been turned in up to Wednesday noon in the Pennington county polio fund campaign which is now being brought to a close, Glenn Carlson, drive chairman, stated today, adding that a final report will be made next week. Carlson also revealed that Paul Engelstad, prominent Rocksbury farmer, is the Pennington county 'Mystery Farmer,' who at the onset of the local campaign volunteered to contribute to the polio fund an amount equal to 10 percent of the total donations made by all rural residents of Pennington county.

"Mr. Engelstad this week expressed the hope that the 300 rural residents who have not yet sent in their March of Dimes cards would do so at once and make him dig that much deeper to pay his 10 percent."

Hoffman announced Wednesday. The department is asking for bids on 8.5 miles of paving on Highway 32 from Thief River Falls to St. Hilaire to connect with the St. Hilaire-Red Lake Falls paving job completed in 1947; and also for paving 1.3 miles on Highway 59 in Thief River Falls, comprising the east Third street parkway from the Soo Line crossing to the east city limits."

Rural Spelling Contest February 14

"Schools in the rural districts throughout Pennington county recently have been selecting their best spellers, who will compete in the annual Pennington county spelling contest, Saturday afternoon, February 14, in the courtroom in the courthouse, starting at 2 o'clock, Mrs. A. WAR? Spaniards Sink the Battleship Maine.

REGULAR BOARD MEETING
January 26, 1998
5:30 p.m.
S.D.S.C. Conference Room A

A Regular Board Meeting of Independent School District #564 was held on Monday, January 26, 1998, at 5:30 p.m. in Conference Room A of the School District Service Center.

The following Board members were present: Carl Clark, Jean Larson, Cheryl Lee, Lyle Olson, Randy Twistol, Darla Twomey and Steve Young. Also present was Dr. Jerry Robichaeu, Superintendent of Schools.

Chairperson Carl Clark called the meeting to order and Clerk Jean Larson established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by D. Twomey and seconded by C. Lee to approve the agenda as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

Board members were reminded of the MSBA Phase 1, II and New Officers' Workshop scheduled for February 6 & 7 in Plymouth. The January 1st Enrollment Report was briefly reviewed.

The Board recognized the following students whose poems will be published in a publication titled "A Celebration of Young People" along with entries of other young poets from Wisconsin and Minnesota: 7th graders Kate Levinson, Nick Olson and Shannon Smith; and 8th graders Brittany Larson, Nachele Olson, Kay Lynn Steiger and Crissy Wegner. John and Larrathe Seaverson were recognized for donating a computer to the school district's Volunteer Program. The Backcourt Club was recognized for donating $3,100 to purchase game day outfits and shooting shirts for the girls and boys basketball programs. Recent donations to the district's Close-Up program were also acknowledged including Darla Twomey and Diane Freeman who donated scholarships and Bridgeman's and Hugo's who donated ingredients for the program's cookie sale.

Glenn Chiodo updated the Board on grad rule implementation in the district indicating that the alignment of the standards to our curriculum is going very well. Testing has been scheduled to take place in February and March. Glenn is currently putting together a number of policies relating to the grad rule. These draft policies will be presented to the Board in March for consideration.

Board members shared information about the different sessions they had attended during the MSBA Leadership Conference held earlier in the month. Members were excited about the information they gathered and felt the conference including the Board Inservice was worthwhile.

Member Jean Larson reported on the session a group of individuals held last week to begin developing a program for the gifted and talented. The group met with Dr. Stephen Schroeder-Davis who put together a program for the Elk River Public Schools. It has been suggested that the program be modeled similar to the way the Technology Program is in the district with a Districtwide Coordinator of Academic Activities overseeing the program. Dr. Schroeder-Davis will be in the district on February 13th to meet with teachers about the program.

Superintendent Jerry Robichaeu reviewed the proposed calendar for the 1998-99 school year noting the addition of three student days with staff development activities scheduled during designated late start and early out days throughout the year. School will start the Wednesday before Labor Day, which the law allows for the upcoming year, and the last day for students and graduation would be June 4, 1999. Copies of the approved calendar will be mailed to staff in the near future. Jerry briefly talked about discussions that are taking place to relocate the metals and small engines vocational programs to Lincoln High School sometime in the future. Board members were reminded of the Community Forum scheduled for Tuesday, January 27th, at 6:30 p.m. in the Challenger Cafeteria. Jerry also noted that a suggested format to provide for public input at Board Meetings will be presented to the Board for consideration in February.

Carl and Polly Reed, co-chairs of the on-site American Cancer Society Daffodil sale, prepare envelopes for mailing and posters and table tents for distributions. The letters to each volunteer contain time and location assignment confirmation and American Cancer Society's guidelines for the sale. Posters and table tents announcing the event will be distributed the week of March 9. Reeds have secured 120 volunteers to staff six sale locations in Thief River Falls. The time given to the effort by each volunteer is two and one-half hours. The six sale locations this year are First National Bank, Norwest Bank, Northern State Bank, Rex Cafe, SuperValu and Pamida. Sale days are Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, March 18, 19 and 20.

ACS Daffodil Days to begin March 8 in TRF

Pennington County's Unit of the American Cancer Society will conduct Daffodil Days beginning March 8.

You don't have to wait for April showers to bring May flowers. Volunteers of the Pennington County unit of the American Cancer Society will bring the brilliance of freshly cut daffodils to Pennington county on March 8. These are Daffodil Days of the American Cancer Society. The Society chose to honor the daffodil because it is a symbol of hope for cancer patients.

Daffodil Days began in Canada about 35 years ago. The first Minnesota Division event was held in 1981. Now the event is held nationwide each year in the United States and Canada.

The American Cancer Society's long range goal is to eliminate cancer entirely as a human disease. The immediate goal is to save more lives and to diminish suffering from cancer to the fullest extent possible, through education and support services.

In the last two years, the local chapter has raised more than $10,000 each year during Daffodil Days. The money raised during the event helps fund national cancer research, education and service programs. Locally, the society is trying to fulfill patient and caregiver needs through a variety of services. In 1996, the local chapter helped over 50 cancer patients or their families, provided medical equipment, supplies, travel reimbursement and other support for cancer survivors. Over 4,000 people were provided with life-saving prevention and early detection messages. Despite this work, the total cost of benefits received in Pennington county was greater than the local chapter was able to raise in fund-raising efforts.

In an effort to bring that message to local and area residents, members of the local board have enlisted hundreds of volunteers to spread the word. The society relies heavily on the goodness of its strong volunteer core. Across the country, the society operates its programs through the support of over 2 million carefully trained volunteers. In Minnesota alone, there are over 50,000 volunteers aiding cancer patients, educating the public and professionals, assisting in fund-raising events and in many, many more activities.

The local unit attempts to raise funds each year through several events, such as its Memorial Program, Golf Pass/Longest Day of Golf, Daffodil Days, and its Community Crusade.

Daffodils will be on sale for $5 per bunch on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, March 18, 19 and 20 at First National Bank, Norwest Bank, Northern State Bank, Rex Cafe, SuperValu and Pamida. Volunteers will also be visiting with local businesses to secure sponsorships.

Cancer is survivable, but much more needs to be done to eliminate this disease. In the early part of the century there was little hope of long term survival. Today, nearly 50 percent of those diagnosed with cancer survive five years or more.

Regular screening and self-exams can detect cancers of the breast, tongue, mouth, colon, rectum, cervix, prostate, testies and melanoma at an early stage, when treatment is more likely to be successful.

The American Cancer Society offers information and services to help individuals learn about cancer prevention and early detection.

School Dist. 564 to review candidates for principal

by David Hill
Associate Editor

School District 564 has received 10 applications for position of Franklin Middle School principal. Superintendent Jerry Robicheau said a number of meetings are planned to select a new principal from the applicants, and a new principal should be on board by April 1.

Robicheau reported to the school board Monday night, February 20, that 10 applications had been received. He said he will next meet with the Franklin Middle School Building Leadership Team to review the applicants and reduce the number to four or five, which will be interviewed the week of March 9 and March 16. The candidates will be interviewed by representatives of Franklin Middle School staff, the school's Building Leadership Team, and School Board Members. Robicheau said he will present the final candidate to the board for approval in April.

Family Advocacy

Jill Johnson, family advocate, presented an update on the Family Advocacy Program.

The Family Advocacy Program received 48 referrals last year. Of the 48 referrals, three were males the rest females. The vision of the Family Advocacy Program is to provide teen and single parents, and the parents of young children an opportunity to take control of their lives and make the best of their potential by learning to advocate for themselves and their families. Services and activities available through the program, which is located in the School District Service Center, includes prenatal and parent education, parent education workshops, one-on-one support services, a "Teen Connections" support group, new baby visits/new baby bags, resource and toy lending, and networking with community resources and agencies.

Student Activities Update

Jim Sims, student activities director, presented an update on the student activities program in the district. Sims reviewed the tournament scene in the district, compliance issues, programs and coaching vacancies.

If board members didn't have an idea of how many games and tournaments are held in Thief River Falls, they do now. Sims reviewed each sporting program and how many tournaments each program hosts in the community.

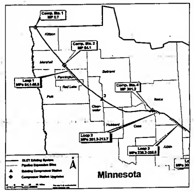
Great Lakes Gas to loop line



Great Lakes Gas Transmission Company is proposing to install about 259 miles of 36-inch diameter welded steel natural gas pipeline in 11 segments (loops) along Great Lakes' existing mainline system.

Great Lakes Gas Transmission Co. is proposing to expand its existing interstate natural gas pipeline through northwestern Minnesota.

According to information that will be presented to Pennington County Commissioners, the new project would include construction of approximately 259 miles of 36-inch diameter welded steel natural gas pipeline in eleven segments (loops) along Great Lakes' existing mainline system. The new facilities planned at this time include: three separate loops in Minnesota totaling about 71 miles; two loops in Wisconsin totaling about 44 miles, five loops in Michigan totaling about 139 miles; and a crossing of the Straits of Mackinac totaling about five miles. Of the loops in Minnesota, one loop would be located in the counties of Marshall, Pennington and Red Lake.

In addition to new underground pipeline construction, Great Lakes is proposing to add compression at seven of its existing compressor stations; three stations in Minnesota and four stations in Michigan. Minor modifications at other existing compressor stations are also planned.

Great Lakes representatives will be contacting officials in the near future.

Mock trial team advances

Despite being short one team member, Lincoln high school's mock trial team gained advancement to the regional championship round for the sixth time in nine years with two wins in quarter-final and semi-final trials Saturday, February 21, at the Clay county courthouse in Moorhead.

Coached by teacher Cal Lindberg and attorney Mike Jorgenson, the Lincoln team opened the day with a 14-point win over the Fergus Falls Blue team, 179 to 165. Fergus Falls had been placed third and Thief River Falls sixth in the eight-team regional championship format. The Lincoln team earned top points from both judges, 98 to 89 and 81 to 76.

In the afternoon trial, Lincoln was matched against Perham, the No. 2 seed which had defeated Moorhead in the morning trial. Again Lincoln emerged the winner but by a much closer 164-161 margin. Lincoln received the nod from both judges, 89-87 and 75-74.

Lincoln argued the defense side of the case in both trials, and the defendant was found not guilty in both cases. A coin flip determined the prosecution and defense positions at the afternoon trial.

In the other division of the championship round conducted Saturday at Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls Green team advanced to the championship round with wins over No. 8 seed East Grand Forks Sacred Heart and No. 5 seed Moorhead Blue. Moorhead defeated No. 4 seed Warren in the morning trial.

The wins by Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls set up yet another regional championship meeting between the two schools. The final trial will be on Tuesday, March 3, at 12:30 p.m. in the Clay county courthouse in Moorhead. Thief River Falls will present the prosecution's case in the championship trial.

Lincoln has lost to Fergus Falls three times in the finals to select a state entry. Under a prior regional set-up, LHS lost twice in regional championship rounds to Virginia.

Coach Lindberg said his team members put on their best performances of the season Saturday and he was pleased by the good parent and family support exhibited by those who attended the trials in Moorhead. Cross-examinations, opening and closing statements and objections by the student attorneys were outstanding, he said, and the witnesses were solid under cross-examination.

With student attorney Nikolas Katz absent from the team because of his participation in the Minnesota Governor's Scholar program the same weekend, Paul Dehnert filled his role as one of the three attorneys for the defense. Rachel Greelis gave the opening statement and Lesley Ihle the closing statement. All three

Roseau Community Theatre presents The Fantastiks

Roseau Community Theatre is presenting its version of the musical The Fantastiks at the Roseau community school on February 27 and 28 at 7:30 p.m. and March 1 at 2:30 p.m. The musical has been in production in New York City without interruption since 1960, making it the longest running musical in the world.

Musicians for the Roseau theatre production are Dawn McLead, Lindsay Brummer and Adam Grafstrom on piano, keyboard and electric bass guitar with Jessica Brummer as assistant musician. Jenee Provance is artistic/music director, Jim Provance is technical director and Kristi Hager is student director.

Steve Adkins is the narrator with Tember Melby as the Mute. Greg Fomess has the role of Matt with Beth Adams as Luisa. Both are high school seniors. Their fathers in the musical are portrayed by Paul Willcox as Hucklebee and Doug Johnson as Bellomy.

Jim Provance also plays the role of Henry, the actor, while Troy Brewster is his side-kick Mortimer.

"The beautiful songs, the energetic dances, the fast-paced dialogue in the community theatre's production of The Fantastiks will enable alert play-goers to learn one or two of life's lessons—without being hit by a Spanish slop pot," writes reviewer Annette Hermansen.

"When Matt returns like the Prodigal Son, Luisa and Matt discover their hearts are no longer 'hollow' and the audience finds that El Gallo's villainous actions were inspired by good intentions. I predict the audience will leave happily, carrying with them a melodic reminder of what to 'remember deep in December.'"

Marshall county road restrictions parallel highways

Effective date of road restrictions on all Marshall county roads will be concurrent with the placement of restrictions on state trunk highways in the county, according to the Marshall County Highway Department.

Updates concerning placement of restrictions by the state are available by calling 612-405-6022.

Restriction limits are based on gross axle weight which includes the weight of the vehicle and the load it carries. No permits for overweight axle loads exceeding legal or posted axle weights will be issued.

Erection of signs on any highway governs the effective date of the restriction. As long as signs remain in place, restrictions are in effect, the department said.

During the period when signs are in place, any county or town gravel road is restricted to five tons gross weight per axle. If signs are erected, the restrictions as indicated on the signs shall govern. If no signs are erected, the five-ton gross weight restriction shall apply.

Heart disease changes TRF woman's outlook on life

by Kathi Carlson
The Times Reporter

When Judy Inglis last heard someone sing "Happy Birthday" to her she was having coronary bypass surgery. The singers were the surgical team at Dakota Hospital in Fargo. It was February 25, 1997 — one year ago. today. Judy was 54 years old.

While she didn't think so for a long while, Judy was lucky. She was diagnosed with heart disease early, before her heart muscle had been damaged by a heart attack.

In the fall of 1996, Judy went to the doctor for a routine physical required by her day care business. Her cholesterol and blood pressure levels were good, and she checked out fine. As she was on her way out the door, her physician asked her if there was anything else that he should know. She mentioned a strange twinge that she had experienced in her shoulder a few days before.

Judy's father had a history of heart disease that had resulted in three by-pass surgeries, and because she and her dad shared the same doctor, he was familiar with that history. The physician scheduled a stress test. Judy failed the test and was sent to Fargo where an angiogram revealed blockage of 90 percent in one artery and 30 percent to two others. Judy had none of the classic symptoms of heart disease. "That's why they call it the silent killer, she says.

In October of 1996 a stint was inserted in the artery with 90 percent blockage at Dakota Hospital. Judy described the stint as a "stainless steel culvert," its purpose to open up the artery. The other partially blocked arteries would be treated with medication and monitored.

In the vast majority of cases, the stint takes care of the problem. It didn't work for Judy. She returned to Dakota Hospital in February for a single by-pass. The surgeon used a new procedure that did not require breaking her sternum.

Judy reacted to her surgery and the fact that she had heart disease with anger. She thought that she had always done well. Because of her father's experience with heart disease, she was knowledgable. She smoked years ago, but she quit so long ago that she doesn't even remember when it was. "I was very active," Judy says. As a licensed day care provider for 14 years, she stayed busy. With a dozen young children in her charge, she made countless trips up and down the steps of her split entry home each day.

With healthy blood pressure and cholesterol levels, heredity probably is a factor in her heart disease. "Dad had a tough time with it," Judy says. He felt responsible. A non-smoker, Judy's dad recently died of lung cancer, not the heart disease he battled for many years. Her brother, Marshall Vagle, has high blood pressure. He strives to control his blood pressure and exercises regularly.

Judy got over her anger and relied on her religious faith and the support of her family, friends and church to get her through.

Judy's husband Gary, a car salesman at Tunberg's, has always shared the housework and been supportive of her day care business. "I can't say enough good things about Gary," Judy says. "He's my partner."

The Inglis' have three children. Twenty-eight-year-old Brian lives in Grand Forks. Brad, 20, is attending school in Staples, and Mandy is a senior at Lincoln High School. While worried about their mother, the Inglis children were supportive through her ordeal. "The boys didn't say much, but Mandy was scared," Judy says.

Friends from the Evangelical Covenant Church brought meals to the Inglis home for several weeks, and Judy referred to friend Evadell Tangquist as a "big help."

Her day care business was closed for only one day, the day Judy had surgery. Betty Olson, an employee at the time, kept it going for her.

"Without family, friends and faith, one wouldn't get through times like that," Judy says.

The Inglis' comfortable rural home is full of lovely handcrafted items, many of them made by Judy during her recuperation time. "I was used to being busy," she said.

Her life today, however, is different from the way it was before she was diagnosed with heart disease. Judy says, "I have to do things that are good for me."

She exercises at the cardiac rehab center at Northwest Medical Center three times a week where her heart rate and blood pressure are carefully monitored, by machine for the first couple of months following surgery.

Today is Judy Inglis' 55th birthday, and she will spend it with the children at her rural Thief River Falls home day care business — doing what she loves most. One year ago today, Judy had coronary by-pass surgery at Dakota Hospital in Fargo. The surgical team sang "Happy Birthday" to her in the operating room.

Judy is active in her church and attends Al-Anon meetings three evenings a week, activities she considers "healthy."

She continues with her day care business, but instead of starting her day with children arriving at 4:30 a.m., the first children arrive around 7:30. She has hired more help and now takes some time off and leaves her charges in the care of others when she has something else to do. When Mandy comes home in the afternoon, she takes over for her mother.

When continuing her day care business became a question, her physicians felt that starting over in a different line of work might be more stressful than continuing to do what she was doing. "I love children," Judy says. It was evident that they love her, too, as three toddlers crawled into her lap. She estimates that she has cared for about 150 different children over the years and many of their pictures hang on the side of her refrigerator.

Judy is very much in tune with what is happening with her body now and is appreciative of medical professionals who really listen to her concerns. She was recently diagnosed with fibromyalgia which explained the pain she was experiencing in her shoulder and back as well as a sleep disorder. Two leaking heart valves are being closely watched and treated with medication.

Traditional health insurance covered most of the costs involved with her medical treatment, but Judy did run into a frustrating experience when one of the costly medications prescribed was not on the insurance company's "list" of medications covered by her co-pay plan.

When she thinks back, she realizes that perhaps there were symptoms that went unnoticed as is often the case in younger women with heart disease. Judy says, "Women often tolerate things." She was often fatigued, but says, " It was easy to justify what I was feeling."

Judy lives her life one day at a time and makes the best of each day. "Life has a different meaning now," she says. "And I have more energy than I've had for a long time." She appears healthy and is happy.

She will spend her 55th birthday doing what she loves — fingerpainting with preschoolers and rocking three or four toddlers at once. The sixteen-month-old who so sweetly serenaded us with "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star" yesterday will be singing "Happy Birthday" today. Judy's heart, this year, will be lighter, and the music will be sweet.

Facts About Women And Cardiovascular Diseases

- Coronary heart disease is the No. 1 killer of American women.
- More than one in five females have some form of cardiovascular disease.
- Since 1984 the number of cardiovascular disease deaths for females has exceeded those for males. The difference in deaths is currently more than 50,000.
- In the United States, all cardiovascular diseases combined claim more female lives every year than the next 16 causes of death combined and almost twice as many as do all forms of cancer.
- Almost 20,000 females under age 65 die of coronary heart disease each year; more than 31 percent of them are under age 55.
- In 63 percent of women who die suddenly of coronary heart disease, there is no previous evidence of the disease.
- Within six years after a recognized heart attack, 31 percent of women will have another heart attack, 34 percent will develop chest pain, 18 percent will have a stroke, 20 percent will be disabled by heart failure and 6 percent will experience sudden cardiac death.
- At older ages, women who have sudden heart attacks are more likely than men to die from them within a few weeks. Studies how that 44 percent of women die within one year compared to 27 percent of men.
- From ages 35 to 74, the age-adjusted death rate from coronary heart disease for black women is more than 71 percent higher than that of white women.
- Many women, before menopause, seem to be protected from the risk of heart attack and stroke, perhaps by the hormone estrogen. One way that estrogen might help reduce a woman's risk of coronary heart disease is to raise her HDL cholesterol level and lower her LDL cholesterol. However, as a woman approaches menopause, ususally around age 55, things change. After menopause, a woman's risk of heart attack and stroke rises and keeps rising as she ages.

What Every Woman Should Know About Fighting Heart Disease and Stroke

Although cardiovascular disease is epidemic in women as well as in men, significant progress has been made in the diagnosis and treatment of heart disease and stroke. A greater focus on prevention has also helped. Woman can take control of their lives and chose habits that promote cardiovascular health.

- Stop smoking. Smoking is the most preventable risk factor for heart attack and stroke. Today, 23.5 million American women smoke, and as a result they run more than twice the risk of having a heart attack as nonsmoking women. Women smokers who use oral contraceptives may have an even much greater risk of both heart attack and stroke. If a woman starts to smoke, she is less likely to quit than a man. However, if she stops smoking, no matter how long or how much she smoked, her risk of heart disease and stroke rapidly declines.
- Control your blood cholesterol level. A high level of cholesterol in the blood is a major risk factor for coronary heart disease. The higher your blood cholesterol level, the more likely that fats and cholesterol will build in your artery walls. More research is needed to pinpoint the healthiest cholesterol levels for women, but in general, your total cholesterol should be less than 200 mg/dL. Your HDL (good cholesterol) should be 35 mg/dL or higher, and your LDL (bad cholesterol) should be below 130 mg/dL.
- Monitor and control your triglycerides. Triglyceride is the chemical form in which most fats exist. Research suggests that high triglyceride levels may increase the risk of coronary heart disease for women more than men. The reasons are not clear, and more research is being done. Keep your triglyceride levels less than 200 mg/dL by losing weight, exercising regularly, decreasing alcohol intake and reducing cholesterol and saturated fat in your diet.
- High blood pressure is defined as readings of 140/90 or greater that stay high over an extended time. High blood pressure is a major risk factor for stroke and also increases your risk of heart and kidney disease. If you have high blood pressure, work with your doctor to treat it. Also, limit your intake of sodium and alcohol and control your weight.

SPEAKING OF EDUCATION

Jerry Robicheau, Superintendent
School District 564

Dear Citizens of Independent School District #564:

It's very hard to believe that we are at the end of February and winding down in all of our winter activities. The winter has certainly been good to us and we are very appreciative of the way Mother Nature has given us a reprieve from the kind of winter we had last year.

As we look at what has happened over the course of this winter, we've had a number of activities taking place and students are now gearing up for March madness and all of the section playoffs for hockey, basketball, swimming, and other kinds of activities including Mock Trial and Science Fairs. Students are kept busy with everything they are involved in. We've had a great deal of success in our Mock Trial and Science Fair activities and we want to extend our congratulations to those students who are participating in these activities.

Just a couple of highlights that I would like you to be aware of. We continue to develop parameters for our agricultural program. We have formed an Agricultural Advisory Committee and they will provide us with extensive input and parameters for the kind of program we need as we address this issue for students.

Secondly, we are forming and have had a couple of meetings with an advisory committee for a program for gifted and talented students. We will also be following the same format as our Ag Advisory Committee relating to what kind of structure and format we have for the programs for gifted and talented.

Also, we will be discussing with high school staff some options for an attendance policy that will address the fact that we need students in school to be able to teach them. Our attendance is good but we are continually striving for improvement in that area. There will be a task force dealing with this issue over the course of the next several weeks so we can have a revised attendance policy in place for students in the 1998-98 school year.

We are also involved in how we can improve student achievement. We continually strive to provide opportunities for students that will allow them to demonstrate a high level of achievement. I have met with all staff members in the district and have asked them the questions, How can we improve student achievement? What variables do we have to have in place to assure students are achieving at the best level they can? I have received a tremendous amount of input and I would invite citizens of School District # 564 to take a couple of minutes, jot down a note and send it to me or give me a call and let me know what you think we need to do to increase student achievement in our district. This is an important activity as we look at how we can make sure students are learning at the level we expect them to.

We also recently completed our basic skills testing for eighth grade students in reading, math and writing. The results will be sent to us sometime in the near future at which time we will then notify the public as to how our students are doing. We are extremely proud of our students and what they have been able to accomplish. We are also very proud of our staff and how they are interacting with students. We believe we have one of the best systems in the State of Minnesota and can be very proud of what our students are accomplishing.

One other area citizens need to be aware of is that the Board of Education is interested in opening up communication with the public. What the Board has done is take action to afford public input at their regular meetings. What they will be doing at the beginning of their meetings is invite any public in attendance to address the Board on issues they would like to present to the Board. There would be a brief, 5-minute opportunity to present to the Board. Citizens are invited to attend the meeting and fill out the necessary form prior to the start of the meeting. School Board meetings are held on the second and fourth Mondays of the month, unless otherwise noted in the Times or on the radio. Special Board meetings are called for purposes as necessary information directly to the School Board regarding the operation of Independent School District #564.

It has been a very positive school year and we feel the direction the district is headed is very positive for students and parents within our community. In the very near future, information will be shared with the community as to how we are fulfilling our commitment to the community based on the levy that was passed in November. If, at any time, you have questions or concerns regarding Independent School District #564, I invite you to give me a call at 681-8711, and I will address your concerns. I certainly want to thank you, the citizens of our school district, for your commitment to students.

Reflections
On Principles Of Truth

Friendships

"A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly: and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." (Proverbs 18:24) This is a very good verse for basing a friendship on. We all have many friends, but we'll really never have a true friendship until we put this verse to use. Friendships are a very special thing, but they are also very delicate. One of the verses we need to remember in a friendship is: "A soft answer turneth away wrath: but grievous words stir up anger." (Proverbs 15:1) This is a good verse to remember when we have arguments in our friendships. There will always be things on which we disagree. When this happens we have two choices. 1) We can say bad things so that we will feel better and ruin the relationship, or 2) We can put smiles on our faces and say kind things so that our friends will know we really care about them and our friendship. I know personally that there are times I don't want to say kind things because of some things my friends do that really hurt me. It's then that we have to remember that Jesus told us to forgive each other as He forgives us. In friendships there must be trust, love, and forgiveness.

The first area I want to talk about is trust. This word "trust" means many things that are really important. It means that we must speak truth to one another at all times like it says in Proverbs 21:6: "The getting of treasures by a lying tongue is a vanity tossed to and fro of them that seek death." We have to be careful that we don't lie, or even stretch the truth a little to our friends. Once that happens part of the trust in a relationship is gone.

The second area is love. Love can mean many things also, like the love between a husband and a wife, or the love between Jesus and you, or even how you love a pet. The love that I'm referring to is a self-sacrificial love. When you love your friends as Christ has loved us, there becomes a unity between you and your friends. Self-sacrificial love means that you will love your friends no matter what, as it says in John 15:13: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." This verse expresses how important love really is in a friendship. If there's no love, then where's the friendship?

The third area is forgiveness. We all make mistakes and all need forgiveness. If you're going to have a true friendship, you need to learn how to forgive one another. Forgive their faults and even when they hurt you, forgive. We need to forgive as Christ forgives us.

The last and most important area in a friendship is Jesus Christ. You can have trust, love, and forgiveness, but if you don't have Jesus Christ as the center of your friendship, you really have nothing. Jesus is always there, and He is always willing to help us in any way we need help. He can teach us how to trust, love, and forgive one another.

I would like to close with a poem written by Nora M. Bozeman entitled "A True Friend"

A friend is one who's on your side Someone in whom you can confide.
One who consoles you when you're sad
And turns depressing days to glad.

A friend is there
through thick and thin,
Caring, concerned, and genuine.
A special someone with a gift
To give your heavy heart a lift.

When you're down and in despair
A faithful friend is always there.
They do not scold or reprimand
And always seem to understand.

So, if you have but one true friend
To be there for you to the end,
Thank the Lord and say a prayer-
You're richer than a millionaire.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

Morning Madness

I hate mornings. It's not because I need my beauty sleep, but rather my 7-year-old son thinks he needs HIS beauty sleep.

Rousting him out of bed at 7 a.m. on a school day after 10 to 11 hours of sleep is like trying to wake an animal during winter hibernation. Personally, I've never tried stirring an animal from a deep slumber, but can assume that it's extremely difficult.

Difficult describes our typical mornings at home. Notice that earlier I stated "school day" mornings. On Saturdays and Sundays he jumps out of bed at 7 a.m. ready to attack the day, and he expects his parents to do the same.

We're challenged Monday through Friday. We start by trying to kick him out of bed. In return, he puts on a well-voiced whine. "I'm tired," he says, dragging out the "ired" like a practiced opera singer stuck on a high note. To which his less-than-patient parents respond: "Well, you'll just have to go to bed earlier from now on. Like 5 o'clock!"

But the 7-year-old's philosophy is that he's tired because he DID sleep a long time. Maybe he has just solved the world's sleep problems: The more you sleep, the more tired you are.

That, however, does not solve our morning problems, which continue all the way to the bus. The established routine is: brush teeth, dress, eat breakfast, out the door.

Every step is a struggle. Brushing teeth takes a solid five minutes, give or take five more, and I'm not sure the brush touches all 24 teeth. He does more fooling around than removing plaque.

Dressing is as much of a challenge. This topic could be a column all on its own.

I wonder how it is that a 7-year-old has discovered fashion? I always thought I was fortunate to have a boy. You just need a lifetime supply of jeans and T-shirts and sweatshirts. I was wrong.

I surrender on the clothing battlefield. To ease the conflict, I keep re-washing his three favorite shirts. After deciding what to wear, it's a matter of putting it on. He somehow gets lost between the closet and the bedroom door. Distracted is more like it. At 7:30 a.m. he's discovered a multitude of toys he didn't know he had, and of course he has to play with them.

From here we move on to breakfast, which usually ends up on his formerly clean shirt. We either scrub the offending spot or tromp back to the bedroom to negotiate on another shirt to wear.

It's now pushing bus time. But instead of putting on boots and coat at 7:48 a.m. (the bus arrives at 7:52 a.m.) he's digging in his closet for a show-and-tell object.

After a fair amount of pleading, threatening, yelling, and jumping up and down, we're out the door, frantically shoving the necessities into the backpack. Finally. And there aren't any happy faces.

By the time the bus arrives at 7:52 a.m. I feel as if I've put in a full day. Can we start over? There's always tomorrow.

ACTIVITIES

Teddy Bear Picnic

Have a picnic with teddy bears! Spread out a blanket or tablecloth. Fill a large basket with plastic cups, plates and toy foods. Encourage your child to remove the items from the basket and serve a picnic to his or her teddy bears. After the picnic, the child can return the items to the basket.

Your children can also be teddy bears in the following project and have their own picnic. Cut a strip of posterboard about an inch wide and long enough to fit around the child's head just above his or her ears for each child and attach two brown construction paper circles for ears. Then fit one of these headbands around each child's head and secure the ends with tape. Your children can pretend to be teddy bears as they wear the headbands. The following song can be sung at the end of the picnic:

Little Bear
(Tune: Are You Sleeping?)
Little bear, little bear
Go to sleep, go to sleep
Close your little eyes now
Close your little eyes now
Go to sleep, go to sleep.

Dining Out With Young Children

Dining out with young children can be a stressful experience or a very pleasant one. You decide. Often we as parents expect too much of our children in certain situations. Therefore realistic expectations will help make this a pleasant experience. Realizing that dining out with children is rarely an adult-centered activity, but rather a child-centered one, will also help. Following are some tips for dining out with young children from the St. Louis County Council to Prevent Child Abuse.

•Consider a restaurant that caters to families, a place where young children's noise activity level and, yes, sometimes mess, will be accepted.

•Hungry children are not known for their patience and don't see the time before the meal as a time for conversation and relaxation. Order as soon as you can or, in some cases, call ahead and order in advance. Fast foods and buffet style restaurants may be best until your children are older.

•Restaurants are new and stimulating places for young children. Take them for a walk while waiting for your meal. Don't allow them to wander alone. While carrying trays of food, restaurant staff have a hard time seeing small children.

•Tired children rarely make it through a meal without incident. If possible, plan your dining out for a time when your child is rested.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Games such as "I Spy" or "Twenty Questions" might serve to occupy children until food arrives.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...A Mystery

Either some company has found a very unique way of advertising, or somebody I know is not being very nice to me. Today I got a rather strange piece of mail. It appeared to be a page torn or roughly cut from a newspaper, folded into a plain white envelope. When I unfolded the newspaper page, I saw that there was something that appeared to be handwritten at the top. It said, "S, Try it. It works!" The full page ad was for a "New Discovery From Asia" that "Helps Overcome The Chemical Imbalance That Keeps People Fat!"

Well, I know I'm not exactly as svelte as I should be, but, considering my age, it could be worse! I'm not exactly watching my weight, but rather I am trying to work on eating the correct amounts of grains and vegetables on that doggone food pyramid and cutting down on all the bad stuff. If doughnuts counted as grain foods, I would be doing all right at it, too.

Anyway, I was rather offended to think that a friend of mine thought I was so overweight that I needed some Discovery From Asia. Who did they think they were, anyway? And why didn't they sign their name? Did they put their return on the envelope?

I checked the envelope and saw there was no return at all. In fact, my "friend" had misspelled my name. Also, the stamp was not canceled with the usual round seal that stated from where and when the envelope was mailed. Instead, there was a lot of machine-typed information from the post office, perhaps indicating a mass mailing. Hum, what was going on here? A mystery - ha, right up my alley.

The fat ad had many testimonials from all over the US. The product was called, "Berry Trim Plus" and it was, of course, made from something called brindle berries, which are purple berries 1 to 1 1/2 inches in diameter that only grow on a type of evergreen tree in Asian countries. The brindle berries "naturally contain approximately 40 to 50 percent of something scientists call hydroxycitrate, or HCA for short." According to seven clinical studies (seven?), the HCA found in brindall berries "can be utilized to create a very RAPID AND SUBSTANTIAL weight loss!"

"Not only that...HCA HAS NOW BEEN COMBINED IN TABLET FORM WITH OTHER KEY NUTRIENTS AND A SIMPLE (1-PAGE) HEALTH GUIDE THAT STIMULATES THE RELEASE OF CALORIES ALREADY STORED WITHIN YOUR BODY TISSUES AS FAT."

Hmm, we aren't told if the one-page health guide is also made of brindle berries, but I assume so, since when I eat it my body will be stimulated to release all of those old calories (from doughnuts) I have stored over the years. Wonder if it tastes like doughnuts...

I could order my brindle berry pills from a place called Health Laboratories of North America in Katonah, NY. One month's supply would cost me only $39.95, along with $4.95 shipping and handling (enough to keep me in doughnuts for the entire month).

According to my sleuthing abilities, I feel I have been the recipient of a very clever advertising gimmick. I have to give them credit - they certainly went to a lot of trouble to try to sell me brindle berries. But, woefully, I must admit they accomplished their aim and I read the doggone thing, didn't I?

Has anybody else gotten anything like this? If so, do what I did - use it to light a good fire in the fireplace and then roast a marshmallow to put on your doughnut. Whatever you do, don't take any brindle berry pills without consulting with your doctor. Heck, with only seven clinical studies, they might not only get rid of your fat, but also get rid of you!

Feel free to email me with comments and ideas.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. At what age can a widow start to get Social Security?

A. If strictly based on age, a widow or widower can start receiving survivor benefits at age 60 which will include a reduction for age. If disabled, the possibility of benefits exists as early as age 50. Keep in mind that survivor benefits includes more than age based benefits. For example, a younger widow(er) with a child of the deceased in care can potentially receive benefits at any age as long as the child is receiving survivor benefits and is not yet age 16 or is severely disabled.

Q. This has been a rough year and I'm having trouble paying my medical bills. I already have Medicare, but is there any other program that can help?

A. The only medical coverage available through a SSA office is Medicare but you should consider contacting your county social services for several reasons. First, depending on your overall income you might be eligible for medical assistance or some other type of aid. In addition, there are two programs geared toward people below or near national poverty levels which might apply to you. The first is Qualified Medicare Beneficiary (QMB) which could have your Medicare premium plus some co-insurance and some deductible costs paid for you. The second is Specified Low-income Medicare Beneficiary (SLMB) which could have the cost of the Medicare premium paid for you. For more information about either QMB or SLMB, contact your county social services.

Reminder: Please have your Social Security number readily available whenever you contact Social Security about your benefits. Your claim number is the Social Security number that you receive benefits on, such as your number or that of a spouse.

DECA, an association of marketing students, is a co-curricular, student-centered organization that better prepares students for the competitive field of marketing. The purpose of DECA is to provide learning opportunities for marketing education students by promoting greater understanding and appreciation for the responsibilities of citizenship in our free enterprise system. There are DECA chapters in all fifty states, Canada, in the four U.S. territories. Each DECA chapter elects its own student officers.

Foresters close roads in state forests in area

Forestry division of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has announced the closing of roads in the Lost River and Beltrami Island state forests a month earlier than normal due to the unseasonably warm weather.

Robert Wennerstrand, area forest supervisor at Warroad, said that all forest roads in the Baudette area are closed to vehicles with gross vehicle weight over 9,000 pounds. In the Warroad and Wannaska areas, the Thompson and Dick's Parkway forest roads will be closed to vehicles over 5,000 pounds of gross vehicle weight (GVW).

All other forest roads in the Warroad and Wannaska areas will be closed to vehicles with more than 1,000 pounds GVW. If road conditions warrant, a special written permit may be issued on an individual basis, Wennerstrand said.

The 5,000 pound restriction will allow cars and empty pickup trucks to use Dick's parkway and the Thompson roads. The 1,000 pound restriction allows trappers, recreational users and others to use three and four-wheel ATVs but not automobiles.

Wennerstrand said the purpose of the forest road closures is intended to protect the roads from damage, not to restrict forest users.

attorneys had one direct and one cross-examination of a witness.

Witnesses for the defense were Marisa Holmstrom, Kristine Koop and Sara Rasmussen. Allen Bolar served as timekeeper and Stephanie Wiseth as bailiff.

Lincoln was one of three teams with one win and one loss in the regular season to advance to the final eight. It had lost an unusual one-point split decision in its final regular season trial against Moorhead February 12 at the Norman county courthouse in Ada.

Final score in the split decision was 171-170, but the unusual part was the divergence in point totals awarded by the judges. Presiding judge Russell Anderson gave a decisive edge to Thief River Falls 92-86. Scoring judge John Winters, however, gave an even larger margin to Moorhead, 85-78.

Lindberg complimented his team on a strong performance and said he had never seen such a wide disparity in point totals, although his team has been involved in split decisions in previous years. Lindberg also complimented the Moorhead team and its coaches for their sportsmanship.

Lincoln finished its short regular season with an 1-1 record but a +10 point total, having defeated Detroit Lakes by 11 points in its opening trial.

"We know we will be facing a very strong Fergus Falls team in the finals," Lindberg said, "but the team is looking forward to the challenge and will put in a strong week of practice in preparation for the trial."

Past Images Antiques and Collectibles recently received a First Dollar award from the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors. The store opened September 2 at 321 North Main. They buy, sell and trade antiques and collectibles. Morris and Vi Anderson, who own and operate the store, had been consigning merchandise to a store in Grand Forks City Center until the flood last year. They both noted how good businesses has been since they opened a store in Thief River Falls. "It's wonderful," said Vi. School District to review candidates for FMS principal

Compliance with gender equity is still a problem in the district. Sims said the district still has 10 programs for males and eight for females. The district needs another program for females, but which one. Sims said they are continuing to examine girl's hockey, but when and how to implement the program. Sims said he needs more feedback from the community and participants. In addition he needs to know whether they would support the program. Estimates place the cost of the starting the program in the district at about $130,000, which would include new locker rooms, ice time, and equipment.

Other programs for girls might include a cross-country skiing program, or danceline if it becomes an approved competition event.

In all, there were 18 athletic programs in the district during the 1996-97 year with 341 male participants, and 232 female participants. This year's figures are about the same. At Franklin Middle School there were 237 males and 232 females. There are over 40 Fine Arts activities, including band, orchestra and other events. The total number of participants is around 500. In addition there are over 100 coaches and or directors.

Coaching vacancies is still a problem for the district. Sims said he feels a good coaching staff is important to developing a strong athletic program. He feels good coaching is best accomplished by coaches who are also full-time teachers working in the building where most of there participants attend school.

Sims is reviewing ways to encourage students to attend more activities. He is currently studying a proposal to reduce the cost of games for students. It has been suggested that he reduce the cost of an activities ticket from $20 to $15.

Board Chairman Carl Clark thanked Sims and said he appreciated everything he was doing. "You've got a lot of balls up in the air," he said. "No pun intended."

Technology Plan

The school board approved the District Technology Plan. The plan was approved following a presentation by Jim Kotz, coordinator.

Chairman Carl Clark and several board members praised Kotz for his efforts even though Kotz had some tough words for the board.

Several years ago, Kotz said he agreed with the board that they should tread water in terms of updating equipment. At the time he thought it would be for one year. It dragged out for three years. Kotz said now the district is hopelessly outdated in its technology.

In the past two years, the district has spent roughly $50,000 to $60,000 per year on updating its technology and programs. Though he said he knows that it's impossible, Kotz proposed spending $375,000 per year on updating technology.

Without reviewing the document page by page, he explained that the district is in need of work in wiring, new computers, and software.

Board Member Lyle Olson questioned whether the district needs to continuously buy new computers which become hopelessly outdated after five years. Olson suggested that the district should look at main frame computers.

Kotz and Superintendent Robicheau tried to explain the difficulties and expense involved in going such a route. Robicheau explained that the system would have to be self-contained, use would be very limited, and said a lot of personal computers could be purchased for the cost of a mainframe computer. Kotz was very much opposed to such a plan stating that it was not the trend among school districts.

Board Member Randy Twistol wondered whether the district was doing enough to encourage staff to utilize the computers more.

Kotz has held a number of board-approved training sessions for staff. He explained Monday night that they are trying to get staff to use the computers for everyday tasks. In perhaps his most abrasive comment of the night, however, Kotz said that when asked about more inservice and support, he tells people that it's easier to convince the board to buy hardware than support.

The school board approved a resolution declaring March 2 as "Read to Kids Day" which coincides with the birthday of Dr. Seass, Theodore S. Geisel.

The resolution declares that the public schools wholeheartedly support reading as a fundamental skill important to each and every student; and it stands united behind the belief that success in school is dependent upon families, schools and community working together to support early reading with children. The goal of "Read Across America" is to generate new enthusiasm for reading outside of school so that students achieve more in school. On March 2, the district is encouraging each family to reserve time that night to sit down in the company of the children they love and a good book.

The school board recognized and/or thanked the following for their contributions: the following students ranked on the 1998 American Association of Teachers of German National Test — Level II, Roman Lysyuk, 94 out of 100 points, Amber Morkrid 89 out 100, Joanna Bruggeman 78 out of 100, Jonathan Lofgren 77 out of 100, Wendy Tomsich, Level III, 76 out of 100 (25,000 students took the test this year and those scoring over 90 percent are eligible to apply for a study trip to Germany.); the choir boosters who donated $333.32 to transport the choir to Greenbush for a concert; the VFW Post, Auxiliary and Color Guard which donated 42 United States and 44 P.O.W.-M.I.A flags for Lincoln High school classrooms; Digi-Key which donated a battery-powered electrical back-up system to the district; and Norwest Banks, which donated educational support materials including a video tape collection, curriculum-guide and a timeline poster for the PBS series "Liberty! The American Revolution".

The following personnel items were approved from the Consent Agenda: the resignation of Jill Tunberg as football cheerleading advisor effective February 4; the employment of Edward Bjorgaard as regular route bus driver effective February 24, the employment of Shannon L. Dalton as EBD Pupil Program Support Assistant at Challenger; the employment of Howard Dalager as regular route bus driver; the employment of Larry Dominick as cleaner; the following extra-curricular assignments for the 1997-98 school year — Mitch Skeim, high school assistant track coach, Caara Holmstrom, high school assistant track coach, Chadwick Parson as high school assistant boys and girls track coach, Bruce Jean as head girls golf coach, Bob Stenson as high school assistant girls golf coach, Dick Tyler as high school head boys golf coach, Scott Brekke as high school assistant boys golf coach, Al Buhl as FMS spring weight room supervisor, Jeff Mumm as LHS spring weight room supervisor, Jeff Mumm as LHS summer weight room supervisor, Al Buhl as FMS summer weight room supervisor, Brent Pollum high school head baseball coach, Michael Weinen as high school assistant boys baseball coach, Myron Peterson as high school Ninth grade baseball coach, Tim Olson as high school head track coach, Jeff Loe as high school assistant track coach, Ken Fletcher as high school head softball coach, Michelle Erickson as high school assistant softball coach, and Sylvia Sjoberg as middle school boys tennis coach.

Next Meetings

The school board will hold a special board meeting 5 p.m. March 2 in conference room A of the school District Service Center for the purpose of reviewing budget recommendations for the 1998-99 school year and other business.

The next regular meeting of the school board has been scheduled for 5:30 p.m. March 9 at the School District Service Center.

Lake of the Woods forward Derek Olson found himself alone with the puck in front of the Thief River Falls net, but couldn't score as Prowlers goalie Mike Dowers stretched across the crease during the first period of Friday's Section 8A high school hockey tournament quarterfinal game at East Grand Forks. The Bears won 3-2.

Lake of the Woods edges TRF 3-2 in 8A hockey…

Bears end Prowlers' year

Thief River Falls' 1997-98 high school hockey season came to an end Friday with a loss to Lake of the Woods in the Section 8A tournament quarterfinals at the East Grand Forks Civic Center. But the Prowlers went out in style, playing arguably their best game of the year in the 3-2 loss to the Bears, who beat them twice by six-goal margins during the regular season.

It was a typically frustrating outing for the Prowlers, highlighted by the near-misses and seemingly luckless bounces and tips that dogged them throughout the winter.

"That was our season in a nutshell," said Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland moments after emerging from a pin-dropping quiet lockerroom. "We couldn't have done any more. Everybody played hard. We missed a lot of chances. The first goal (by the Bears) was bad, and the second one was a fluke. I just don't think the best team won. I think we deserved to win the hockey game."

A major mistake put Thief River Falls down 1-0 at 9:50 of the first period. Lake of the Woods' Jon Waibel won a face-off just outside the Prowlers' blue line, with the puck going to Michael Baade, who did not have a defender between himself and goalie Mike Dowers. Baade walked in untouched and snapped off a low wrist shot from about 12-feet out to finish a power play.

However, the cheering from the Lake of the Woods side had not yet died when Thief River Falls answered with a Craig Lawrence goal at 10:14 – a quick 24 seconds after the Bears' score.

It remained deadlocked at a goal apiece until the 11:56 of the second period when Waibel fought his way to the net and got off a shot that Dowers stopped. But the Thief River Falls netminder became tangled with defenseman Brandon Gerardy, and as they both frantically searched for the puck at their feet, it wound up across the goal line – long after Waibel had skated by the net.

Thief River Falls tied the game again at 9:47 of the third period, with hard work in the offensive zone eventually putting the puck on the stick of Treavor Peterson behind the net, whose centering pass to Kyle Anderson was quickly put under Lake of the Woods goalie Eric Lindquist.

But the Bears never let the Prowlers build on the emotional lift that comes with a late, game-tying goal. Just 24 seconds after the Thief River Falls goal, Lake of the Woods was back on top when Baade, streaking down the middle, tipped a centering pass under Dowers.

The back-and-forth action carried right down to the final seconds before the Bears could claim victory.

Dowers and Lindquist both turned in strong games with 28 and 23 saves, respectively.

The sixth-seeded Prowlers' season ended at 5-18 while the third-seeded Bears took a 19-4 record into the semifinals.

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo built a 34-16 halftime lead and went on to beat Thief River Falls 55-42 in a Friday night boys high school basketball match-up.

The victory game the visiting Ponies a sweep over the Prowlers this winter, with Warren-Alvarado-Oslo winning the first encounter 54-48 back in December.

A balanced attack for the winners featured Jerod Steer with 16 points, Tyler Solberg 15 and Joe Kvamme 14. The Prowlers' only double figure performance came from Kyle Waterworth with 11 points.

It was the final home appearance of the 1997-98 season for the Prowlers, who took a 3-17 record into a Tuesday night game at Roseau that will be followed by a regular season finale Friday at Detroit Lakes.

Fergus Falls takes MCCC men's state basketball tourney

It was a trophy sweep for the Northern Division Sunday in the finals of the 1998 Minnesota Community College Conference men's state basketball tournament played at Minneapolis Community College.

Fergus Falls stretched its record to 25-0 with a 98-86 championship game win over Minneapolis; Central Lakes beat Ridgewater 76-64 in the third place game and Vermilion defeated Mesabi 88-81 in an all-Northern Division consolation final.

Norman Co. East press tops RLCC

Red Lake County Central was hit by a first quarter Norman County East blitz Friday and never recovered, losing an 81-52 boys high school basketball game.

The Mustangs found themselves trailing 33-7 at the end of the first quarter. The spread carried through the rest of the night – 46-20 at halftime and 67-39 through three quarters.

"That's probably the quickest team we've seen all year," reported Red Lake County Central coach Chris McLean. "They did a good job with their press, especially in the first quarter, and we turned it over."

A majority of the Red Lake County Central turnovers occurred in the first quarter, and many of them were converted directly into Norman County East points, noted McLean.

Mark Lorenson scored a game-high 25 points for the Mustangs, but he was their only double figure scorer. Five Norman County East scorers hit double digits, led by Kyle Olson with 20 points.

Red Lake County Central was 21-for-52 from the field (40 percent) and 5-for-10 at the free throw line. Norman County East went 30-for-66 from the floor (45 percent) and 7-for-12 at the line.

NCTC women lose final game

Northland will not be part of the field when the 1998 Minnesota Community College Conference women's state basketball tournament opens Friday at Anoka-Ramsey. A three-game regular season-ending losing streak that concluded Friday with a 70-53 setback at home against Itasca took care of the Pioneers' post-season hopes.

Fergus Falls, Central Lakes, Vermilion and Rainy River will represent the Northern Division in the state tournament. Northland went into the final week of the season tied with Rainy River for the fourth and final tournament spot from the Northern Division at 6-6. But while the Pioneers were losing to Fergus Falls and Itasca, the Voyageurs were beating Mesabi and Vermilion to advance.

Itasca was not in the race, but the Vikings still controlled play against Northland, building a 37-27 halftime lead.

"We just never got going," said Northland coach Rick Nikunen. "It seemed like we were sluggish and a half-step slow all night. We fell behind and never really threatened."

A strong Itasca shooting performance was led by Megan Hieb with 27 points. Jennie Erickson (14 points), Shelly Myrvold (10) and Misty Hieb (10) joined her in double figures. Naomi Wilebski and Darlene Nelson scored 12 points each to lead the Northland offense.

The Pioneers' late-season troubles began with a 58-42 Wednesday loss at Central Lakes that was followed by a 63-41 Monday setback suffered at home against Fergus Falls, then the defeat at the hands of Itasca. With Rainy River picking up those final two victories, Northland would have needed to win two of those last three to share fourth place with the Voyageurs. The two split their regular season home-and-home series, and a tie would have set up a state tournament-qualifying playoff game.

"It was a frustrating, disappointing ending," acknowledged Nikunen.

Scoring

	1	2	T
Itasca	37	33	70

Itasca - Megan Hieb 27, Andrea Paul 6, Shelly Myrvold 10, Misty Hieb 10, Jennie Erickson 14, Jackie Morgan 4.

Northland - Jamekka Lucas 3, Paula Hovda 8, Jenny Johnson 2, Naomi Wilebski 12, Darlene Nelson 12, Meckenzie Malwitz 8, Tammy Nerby 7.

Three Mustangs head for state

Three Red Lake County Central seniors will be part of the Class AA individual field when the 1998 Minnesota state high school wrestling tournament is held at the RiverCentre Arena in St. Paul.

Seniors Troy Magnell, Kyle Jensen and T.J. Larson will all be making their second state meet appearances, with Magnell and Jensen advancing as sophomores and Larson making it last year.

Jensen and Larson turned in championship performances and Magnell was a runner-up finisher in the Section 8AA individual tournament held Friday and Saturday at Bagley, where the top two wrestlers in each weight class earned a state meet trip.

Magnell is 17-5 at 125, where he beat Brian Francis of Mahnomen-Waubun 13-3 in the quarterfinals of the Section 8AA tournament and pinned Chad Freeman of Walker-Hackensack-Akeley/Nevis 50 seconds into their semifinal match before being pinned in 1:33 of the final by Scott Larson of Blackduck/Cass Lake-Bena – the state's No. 1 ranked wrestler in Class AA at 125.

Jensen pushed his record to 29-2 with three Section 8AA wins at 152 – a 2:51 quarterfinal round pin of Justin Wilson of Park Rapids Area, a 3:34 semifinal pin of Jeremy King of East Grand Forks and a 10-5 championship match decision over Kyle Price of Blackduck/Cass Lake-Bena.

Larson is 30-2 following his Section 8AA championship effort at 160 where he pinned Tom Mertens of Mahnomen-Waubun in 1:09 in the quarterfinals, pinned Mike Meeks of Detroit Lakes in 1:42 in the semifinals and decisioned Jason Perala of Crookston 3-2 in the title match.

The state meet, featuring both team and individual matches in Class AAA, Class AA and Class A, will take place Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the RiverCentre Arena in St. Paul.

Thief River Falls was also a Section 8AA entry, but the Prowlers did not advance a wrestler to the state tournament.

Top showings by the Prowlers included a third place effort by Beau Abrahamson at 103 and a fifth place by Jon Swanson at 135.

Abrahamson beat Joey Chelmo of Detroit Lakes 4-3 in the third place match, but lost a 13-4 state tournament-qualifying decision to Matt Lessard of Crookston for true second.

Other Thief River Falls Section 8AA wrestlers included Philip Hermanson, 140; Josh Stinson, 145; Josh Hagen, 152; Jeremy Houske, 160; Bob Strutz, 171; Cody Crapeau 189; and Robert Spry, heavyweight. Stinson won a first round decision before losing in the quarterfinals. The others lost first round matches.

B/G-MR bounces back for win

■ Gators beat Kittson Central boys 65-61

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River bounced back from a disappointing performance in a 54-41 Tuesday loss to Tri-County with a 65-61 Friday boys high school basketball win over Kittson Central.

The Wildcats, Wolfpack and Gators are expected to be the three front-runners in the upcoming Sub-Section 32A tournament that begins Friday at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Kittson Central led 19-17 at the first quarter stop and had a 35-30 halftime edge. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River pulled even at the end of the third quarter, 49-49, and went in front for good in the final minute-and-a-half of the game.

It was 63-61 as the Wolfpack worked the ball for a tying or go-ahead shot at the end before a steal by Daryl Wockenfuss set up a game-clinching fast break lay-up by Shane Nelson.

"It was an excellent ball game," noted Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "It was back and forth the whole way. We played a pretty decent game."

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River balanced was shown in the scoring column as Jeremy Vacura and Bret Bentow netted 14 points each and Nelson finished with 12. Kittson Central featured a 1-2 attack in Josh Deere with 23 points and Aaron Austin with 16.

The Gators shot 49 percent from the field (27/55) and went 7-for-11 at the free throw line. The Wolfpack shot 50 percent from the floor (23/46) and made 11 of 14 free throws. The winners finished with a 34-20 rebound advantage and topped the turnover charts 12-11.

Section 4A boys swimming…

Four Prowlers will swim in new meet

A small delegation of Thief River Falls entries will be in Hibbing this week to participate in the first Section 4A boys high school swim meet.

The four Prowlers who will be making the trip include junior Colin Browning and sophomores Rory Hoven, Zack Olson and Sam Kezar.

It's the first year of two-class swimming competition for boys in Minnesota. There are just four sections in Class A, sending the Prowlers to the Iron Range, where they will swim against Chisholm/Mountain Iron-Buhl, Crookston, Ely, Eveleth-Gilbert, Hibbing, International Falls, Lake of the Woods, Mesabi East, Park Rapids Area, Proctor, and Virginia.

"We don't have a lot of swimmers, but we have a number of events covered," noted Thief River Falls coach Brian Olson.

Browning will swim the 100 backstroke and 200 individual medley; Hoven and Olson will compete in the 200 and 500 freestyle; while Kezar participates in the 50 and 100 freestyle.

They will join forces to swim the 200 freestyle and 400 freestyle relays.

Competition starts with Thursday prelims at 12:30 p.m. Finals will be held Saturday at 1:30 p.m. First day top eight finishers advance to the championship finals, while the 9-through-16 prelim finishers return to compete in the consolation finals.

Wolverines fall prey to Wildcats by 84-65

Tri-County's offense kept pounding away at Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke Thursday as the Wildcats out-scored the Wolverines 84-65 in a girls high school basketball game played at Karlstad.

The loss completed a .500 regular season for the Wolverines, who finished 11-11.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke started in good shape, leading 17-6 with 2 1/2 minutes left in the opening quarter. But Tri-County answered with a 14-1 run that put the Wildcats up 20-18 at the first quarter break. The winners moved out to a 46-34 halftime advantage and had a 66-50 third quarter cushion.

"They have so many weapons," noted Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "They went on that run, and it just kind of snowballed on us. They're a good team and they play so well together. They're too talented to get into a running game with them."

Anna Bogestad scored 26 points and Krista Bogestad had 25 for the Wildcats. Kathryn Stanley had a 20-point, 12-rebound game for the Wolverines, while Angie Gast netted 16 points, Dana Wiseth 13 and Jenny Nelson 11.

Tri-County shot 57 percent from the field (32/56), while Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke shot 33 percent (22/66). Both teams were busy at the free throw line, where the Wolverines went 21-for-35 and the Wildcats were 16-for-25. The visitors had a 30-25 rebound edge.

Free throws net Nordics win

Success at the free throw line carried Marshall County Central to a 59-54 boys high school basketball win over Stephen-Argyle Friday at Newfolden. The win ended a .500 regular season for the 11-11 Nordics.

Marshall County Central won with a 21-for-30 night at the free throw line that helped compensate for a 35-24 Stephen-Argyle rebound advantage.

"We shot free throws pretty well, especially in the fourth quarter," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We were getting beat on the boards, so we had to find some way to make up for it."

The Storm led 18-12 at the end of the first quarter and held on to a 30-28 halftime edge. The Nordics pulled even at the end of the third quarter, 42-42, and went ahead near the midway mark of the final period.

"We were down 8-10 points early – as usual," quipped Ueland, "but we just kept picking away."

A balanced Marshall County Central offense featured Jon Donarski and Garrett Magner with 11 points each, Caleb Holthusen and David Wilcox with 10 apiece, and Greg Ueland 9. Donarski was 6-for-6 at the free throw line in the second quarter to keep the Nordics close, while Wilcox made 8 of 10 free throw attempts in the fourth quarter to help seal the win.

Jared Hanson scored 15 points and Andy Aakre had 10 for the Storm.

Marshall County Central was 17-for-36 from the field (47 percent). Stephen-Argyle went 21-for-59 from the floor (36 percent) and had a 12-for-27 free throw night. The Storm topped the turnover charts 13-11.

Patriots' quickness hurts Huskies

Win-E-Mac was quick on the court and quick out of the starting blocks Friday as the Patriots beat Goodridge 68-54 in the final boys high school basketball game scheduled to be played at McIntosh. A new school and new gym is expected to be ready for the Winger, Erskine and McIntosh cooperative by the 1998-99 season.

The Patriots doubled the Huskies 22-11 in the first quarter and had a 33-17 halftime cushion.

Goodridge trailed by as many as 24 points and still faced a 51-38 deficit as the third quarter came to a close. But the Huskies came back, pulling within five with possession of the basketball with 4 1/2 minutes still to play.

However, that was where the rally ended as the Huskies fell to 8-13.

"They're quick," acknowledged Goodridge coach Eric Mickelson. "They jumped on us in the first half. They put us on our heels. But I was pretty pleased with the way we came back. We boarded well, and we shot well. We just fell to far behind."

Four Win-E-Mac scorers hit double figures, led by Travis Nelson with 16 points. Jim Scheef scored 15 points and Jared Eidelbes had 13 to lead the Goodridge offense.

The Huskies were 22-for-45 from the field (49 percent) and 8-for-16 at the free throw line. The Patriots went 23-for-52 from the floor (44 percent) and were a busy 16-for-29 at the line. Ben Hanson pulled down 14 rebounds Goodridge beat Win-E-Mac on the boards 39-28, but the Huskies also had more turnovers, 21-14.

Grygla-Gatzke boys lose two

Roseau and Tri-County handed the Grygla-Gatzke boys a pair of one-sided high school basket losses to end the 1997-98 regular season. The Rams won 68-36 Friday in Roseau. The Wildcats won 77-42 Monday at Grygla.

The Eagles, who have lost 10 straight, will take a 3-19 record into Sub-Section 32A tournament play.

"Roseau just dominated us," reported Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson. "We were really never in the game."

It didn't get any better in the Monday finale. "It was a humbling experience to get beat like that," offered Johnson. "It's been many years since we've been beaten at home like that."

Fuelwood survey finished

Survey results determining the amount of residential fuelwood burned during the 1995-96 heating season have been summarized and are now available in a new report from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The report estimates, by species, the amount of fuelwood consumed in Minnesota, and where it came from. The report also identifies the types of heating units used, determines the geographic distribution of households burning fuelwood, and identifies trends in residential fuelwood consumption.

General conclusions discussed in more detail in the report include:

- Amount of fuelwood burned by private households has been declining since the 1984-85 heating season.
- Number of Minnesota households using fuelwood for some or all of their heating needs is declining.
- A high percentage of the households still burning fuelwood cut their own.
- Majority of wood-burning households has shifted heavily to rural areas.
- Amount of fuelwood burned for pleasure rather than for supplemental heat has increased.
- Species of wood used as fuelwood have remained constant, with oak continuing to be the most popular, followed by birch and aspen.

"The report also substantiates that the amount of fuelwood used by residential households is closely tied to the cost of fossil fuels, particularly to the availability of natural gas," said Rick Dahlman with the DNR Division of Forestry. "Unless there's an energy crisis like that of the early 1970s, the amount of fuelwood consumed by residential households will probably remain near current levels or decline further."

Reported results were obtained through two telephone surveys, one of residential households and one of loggers. Data from studies of industrial wood waste and urban tree waste was used to supplement the two surveys.

For a copy of the Minnesota Residential Fuelwood Survey Report, write or call Rick Dahlman at DNR Forestry, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4044; telephone 612-296-6502.

Winter deer feeding report is completed for legislative study

A work group assigned by the Minnesota Legislature to develop recommendations regarding emergency deer feeding and other winter deer management needs has completed its work and delivered its final report to legislative leaders.

The primary focus of the work group, which was composed of individuals from the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association and the Department of Natural Resources Section of Wildlife, was to develop guidelines for administering a new dedicated emergency deer feeding account that is derived from 50 cents from each deer license sold.

The work group agreed that many of the responsibilities for implementing future emergency feeding programs should be shifted from the DNR to local nonprofit organizations with an interest in deer feeding. These organizations would be responsible for establishing feeding program start and end dates, developing feed distribution strategies, and distributing feed to deer in the field. The DNR would provide technical assistance to the organizations, monitor deer condition and winter severity, and order feed and distribute it to sponsoring organizations. Both the DNR and the organizations would be responsible for monitoring and evaluating the program.

The work group's report also emphasizes additional deer management and research or monitoring activities that are necessary to improve the ability of habitat to support deer in winter and to address questions raised by the deer feeding issue. Recommended management activities focus on protecting and improving deer wintering habitat complexes; improving the availability and use of deer habitat and population data by DNR deer managers; and increasing the ability of wildlife managers to influence habitat management across varied ownerships. Additional research and monitoring are recommended to answer questions related to deer feeding and winter deer management.

DNR Commission Rod Sando complimented the work group members for their efforts. "The work group did a very good job in identifying an approach toward future state-funded feeding programs that addresses our interests in pursing sound, long-term management, while allowing more local control and decision-making on emergency feeding programs," Sando said.

Joe Wood, executive director of the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association, agreed. "We would like to move beyond the divisive arguments that have occurred over the deer feeding issue in the past, and I believe that this report is a very good step in that direction," he said.

Previous large-scale state deer feeding programs were conducted in 1989 and 1996, and evaluated by the DNR. Copies of the work group's report and/or summaries of the evaluations of the 1989 and 1996 programs may be obtained by calling the DNR Information Center toll-free in Minnesota at 1-888-MINNDNR.

Minnesota 1998 fish, wildlife license sales start in late February

Minnesota's 1998 fish and wildlife licenses will go on sale the last week of February, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The 1997 licenses are current through the last day of February, 1998. The 1998 license year will begin March 1 and continue through Feb. 28, 1998, according to Karen Beckman, DNR License Bureau assistant administrator.

"We want to stress the point that the game and fish license year always starts on March 1 each year and not Jan. 1," Beckman said. "There's always a little bit of confusion surrounding that point."

All 1998 fishing, shelter, small game and trapping licenses will be available from agents, including county auditor offices and more than 3,000 private businesses, throughout Minnesota. Big game licenses for the 1998 fall season will be available later this year.

Okiee plans men's basketball tourney

Tax checkoffs aid Nongame Wildlife Program species

While pouring over tax forms indoors, Minnesotans might want to take a moment to think about the outdoors, suggested Department of Natural Resources officials.

Minnesota taxpayers have an opportunity to help wildlife while completing those tax forms, notes the DNR. By filling in a donation amount on the "loon line" on state tax forms, Minnesotans can help fund the Nongame Wildlife Program that has aided species ranging from bald eagles to trumpeter swans to butterflies since the program's inception in 1977.

In 1997, only 3.8 percent of all Minnesota taxpayers remembered to check off for wildlife at tax time. One reason is that taxpayers sometimes fail to remind their tax preparers of their intention to make a donation. Donations in 1997 dropped about $420,000 from the previous year, according to Carrol Henderson, Department of Natural Resources Nongame Wildlife Program supervisor.

"Some Minnesotans assume that, with all the taxes they pay, substantial tax dollars are already being spent to help nongame wildlife," noted Henderson. "That's not correct," he said. "About 90 percent of all the funds available to the DNR Nongame Wildlife Program come from donations on state income tax and property tax forms. No funds come from general tax dollars.

Donations to the Nongame Wildlife Checkoff are voluntary and are not part of tax dollars. Donations come out of the refund due or are added to the balance owed. As donations, however, they are tax-deductible donations on the following year's tax return for those who itemize deductions.

"Some taxpayers believe they can only donate $1, but that's wrong," Henderson said. "People may donate any amount they wish. Last year the average donation was $9.86."

Those who forget to make a donation on their tax forms can still contribute to the program by making checks payable to the Nongame Wildlife Fund and sending them to the Nongame Wildlife Program, Box 7, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155.

The Nongame Wildlife Program was created in 1977 to develop and carry out projects for the management and protection of all kinds of wildlife that are not traditionally hunted or harvested. Examples of nongame species are bald eagles, cardinals, loons, bluebirds, mussels, butterflies, trumpeter swanson, frogs, peregrine falcons, and turtles.

Rainy River fishing limit unchanged for 1998 spring season

Possession limit for walleye and sauger on Minnesota's portion of the Rainy River is not changing this March and April, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources announced.

Page 42 of the new 1998 fishing regulations synopsis incorrectly states that the possession limit for walleye and sauger is two from March 1 to April 14. However, during this time period, the limit remains at six, with none over 19.5 inches.

The DNR has proposed that the possession limit for walleye and sauger be reduced to two during the spring fishery on Rainy River. However, this change has not been made and, if it is, it will not go into effect until March 1, 1999.

Anglers should be aware that Ontario has reduced the walleye-sauger possession limit during March and April on its side of the Rainy River. Anglers intending to fish Ontario waters should refer to the 1998 Ontario sport fishing regulations synopsis for specific information.

Several calls to law enforcement included reports of stolen property

Law enforcement received numerous calls during the past week. Several involved thefts

Correction

The February 11 edition of The Times carried a story about an incident in which a man was charged with disorderly conduct after he threatened to shoot a dog with a rifle. The story reported that it was John Drury of St. Hilaire. That was incorrect. It was Stephen John Drury of St. Hilaire. The Times regrets the error and any embarrassment or inconvenience it may have caused.

Stolen Property. On February 1 the law enforcement center was contacted by Red Lake county officials and the North Dakota State Patrol. North Dakota State Patrol had stopped a vehicle and discovered that the vehicle was stolen. The driver of the vehicle reportedly had purchased the vehicle from an individual in Thief River Falls. Upon investigation, a warrant for the arrest of Chad Anthony Seeba, 28, Red Lake Falls, was issued. Seeba faces a charge of receiving stolen property. The vehicle, a 1989 Pontiac Grand Prix had been stolen from the Grand Forks area on May 7, 1997.

On February 17 police received a report of a stolen snowmobile. Someone had cut through a fence and had taken a 1998 Arctic ZR 600 valued at $4,200. The incident remains under investigation.

On February 23 at 1:47 p.m. police received a report that a postage scale had been taken from the Center School. The scale was valued at $995. The computer card inside the machine was valued at $270.

On February 23 at 5:25 p.m. police received a report of a stolen violin. The violin was last seen in the choir room at Franklin Middle School. The value of the violin and case was unknown.

Accidents. On February 17 at 1:35 p.m. police received a report of an accident at Eighth and Atlantic. Oscar William Johnson, Thief River Falls, was driving a car west on Eighth, when his vehicle was struck by a vehicle traveling north on Atlantic and attempting to cross Eighth Street. Ericka Rae Barth, Thief River Falls, was the driver of that vehicle. She was cited for failure to yield. A passenger in the Johnson vehicle had a cut to her head. Police estimated damages at $2,000 to the Johnson vehicle and $1,000 to the Barth vehicle.

On February 19 at 12:56 p.m. police received a report of an accident in Hugo's parking lot. Jacqueline Elaine Moyer, Warren, was driving a 1995 Blazer, stopped in traffic facing north, when another car, a 1996 Buick Park Avenue, driven by Sharon Ann Davidson of Newfolden, backed out of a parking space and into the Moyer vehicle. Police estimated damages at $150 to each vehicle. Moyer complained of a sore neck.

On February 19 at 2:28 p.m. police received a report of an accident in a City parking lot on LaBree Avenue. Gwendelyn Joy Flom, Thief River Falls, was driving a car east in the parking lot, made a sharp left turn and did not see a cement pillar. Damage to her car was estimated by police at $2,000.

On February 22 at 2:30 a.m. police received a report of an accident in the 500 block of North Duluth. David Lyle Hoglo, St. Hilaire, was backing his car up and collided with a parked pickup belonging to David Andrew Dormanen, Little Falls. Police estimated damages at $400 to the Hoglo vehicle, and $800 to the Dormanen vehicle.

Contraband. On February 7 at 1:36 p.m. dispatch at the law enforcement center received a report that someone had put something in the bushes by the Law Enforcement Center and had left. A search of the area was conducted and they found a package of cigarettes. Inside the package they discovered a marijuana cigarette. Facing charges of introducing contraband into the jail are: 22-year-old Franklin Joseph Beaulieu, who is serving nine months for third degree burglary; and 21-year-old Aaron John Culkins, who is serving time for receiving stolen property.

Hit and Run. On February 22 at about 2:35 a.m. police received a report of an accident. Witnesses observed a vehicle leaving the scene of the accident. Police learned that a vehicle had struck a parked car in the 600 block of North Duluth. Damage to the car, which belonged to Debra Jean Peterson of Newfolden, was estimated by police at $2,000. At about 3:36 a.m. police officers investigating the accident were examining a car when a man came out of the house and started yelling obscenities at officers and causing disorder. Richard Rud, 27, Red Lake Falls, was charged with disorderly conduct. It is alleged now that he had been driving the other vehicle and was the hit-and-run driver. Damage to Rud's vehicle was estimated by police at $2,000. Rud was also charged with leaving the scene of an accident, no insurance and driving after cancellation.

Drugs. On February 20 at about 10 p.m. officers observed two vehicles from an alley in the 500 block of Main and Knight. The officer noted a lot of smoke coming from between the vehicles. Upon investigation Jene Raymond Lenhart, 20, Thief River Falls, was cited for possession of a small amount of marijuana in a motor vehicle and possession of drug paraphernalia.

On February 24 at 2:25 a.m. while on routine patrol an officer noticed a suspicious vehicle in a parking lot near a business on Highway 59 South. Thomas Lewis Swantek, 21, Thief River Falls, was cited for possession of a small amount of marijuana.

Burglary. On February 22 at 2:54 p.m. police received a report of a burglary in the southeast corner of town. Taken in the burglary was a .357 magnum Colt Phantom, with a stainless steel finish, and six-inch barrel. The theft loss was estimated at $600. Entry was gained by breaking a window. Damage loss was estimated at $600.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Motorcycle fatalities in Minnesota decline

Minnesota Motorcycle Rider's Association is pleased to report that 1997 saw the least number of recorded motorcycle deaths in three decades. This decrease is in spite of the doubling of licensed motorcycle riders in the state.

Robert Illingworth, director of the Minnesota Motorcycle Rider's Association, states "the decline of motorcycle fatalities is directly attributed to Minnesota's motorcycle safety program of training, education and public awareness aimed at other vehicle operators. The Minnesota Motorcycle Safety Program is funded entirely by the motorcycles of this state using No tax money. The decline in fatalities again proves, beyond any doubt, that proper training and education are far more effective in reducing accidents and fatalities than mandates of safety equipment, such as helmets, airbags and seat belts. Hopefully, the so-called safety experts will begin to look at Minnesota's archaic driver education and testing programs for other vehicle operators and make badly needed changes, which will lower the accident and fatality rate for all drivers in this state."

Two juvenile females held for car thefts

Two juvenile females are being held in the Polk County Juvenile Detention Center while an investigation into several auto thefts is completed.

According to Mike Johnson of the Marshall County sheriff's department, the sheriff's department received a report of a stolen vehicle in Stephen shortly after midnight. The 1990 Ford Taurus was parked at a local repair shop. During their investigation, a deputy discovered a car parked about three blocks away. That car, a 1984 Chevrolet Celebrity had been stolen from Grand Forks the night before.

On February 21 Crookston police department contacted the Marshall County sheriff's department and reported that they had located the vehicle stolen from Stephen. Two female juveniles had also been taken into custody.

The incident remains under investigation.

Jim Herzig snowmobile racer dies

Team Arctic ice oval racer Jim Herzig of Fond du Lac, WI, died February 22 in a racing accident while competing at the Grand Prix in Valcourt, Quebec.

Herzig, 39, a United States Snowmobile Association (USSA) high-point champion and multi-time Eagle River champion, was at the pinnacle of his 24-year racing career, having captured four class titles at the Eagle River World Championship Snowmobile Derby race this season.

"Jim Herzig was a class act, a true gentleman, and a gracious champion. He will be greatly missed by the entire snowmobile racing community," said Team Arctic Manager Joel Hallstrom.

Herzig is survived by his wife Linda, and two children: son Casey, 16, and daughter Emily, 13. Herzig worked as parts and accessories manager for Arctic Cat dealership Pro Motorsports in Fond du Lac.

A trust fund for the education of Herzig's two children has been established at the National Exchange Bank and Trust, 130 South Main Street, Fond du Lac, WI 54935.

El Nino averages hold hope for milder winter

Effect of El Nino on the weather to be experienced in northwest Minnesota may be a milder winter, according to Jim Belles and Phil Schumacher of the National Weather Service Office for eastern North Dakota.

For those who believe that El Nino is either a Featherweight boxer or a new video game, the weather service points out that it is the name given to the observation of above normal sea surface temperatures in the equatorial Pacific Ocean.

Since the Earth is a continuum of land, sea and air, and the globe is roughly comprised of 75 percent water, sea surface temperature can potentially influence atmospheric weather patterns.

According to Schumacher and Belles, the National Weather Service's Climate Prediction Center based in Washington, DC, has identified five significant El Nino episodes during the past 20 years. Data for those five El Nino episodes was examined by the Weather Service for seven locations—Lisbon, Grand Forks, Fargo and Langdon in North Dakota and Red Lake Falls, Park Rapids and Ottertail in Minnesota.

The data was reviewed for average snowfall, total precipitation (rain and snow), and temperature. The averages were from November through March, or the typical cold season in our region. "By comparing an El Nino average to a typical 30-year average," Schumacher and Belles said, "we can quantify the effect of El Nino on our weather.

"After looking at the graphs it appears that temperatures across the region during El Nino years averaged several degrees warmer than the traditional 30-year average. For snowfall, Red River Valley locations were slightly above average, while the rest of the stations, most notably in Minnesota, were below. Total precipitation was near to slightly above average."

The charts for Red Lake Falls show that average cold season temperature for normal years was just over 15 degrees while in the El Nino years it was about 17.6 degrees.

Cold season precipitation was about 4.3 inches in El Nino years and 3.3 inches in normal years although cold season snowfall was about 45 inches in average years and 44 inches in El Nino years.

"Remember that a statistical average can be deceptive, since large fluctuations can be noted between years and locations," Schumacher and Belles added.

"In addition, five years of data is not enough to determine if there is a trend. However, for those who desire a milder winter season, this may be a sign of hope," they said.

Area hospitals will benefit from CAH designation

by Sen. Roger Moe

The State Senate has given preliminary approval to significant legislation designed to enhance health care access for rural Minnesotans and help preserve key hospitals in rural communities across the state. Four hospitals in our area —Ada, Bagley, Crookston and Mahnomen — could benefit if they decide to seek designation as Critical Access Hospitals (CAHs).

The legislation will allow several Minnesota hospitals to enroll in the Medicare Rural Hospital Flexibility Program passed last year by Congress. The qualifying Critical Access Hospitals will be able to take advantage of enhanced Medicare reimbursement costs which would increase Medicare reimbursement levels to these hospitals. Medicare pays Minnesota providers far less than providers in other states. Critical Access Hospital designation would add some equity to this system.

The federal law also limits Critical Access Hospitals to 15 acute care beds geared toward providing inpatient care for up to four days. The law is designed to encourage smaller hospitals to enter into partnership with larger hospitals or become part of a network. Most Minnesota hospitals have already entered into the kind of partnerships envisioned in the federal legislation, but health care systems in many other states have not reached that stage.

Under the federal law, it appears that only a handful of Minnesota hospitals would automatically qualify for Critical Access designation. The hospital in Crookston would be among the automatic qualifiers because it is located more than a 35-mile drive from the nearest hospital.

The pending Minnesota legislation seeks to expand the number of qualifying CAH hospitals by asking permission to deviate from the rules administered by the federal Health Care Financing Agency (HCFA). The changes sought by Minnesota would allow hospitals that are at least a 20-mile drive from the nearest hospital to qualify. In addition, the state wants those hospitals that are the only hospital in the county to be eligible for Critical Access designation.

The 20-mile criterion was recommended in 1996 by the State Rural Health Advisory Committee based on concerns over potential weather conditions and other adverse travel conditions that lengthen the commute to many rural hospitals. With federal permission, the hospitals in Ada and Mahnomen would qualify under the 20-mile criterion.

The same rural health study urged adoption of the only-hospital-in-county criterion. Committee members felt that counties serve as an important community in rural Minnesota; often counties are the base for delivery of a variety of health care-related services. As the only hospital in Clearwater county, the Bagley hospital would qualify under this criterion.

Federal permission to allow Minnesota hospitals to qualify under the 20-mile and only-hospital-in-county criteria will be sought through a waiver process. Sometimes waivers can take a long time for the federal government to process, so the State Legislature has been moving quickly to get this bill passed and presented to the Governor for his signature.

Federal designation of Critical Access Hospitals will help Minnesota in its efforts to preserve a strong network of accessible, quality health care services throughout the state. It is my hope that the federal government will cooperate with the waiver requests so that all Minnesotans can have relatively speedy access to emergency medical services, no matter where they happen to live.

Shannon Olson of the Heritage Community Center presents a check for $200 to Kim Chedwick-Guade of Hospice of the Red River Valley. The donation came from bingo proceeds. Olson noted that between $3,500 to $4,000 is donated back to the community each year.

1998 MARSHALL COUNTY ROAD RESTRICTIONS

The effective date of road restrictions on all Marshall County roads will be concurrent with the placement of restrictions on trunk highways in that area. Updates concerning placement of restrictions by the State are available by calling (612) 405-6022.

Restriction limits are based on gross axle weight which includes the weight of the vehicle and the load it carries.

The erection of signs on any highway governs the effective date of the restriction. As long as signs remain in place, restrictions are in effect.

No permits for overweight axle loads exceeding legal or posted axle weights will be issued.

During the period when signs are in place, any county or town gravel road is restricted to (5) tons gross weight per axle. If signs are erected, the restrictions as indicated on the sign shall govern. If no signs are erected, the (5) ton gross weight restriction shall apply.

"Private Property?"

by David Hill
Associate Editor

The following article came across my desk this week. It is thought provoking and offers readers a glimpse of an issue they might not otherwise come across in local and area newspapers. The issue involves private property rights versus the rights of the public. In an attempt to avoid conflicts between private property rights and the rights of the public, zoning and planning laws are created. Many in local government will attest to the fact that planning issues can be quite contentious despite the planning and zoning rules and regulations.

The first contact many people have with the city council, county board, or township officials is over zoning or planning issues. It is only when they apply for a building permit do they discover they have to get permission from some government board first before they build their dream or improve their property. Quite often, and unfortunately too frequently, they come away from the experience perplexed at the supposed complexity of the law, and generally angry at a government that no longer seems to represent them. This is clearly a result of many factors, but mostly because nobody likes to be told they can't do something they want to or dream about.

The push at state level seems to be to get at pollution and other property-related problems before they happen. So they are encouraging rural units of government, such as township boards, to develop more zoning and planning laws.

In my opinion it seems small vocal interest groups want to re-distribute the weight of the public vs. private formula because, they reason, the rights of the many outweigh the rights of the few.

In any event, whether you agree with my analysis or not, many local governments are being encouraged to adopt planning and zoning laws. Zoning and planning laws area't always bad. They were and are generally created in order to protect the health and safety of area citizens. Sometimes, however, the good intent of lawmakers becomes subverted — sometimes by small vocal interest groups. It is also true that lawmakers can't anticipate everything that will be brought before them, and, the fact that variances are granted frequently tends to leave people thinking the process is subjective and prone to bias.

Private Property Rights: The Foundation of Democracy

by Sen. Don Stevens

Imagine that five years ago you purchased a piece of land in northern Minnesota. Since then, you've paid taxes on the property and kept it in good shape. Now you'd like to build a retirement home on it and you attempt to get the proper building permits from your local unit of government.

However, local officials inform you that there is an increased setback of 100 feet from the highway which has recently been designated a scenic drive by the county, and you will not be allowed to cut any trees on your property that are more than six inches in diameter. This prevents you from building even a small cabin because your lot is only 125 feet deep and full of mature trees.

This particular story is an example based on zoning changes made by many counties around the country. Right now, federal, state and local laws are preventing people from using their private property in the way they had intended. This excessive government regulation has become an increasing problem in recent years. The practice of taking private property in the name of public good, without just compensation, is developing into every landowner's nightmare.

(The focus of the bill presented by Stevens (S.F. 2048) is "that just compensation must be given for the taking of private property.")

Over the past 70 years, the courts have interpreted the "takings clause" of the Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution to imply that a landowner must lose nearly the total value of the property in order to seek compensation. In most cases, regulations imposed on property do not reduce its value to zero. In these situtions the property owner receives no compensation.

When a thief takes one of the two cars that you own, we all recognize the loss that has occurred. However, when the government does the same thing, reducing the value of your property by half, the courts have been unwilling to recognize the "taking." My bill makes it clear that "property" includes all lawful uses that can be made of it — the very uses that give property its value. When regulations take away those uses, the owners lose their rights and are due compensation.

In proposing this legislation, we are not saying to local and state government that they cannot regulate. The bill does state, however, that if the regulations imposed do not abate a public nuisance and protect public safety or health, and the result is a reduction in value to private property, then this is a "taking" and the property owner must be compensated. The bill states very clearly that compensation is not required if a regulatory program is an exercise of the police power to prevent noxious uses or demonstrable harm to the health and safety of the public. Nuisance law has always preempted property rights. You simply cannot use your property to pollute.

We must, however, not confuse public land-use regulation with the prevention of noxious uses or demonstrable harm to the health and public safety of the public. People often make the assertion that natural scenic views are for everyone to enjoy. The public, however, has no legal right to the view of private property that borders such areas as "scenic highways." If the public wants this view, then it must pay for it, as would a private citizen. Far too often, the government has simply taken private property by use restriction and left the property owner to bear the full cost of this action. If the public believes that restricting the use of private property is for the public good, and the use being restricted does not abate a nuisance, then the public must pay for what it wants.

Private property is the very foundation of our democracy. The ability to own property without fear of devaluation due to government action must be protected. It is my hope that the state of Minnesota becomes a leader in the protection of private property in this country. We must restore private property ownership as a fundamental right of American citizenship.

To The Editor:

Many times we ask "why?" and wait for the answer. Many times the answer doesn't seem to come. It is wonderful to know that we have the support of so many people when the road ahead of us is such a mystery.

Every day seems to bring a new challenge for Jako. He will be completing his radiation treatment in about two weeks. There have been some valleys but as of today he is doing O.K. God's healing power and strength have enabled us to cope with difficult challenges.

We will be able to return home for a month for Jako to build up his strength. Then we return to Rochester for the stem cell transplant, which takes about six to eight weeks.

We want to thank School District 564, the staff, the community and businesses for all their support, prayers and the recent spaghetti supper and auction held for our benefit. Be assured that every prayer, note and gift is precious to us. We all need and appreciate your notes of encouragement.

This road we are on would be impossible without God's promise of healing, comfort and strength. We also know that we could not go through this without our family, friends, our church and our communities.

We thank you each and every one. We would like to thank you each personally, however, time here is so devoted to the care and treatment of our Jako. God's blessing to you all.

Sincerely,
[illegible], Sharon, Adrianne and Jako [illegible]

Schools Closed Today Due To Stormy Weather

"With northwestern Minnesota in the grip of a severe winter storm this morning, schools in Thief River Falls, as well as many in the rural areas, were closed for the day. A strong gale from the north filled the air with loose snow and reduced visibility to almost zero. At the same time the mercury dropped from a high of 26 above zero Wednesday afternoon to 12 below this morning. The wind was strong enough to break loose from its moorings the large electric sign in front of the Jay-Bee Drug Store, although it did not fall all the way to the ground. Memorials

MEMORIAM
In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Arvid Sistad
We don't think of you as gone away your journey has begun
Our life holds so many facets-this earth is only one.
We think of you as resting from the pain and the tears
In a place of warmth and comfort
Where there are no days or years
We think of how you must be wishing that we could know today
How nothing but our sadness can really pass away
We think of you as living in our hearts that you touched so much
For nothing ever loved is lost and we loved you very much.

Jeff Birchem receives law enforcement award

Minnesota Department of Natural Resource Conservation Officer Jeff Birchem received the Law Enforcement Award from the Minnesota Chapter of the Wildlife Society. The Society is composed of wildlife professionals and the award is given annually to an officer who has contributed greatly to the wildlife resources of Minnesota.

Jeff is as interested in educating the violator as in giving them a ticket. He is very involved in hunter safety sessions where he meets the next generation of hunters and has a chance to educate them before they go afield.

He has an impressive list of quality apprehensions year in and year out. He nearly gave his life for the resource in 1993 when he was involved in a car accident while attempting to apprehend deer shiners. Birchem is as interested in wetlands and pollution violations as he is about fish and game incidents. He realizes that a duck shot illegally is a violation, but a wetland drained is many birds lost long term.

It was noted that Birchem has a good rapport with citizens and fellow officers, and is frequently called upon to train new officers.

February flooding is an unheard of happening in northwestern Minnesota but took place on the Red Lake river downstream from Thief River Falls last week. Ice on the river below the dam began to break up and jammed in this area by the Glenn Erickson residence off Davidson Drive. At the right of the photo water is spilling over the riverbank and threatening several camper trailers stored in the area. Ground was too soft to permit retrieval of the trailers—even with the use of heavy construction equipment—before the water overflowed the bank. River breakup is a month early.

Dredging of reservoir is expected to start in May

Thief River Falls City Council met Tuesday, February 24, to discuss a variety of matters including dredging of the reservoir in Thief River Falls.

Dredging of the reservoir in Thief River Falls and parts of the Thief and Red Lake Rivers are still expected to begin in the first week of May.

Brad Johnson of the Red Lake Watershed District reported that they were a little behind, but are continuing to move ahead with plans to dredge the reservoir this summer.

Johnson reported that core samples of the sediment had been taken and were being tested. Houston Engineering was working on a plan and landowners had been contacted. Johnson said the landowners want to know what's in the sediment. Analysis of the sediment is expected to be completed in a couple of weeks.

Johnson said they plan to proceed with the dredging as close to schedule as possible. That means they plan to begin in the first week of May.

Dredging is expected to be conducted in the reservoir and on both rivers. On the Thief River, the dredging could go as far as the old location of Long's bridge. On the Red Lake river, they will go as far as they can. Currently, they expect dredging to go as far as Finsbury park.

Johnson said they are still negotiating with the DNR regarding where they will begin and end. The DNR would also like to see some of the wild rice areas in the reservoir left alone.

Bob Bergan, executive vice president of the Thief River Falls City Council presented a request for $500. The money would be

Area schools will receive milk settlement payment

Forty-eight school districts in northwest Minnesota—including Thief River Falls, Oklee, Plummer, Goodridge, Red Lake Falls and Warren-Alvarado-Oslo—will receive the first of three payments as a result of antitrust settlements with three dairies regarding allegations of bid-rigging and market allocation schemes in public school milk contracts.

First payments to northwest Minnesota school districts total $126,458.56. District 564 at Thief River Falls will receive $5,494.41. Payments to districts mentioned above include Goodridge, $566.88; Oklee, $654.10; Warren-Alvarado-Oslo, $1,875.08; Red Lake Falls, $1,777.37, and Plummer, $523.28.

In northwest Minnesota the payments to 48 districts averaged $2,580 with half of the payments being more than $1,569 and half less than that amount. Among the largest amounts received were Bemidji, $13,474; Moorhead, $14,041; Fergus Falls, $7,849; Detroit Lakes, $6,802, and East Grand Forks, $5,319.

The settlements were distributed to school districts based on several factors, including the length of the alleged conspiracy among the dairies, the payments received by the state attorney general's office and the number of students in the affected districts. Settlement money was allocated on a per pupil basis and accounted for school consolidations. Each payment included all affected schools that may have consolidated with a district.

The school milk settlements arose from an investigation initiated by the antitrust division of the United States Department of Justice and undertaken jointly with the state attorney general's office.

Payments totaling $441,755 were also made to 59 school districts in southwest Minnesota where the payments averaged $7,490. Half the payments were more than $2,580 and half less than that amount. Major recipients were

LHS and FMS orchestras in concert on March 9

Hannah Kelly rehearses with the Lincoln high school orchestra for the winter concert to be presented Monday, March 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln auditorium. Lincoln and Franklin middle school orchestras will participate in the concert under the direction of Derek Druse.

Lincoln high school and Franklin middle school orchestras, under the direction of Derek Druse, will be presented in their winter concert Monday, March 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

First group on the program will be the sixth grade orchestra at Franklin, which will open with Rondeau by Jean Mouret. A Modal Festival by Jerry Jon Marsh and Cindy: An American Folksong, arranged by Carrie Lane Gurselle, will follow.

"The opening number is a majestic piece of music commonly heard on the television show Masterpiece Theater," Druse said. "The second is a modern piece not based on a major or minor scale, but one of the ancient Greek modal scales. It also features a lot of syncopation, which the sixth grade orchestra has been studying."

Seventh and eighth grade orchestra will open with Allegro in D by Antonio Vivaldi, arranged by Steven Frackenpohl. Originally from the Concerto for Two Trumpets, Allegro in D is written so that the first and second violins carry the trumpet melodies.

This orchestra will then play Variations on a Well-Known Sea Chantey by Richard Stephan. After an introduction, the familiar theme of Drunken Sailor is played, and the composer follows with 11 variations, including a slow section where the students get to use mutes for the first time, the director said.

Lincoln high school orchestra will open its portion of the concert with Russian Easter Overture by Nicoli Rimsky-Korsakov. "This is traditionally a full orchestra piece, but this arrangement is reduced for string orchestra and has many exciting rhythms and contrasting sections."

The Lincoln orchestra will also play Palladio, a three-movement Concerto Grosso recently written by Karl Jenkins. "A Concerto Grosso features a small group playing opposite the orchestra. The first movement is the most familiar one," Druse said, "being heard on DeBeers famous diamonds commercial and is reminiscent of the Baroque style."

The concert will conclude with the first movement of the London Symphony by Franz Joseph Haydn and performed by the TRF Youth Symphony, which includes members of the Lincoln orchestra and band.

"Known as the father of the symphony, Haydn perfected the symphonic form into the four movement shape commonly know today," Druse said. "The London Symphony was the 101st and last symphony Haydn wrote and features the string and woodwind sections of the orchestra."

Members of the orchestras include the following:

Lincoln High School Orchestra

First Violin—Benji Sayler, Abbegail Northup, Hannah Kelly, Rory Hoven, Brandon Page and Jessica Molstad;

Second Violin—Becky Wegner, Danny Sayler, Annie Tuthill and Brandi Furt,

Viola—Shaun Furt and Josh Hendrickson,

Cello—Jason Leach, Gretchen

Ashley Nerlock, daughter of Dale and Lori Nerlock of Thief River Falls and a second grader at Challenger elementary school, batted 1,000 in the reading challenge which extends through March 23. The program involves nine innings, with each inning representing 100 minutes of reading outside the school setting. After nine innings (900 minutes) of reading time has been recorded, a bonus 100 minutes is added for reading time in school and the student bats 1,000. Ashley was the first, and so far the only, student to reach the reading goal. Students in the program receive a "home run" prize at the end of each 100-minute inning. As a grand prize Ashley received a Hall of Fame certificate posted on the school wall and later sent home with her, and a free book of her choice. The reading time can be spent reading aloud to family members or others or reading silently, and material can include books, newspapers, magazines or other materials.

Area schools will receive milk settlement payment

Willmar, $47,110, Worthington, $24,204; Marshall, $22,892; Fairmont Area Schools, $21,593; and Montevideo, $15,933.

In April, 1997, the attorney general's office settled claims against Land O'Lakes for $287,730 and Geo. Benz & Sons, Inc., (doing business as Oak Grove Dairy) for $460,000. In October of 1997, settlement was reached with Wells Dairy for $142,150.

The settlements total $889,880, the bulk of which will be returned to the affected school districts. Because one dairy is paying the state in three installments, the school districts will also receive two smaller payments, one later this year and one in the summer of 1999. The first payment totals $568,214.

Claims against the dairies alleged they participated in unlawful bid-rigging and market allocation schemes. Assertion was that the dairies agreed with one another to divide the public school districts so one dairy would submit the winning bid for a school district's milk contract, and the other dairies would then submit complementary, or non-competitive, bids to that district.

Seventh grader Kara Larson, daughter of Jon and Valerie Larson, won the Americanism essay contest on American flag protection sponsored by the Thief River Falls Elks Lodge 1308. The contest was open to students in grades six through eight. Kara's essay was sent on to district competition. Kara Larson wins Elks essay contest on the American flag

Kara Larson, seventh grader at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls and the daughter of Jon and Valerie Larson, won first place in the American flag essay contest sponsored by Elks Lodge 1308 in Thief River Falls. She received a $100 savings bond from the lodge and her essay was sent on to district competition.

The American flag protection amendment was the theme of the contest open to all students in grades six through eight. Judging was based on originality (30 points), development of theme (40 points) and proper spelling, grammar and punctuation (30 points).

Kara's essay was as follows:

The American Flag
by Kara Larson

When you see the American flag blowing in the wind, what do you think? I hope you don't think it's just a colorful flag that we say words to every morning. It's actually something very meaningful, if you really think about it.

The flag shows that we are a free country and have many privileges compared to other countries. When you spit on the flag, it's like saying, "who cares about freedom?" We should be proud to say, "I'm a part of the United States of America!" The flag is sacred and is a symbol.

In school, I've heard about kids who don't stand and say the Pledge of Allegiance in the morning, and it bothers me. Those kids just don't understand what it means to live in our great country. They take it for granted. I almost feel like they should be sent to a country that doesn't have freedom and see what they say when they come back.

I think the burning of the flag is disgraceful. It's not made to be burned. The people who do that shouldn't be able to live in the United States. They should be sent to some place else.

Thousands of years from now, the flag will still wave and have the same meaning. I hope the people of that time will still understand and respect the American flag.

used to support the bull ride, which will be held in conjunction with the Pennington County Fair. The city council granted the request.

The council approved a resolution discontinuing the city's building official's consulting services with the City of Warren effective May 1. Community Development Director Don Stewart, explained that there were a number of reasons for discontinuing the service, including a continuing high volume in Thief River Falls, added duties of weed inspector and zoning administrative work for the building inspector, and worries regarding liability for problems in Warren.

The council called for bids on the Wastewater Pond Improvement project to be opened at 2 p.m. on April 1. Superintendent of Utilities Arlo Rude, explained that the $1.6 million project would elevate the pond walls by two feet. He added that grants for the project were available.

A conditional use permit for Janelle Osowski and New Life Assembly was approved by the council. Osowski is proposing to operate a health club at 315 Duluth Avenue North.

The council approved a preliminary plat for First Southwest Industrial Park Addition, and approved a recommendation to name the addition "Gilbert Industrial Addition".

The council also approved a sign ordinance revision regarding larger buildings in C-2 districts. The amendment would allow wall signage up to 20 percent of the gross silhouette area of a building the size of Hugo's, with a gross silhouette area in excess of 5,000 square feet, and would allow over over 1,000 square feet of signage.

In other business, the council: approved charging off $631.56 in NSF checks from the liquor dispensary; approved modifying the city's travel and accident policy to a $100,000 benefit for all employees vs. the three separate classes; approved a bid for a backhoe totaling $105,814.14; approved the bid of Krider Inc., for a 580L Case backhoe; called for bids on a truck mounted with high velocity sewer jet cleaner to be opened at 2 p.m. on March 16; approved designating Kendall Ave. from Greenwood Street to Nora and Zeh Street from Arnold Avenue to Main, and Duluth from Third to Fourth Street as additions to the city's Minnesota State Aid Street System, approved declaring the series 3400 International backhoe as surplus property and called for quotes; approved a three-year farm rental contract for 48 acres located within the airport security fence to Jim Rondorf for $12 per acre; and authorized execution of MnDOT agreement regarding First Street Traffic signal.

The council also accepted the building official's annual report.

Agricultural producers and others interested in forage production are encouraged to attend a forage production information meeting Wednesday, March 11, at the Eagles hall in Thief River Falls. The program is free and open to the public.

Doors will open at 9 a.m. and the educational program—presented in two concurrent sessions—will start at 10 a.m. The meeting is sponsored by the University of Minnesota Extension Service, Minnesota Forage and Grassland Council and Harvest States elevator in St. Hilaire.

Morning and afternoon programs are planned with a noon lunch to be served by the Harvest States elevator of St. Hilaire.

Speakers and topics at the morning program will include Robert Oelke, agronomist, who will speak on A Good Start Is Half the Job: Alfalfa Establishment. Dr. Ian MacRae, entomologist, who will give an outlook on insect pests to scout for in forages in 1988; Vince Crary, extension educator, who will talk about To Cut or Not to Cut That Is the Question, Russ Mathison, agronomist, will deal with alfalfa variety selection and making the right choice, and Linda Scott, forage preservation specialist, will discuss Preservatives: Will They Pay?

Speakers at the afternoon program beginning at 1 p.m. include Dave Rabes, agronomist, addressing Weed Control in Forages and Preparing Yourself to Obtain the Best Hay Quality and Troy Salzer, extension educator, speaking on storage, loss prevention and selling hay.

"This excellent program will give growers the opportunity to learn more about forage production and ask any production questions," states Howard Person, Pennington county extension educator.

Commercial exhibitors will display their products during the day and help provide answers to questions and concerns about forage products.

A similar forage day will be presented Thursday, March 12, in Warroad beginning at 10 a.m.

Edith Dyrdal celebrates 100th birthday

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

After a big celebration on Saturday afternoon and company for most of the day on Sunday, one would have expected Edith Dyrdal to be tired by Monday evening. After all, she's 100 years old.

Thief River Falls' latest centenarian's birthday was Sunday, March 1. On Saturday over 100 relatives and friends gathered in the afternoon at the CNC Unit of Northwest Medical Center to help Edith mark the occasion. Out of town guests came from the Minneapolis and St. Paul areas, Winona, Chisago City and Forest Lake. The party was informal as guests visited and shared photographs. To Edith's delight, her great-nephew sang one of her favorite songs, "Holy City."

She also received numerous greetings by mail and telephone from all around the United States and Canada. A birthday card from Washington, D.C. bore the presidential seal.

On Sunday, a steady stream of company arrived throughout the day. "They're still coming!" she declared when I had the opportunity to visit with her late Monday afternoon.

Edith has resided in the CNC Unit of Northwest Medical Center since September of 1995. Her cheerful room contains an assortment of family photographs, books, stuffed animals, a red Mylar balloon still flying high from Valentine's Day and several floral bouquets. It didn't take long, however, to find out that Edith is what makes the room really bright.

Her son Donavon and his wife, Ann, were there when I arrived. Edith was up, in her wheelchair, reading. Ann mentioned that she only had a few pages left in the thick, hard-cover book. I signaled to Ann not to disturb her and let her finish the book.

Ann and Donavon filled me in on the background details of his mother's long life, a basis for the questions I would ask. Edith seemed oblivious to the fact that we were in the room. As she read, one could see that she was concentrating fully and effortlessly, and she held the heavy book steadily.

Once the book was finished and laid aside and introductions were made, Edith told me about some of the places she's been, the things she's done and has yet to do.

Edith was born on March 1, 1898 in Anoka. She was one of four children. She had two brothers, and her sister died as a child.

When she was ten, the family moved to Frazee where she continued to go to school and graduated from high school in 1914. Edith cleaned houses after school, earning ten cents a day. "It added up," she commented.

It took Edith no time at all to respond to answer a question about her earliest memory. She told about a turkey who would sneak up behind her and chase her. "I wasn't any more than two years old," she said. She went on to explain how her mother would come to the rescue with a broomstick and chase the turkey away.

"We walked!," she exclaimed when asked how they got around in those days. There was also horses and buggies, and Donavon told about a time when his mother hopped a freight train to Duluth with some teenage friends. The adventure, according to Edith, was a matter of necessity, and she added, "I only did that once." She referred to her father's first Ford automobile as "Tin Lizzy" and said that he sold it after it didn't stop when he told it "Whoa."

After high school, she attended Moorhead Teachers College for a year and then taught for a number of years at rural schools in Becker County and finally in a "town school" in Big Lake. After attending six sessions of summer school, she received an advanced teaching degree.

When her father died, Edith returned home to stay with her mother and work as a proofreader at West Publishing Company in St. Paul. She told of how her starting wages were $17 a week, but she was quick to impress her boss. "I got a raise right away," she said. Printing errors continue to be one of Edith's pet peeves.

Edith met her future husband, Ingebrigt Dyrdal at a house party. According to Edith, Ingebrigt said, "That's the girl for me!" Edith shared some of the details of how he won her over and said, "You don't have to print this." After a one-year courtship, Edith and Ingebrigt were married on March 20, 1926 in St. Paul.

The couple homesteaded in Norden township in 1929, on a farm that remains in the Dyrdal family. Edith described northern Minnesota as "evergreen country and close to Canada." She also said that the area has the "best water, freshest air" and is the "best place in Minnesota." While brought up by parents of Scandinavian decent, she grew up in an English speaking household and did encounter a language barrier with many of her Norwegian-speaking neighbors in northern Minnesota.

In 1931, Ingebrigt and Edith built a new home. While modern conveniences were not yet available in this area, the couple had their house wired for electricity and plumbed with fixtures. They waited many years to use them. "I waited 18 years for a telephone!," Edith declared.

Edith helped her husband on the farm. "I helped my dad as a child, too. I worked on the farm from the day I was born," she said. "I liked to be outside. I wasn't worth a nickel to my mother in the house!" Farm work in those days was done by hand and with teams of work horses. Her love for the outdoors extended to gardening, both vegetables and flowers. "I like to make things grow."

Her first child, Edith Elaine, was born on December 6, 1931 and died a few days later on December 10. LuAnn was born on October 18, 1933, David on June 28, 1937 and Donavon on July 13, 1942.

Diabetes caused LuAnn to lose her sight in one eye and lose a leg. Edith explained how her daughter used a prosthesis and was still able to drive a car. LuAnn died in 1985 at the age of 52.

After her husband died in 1967, Edith continued to live in their home, and she still enjoys an occasional outing to the farm.

Throughout the years, her social life revolved around the Norden Luthern Church, and she was a member of the Good Cheer Club. Edith can still recite the club motto.

One of her favorite sayings is "Laugh and the world laughs with you." She loves poetry and has a number of favorites. Edith cites John 3:16 as her favorite Bible verse. She mentioned the golden rule, and when asked if that's how she's lived her life, she smiled impishly and said, "I've tried to. I've put myself in the other person's shoes."

The book she finished Monday afternoon, Stories I Couldn't Tell When I Was A Pastor was the last of a series she's completed. She loves reading and has a long list of books she plans to read.

While she doesn't seem to be interested in television as an entertainment source, she watches the local and national news daily, keeping up to date on current events. Over the years, she hasn't been afraid to speak out on social and political issues she feels strongly about and has written numerous letters to editors of The Times, Grand Forks Herald and Fargo Forum as well as to state and federal officeholders including President Clinton. In a letter to the Grand Forks Herald, her writing and message were articulate at the age of 96.

She was hospitalized when eligible to vote for the first time and still seemed upset with the doctor who treated her request for an absentee ballot as foolishness. Edith continues to vote in every election, by absentee ballot since moving to CNC.

At the age of 90, she traveled to Norway with her granddaughter. The pair flew to Sweden and then traveled by train to Norway. She told me all about the tunnel through the mountain between the two countries that took 12 years to build and how one sits sideways in the train's passenger cars.

Asked if she has anything she wants to do, she said, "I want to go to Alaska or at least Seattle." While she's traveled in the midwest and eastern states, she has yet to go west.

Toward the end of our visit, Edith asked, "Don't you want to hear about what I don't like?" Before I responded, she emphatically said, "I don't like snowmobiles, motor bikes or Jello." Her sons eye's rolled and I swallowed a chuckle. She's ridden a snowmobile and still doesn't like them, and with regard to Jello, "It's just flavored water," she said.

While Edith uses a wheelchair for sitting and getting around and an amplified headset to hear some conversation and the television, her overall appears excellent. Donavon knows of only two times when she was hospitalized, and until recently, the only medicine she took was an occasional aspirin.

When I expressed worry about tiring her and the fact that her dinner that was getting cold, she disregarded my concerns. It was clear that she would rather visit than rest or eat. Sitting side-by-side, our chairs facing opposite directions, she didn't need the hearing device to hear me nor did I have any difficulty understanding what she had to tell me.

When she finally wore me out, and I put on my coat to leave, Edith voice was commanding as she said, "Get back here, I'm not done with you yet!" I quickly returned to my chair. It was a story idea that she wanted to share with me — a very good idea at that. I appreciated her advice.

As I said good night her hand was warm and strong, her skin smooth. When Edith talks, one listens. She can get by with saying she doesn't like snowmobiles, motor bikes and Jello, even in the heart of snowmobile country. After all, she's 100 years old — on her way to 101.

Reading is one of Edith Dyrdal's favorite activities along with bingo and trivia at the CNC Unit of Northwest Medical Center where she has resided since 1995. Edith celebrated her 100th birthday on Sunday, March 1. On Saturday over 100 relatives and friends gathered for a party. After such a busy weekend, one expected her to be tired. Monday evening, however, the centenarian was still raring to go.

Information series for home buyers

To assist in preparing home buyers for one of the most important financial decisions many will make, the University of Minnesota extension service and Minnesota Housing Finance Agency will offer a series of "Home Stretch" home buyer workshops on three consecutive Tuesday evenings beginning March 24. The workshops will be conducted from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

The three-session series is designed for first-time home buyers of low to moderate income; for homeowners ready to finance a contract for deed, or persons just interested in exploring the possibilities of home ownership.

Participants will be provided a thorough explanation of the home buying process. They will find out how much home they can afford, what lenders look for in a buyer, how to eliminate the barriers to home ownership and what kinds of mortgage assistance programs are available.

A certificate of completion will be provided to all participants who attend all three workshop sessions. Some lending programs require completion of a home buying workshop to qualify borrowers for their mortgage products.

Registration fee for the three-session workshop is $5 per household. Call the Pennington county extension office at 683-7030 or 1-800-681-2116 to receive a registration brochure with more information. Seating is limited so early registration is suggested. Deadline to register is Wednesday, Marrh 18.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

For Feet's Sake

I did something the other day that I've never done before. On Saturday I had a pedicure. Yep, went way out on a limb and exposed my feet to a stranger.

This was something I would have never sought out on my own, but because I received a gift certificate for this service, I thought I ought to try it. Anything free is worth a try at least once.

When I told my husband I was going to have a pedicure, he said, referring to my feet: "You're not actually going to show those to someone?" I am self-conscious about my feet because they are not the loveliest specimens around. Photographers are not seeking me out for feet photo shoots, unless they're in need of something for a horror film. Because of this I don't wear open-toe sandals or high-heels. My toenails have never even seen polish.

My feet are kind of pudgy with short, squat toes and very weird toenails. But I felt a professional could overlook my flaws and could maybe even help my feet become more attractive and something I could be proud of.

In preparation for Saturday's pampering, I shaved the hair from the tops of my toes and cleaned out the lint balls from between my toes. I was ready for this new experience.

After removing my socks, I placed my feet in a foot spa, a mini vibrating bathtub filled with warm soapy water. This alone was worth the trip. While my feet were being refreshed (and sanitized) I enjoyed reading a magazine.

Then, wouldn't you know, there was a feature article on women stars and their manicures and pedicures. I felt immediate empathy with my technician, she had her work cut out for her with me and my feet. No matter how hard she worked, we wouldn't be featured in a magazine.

After about 10 minutes of soaking and massaging, she dried my feet and applied a brownish-colored sea scrub. The tiny particles of sand in the concoction exfoliated my skin. Then a sea serum (also known as callus treatment) was rubbed into each foot.

With an oversize emery board she smoothed my calluses and removed the dead skin cells. I tried not to giggle out loud as she worked on some of the ticklish spots on my feet; it's a good thing, I thought, that my feet aren't overly sensitive or it would be a long procedure.

The next step was removing the dry, dead cuticles and trimming the toenails. I think this is the spot where I began to feel drowsy and extremely relaxed. A pillow would have done me in; I wondered if it would be rude to fall asleep during a pedicure.

I felt dubious as the pedicurist reached for a bottle holding green paste. This, I discovered, was a mask – like the kind women often put on their face to draw out all the impurities. She applied this to my feet and wrapped them in a towel. A few minutes later my feet were tingling and warm. Hey, I like this, I thought to myself.

But all good things must end. She rinsed the green mask off and then applied massage oil and massaged my feet and legs up to the knees. Sure wish I would have shaved my legs a little more closely.

I selected a color of nail polish, which she applied to each of my little piggies. After a brief rest, I was allowed to put my socks and shoes on and go home. My feet felt warm and were still tingling. I wanted to go barefoot, but I guess it is winter and people might think me odd to be shoeless. I wanted to show off my "new" feet. The only ones who got to appreciate the new look were my socks and shoes.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Eeva Young, Lincoln High School

It's the middle of February, about the time when the winter blues really hit hard. It's the time of year when we're longing for spring, and busy getting our cars washed two times a week. We tip-toe through mushy messes and go through a box of Kleenex every three days. With colds, flus, and hectic schedules, late winter can really get our spirits down.

I have a busy schedule all year round, but this time of year it seems to get even crazier. School work always takes a big chunk of time (Hamlet) demands at least 45 minutes per night). Teachers seem to get in a frenzy to cover all of the material by the end of the year and start to push a little harder. Extra homework such as writing contests, science fairs, choir sectionals, and flute lesson add to the stress.

For a senior, this time of year is especially hectic. We begin worrying about whether we'll get our first pick of colleges, financial aid, and scholarships. This is a heavy weight on our shoulders because our decisions will affect the rest of our lives. Seeing stressed out seniors in the hall isn't a rare occasion. I'm used to seeing my friends filling out scholarship applications hurriedly in the hallway. But even with the stress, most of us are excited over the idea that graduation is near, and we soon will be on our our own.

Some students also have to worry about the concert choir's New York tour and Close Up's Washington D.C. trip. I am taking part in both of these trips. The amount of preparation for these trips is endless for teachers, parents, and students. After two rummage sales, two raffle ticket fund-raisers, and selling everything from chocolates to gift wrap to concert tickets, fund-raising has lost its appeal for me at this time. But in spite of the work, I know the trips will be great learning experiences, and I will make memories and friends that will last a lifetime.

Though fund-raising covers part of the cost, the majority of the money came from my checkbook. I am employed, like most high schoolers, and earn my own money. I work part-time at a local grocery store. It's a good experience to have the responsibility of a job, but it's difficult seeing that money going for these trips. At $5 something an hour, it takes awhile to accumulate enough for the payments. I also now have the words "Paper or Plastic" permanently branded on my brain.

Not only does the typical teenager go to school and work, but they are also involved in sports activities. I am no exception. During the fall, I'm on the tennis team, but during the winter my focus has switched to boys basketball cheerleading. We are busy with practice two to three times a week and have one or two games a week. Staying in shape and being part of a team is an important part of the high school experience.

It's been a rough cheerleading season this year with unenthusiastic crowds and less than victorious teams. As cheerleaders, we enjoy cheering and supporting the team, but we wish there would have been larger and more responsive crowd to cheer with us.

Miscellaneous activities round out my schedule and include being a Sunday School teacher for Preschool and Kindergarten. I'm also in National Honor Society and was recently chosen to participate in the United Nations program which will take place in Canada.

I'm also supposed to be and active participant in cleaning my room. But this activity is the least priority. Though sleep is a much enjoyed event, little time is available. Luckily for us teenagers, we seem to be able to function "normally" on few hours of rest.

Yet, even with a hint of the winter blues, I wouldn't drop any of my activities. It's just my February ennui—

Question of the Month

Why don't you get new furniture? The library is on a five-year refurbishment plan currently. Last year the parking lot (between the library and Bridgeman's) was paved and striped. New bookshelves for the juvenile and easy reader paperbacks were also built last year. The new magazine chairs just arrived this month as did the new children's chairs and bookshelves for the hardcover easy readers. The lighting was also replaced this year and not only provides better lighting so that people can find things more easily, but is also easier on the eyes. A new children's chalkboard is also on order for this year.

Refurbishment of the library was requested both in surveys and the suggestion box. Because of the cost, it was spread over a five-year period.

World Day of Prayer March 6

"Who is My Neighbor?" is the theme of the 111th annual World Day of Prayer. Area women and men are invited to join millions of other women and men from 170 countries and islands around the globe in the large grassroots, ecumenical, international worship service. The observance will take place in the Thief River Falls community on Friday, March 6 at 9:30 a.m. at the United Methodist Church.

The 1998 theme, "Who is My Neighbor?," focuses on Madagascar, the third largest island in the world located in the Indian Ocean off the coast of southeast Africa. The climate is tropical, and the island is known for its precious stones, spices such as vanilla and cloves and its unique wildlife. The population is a mixture of Asians and Africans from a number of tribes, speaking a common language. Over the years, Christianity has become the dominant religion.

Reverend Marcia Sylvester of Redeemer Lutheran Church will deliver the message with many area women from various churches participating in the unique service. Sharline Hess, Jan Peterson, Donna Poole and Millie Reierson will be worship leaders, and Annabelle Cuppett will be the scripture reader. The interpreters of Madagascar will be Carole Narverud, Betty Feragen, Colleen Holen, Lucy Aasland, Pauline Aubol and Pat Kruta. Ida Nordvall from Zion Lutheran Church will be the organist.

Registration will precede the 9:30 a.m. service. Refreshments and fellowship will follow in the church dining hall. While children are welcome to attend the service, no nursery will be provided.

An offering will be taken with half of the proceeds used for grants for projects in Madagascar and the other half divided between the area food shelf and Violence Intervention Project. Church Women United is the sponsoring organization.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Jessica Kraukkala, Lincoln High School

Everyone believes in something. My beliefs play an extremely huge part in my life. I feel that people's beliefs form their personalities and frame their outlooks on life.

People basically form their credo from the way they were raised and from their religion. This does not mean that everyone who belongs to the same religion will have the same beliefs.

I was raised in a Christian family and attend the Evangelical Free Church. The majority of the teens at my church believe pretty much the way I do. It is always comforting to go to church and know that there are people who believe the same as you, and with whom you feel comfortable sharing your feelings.

One topic that I feel very strongly about is the music and movies made today. I cannot believe the vulgar language and sexual innuendos in so much of our music and so many of our movies. The sad thing is that we watch these movies and hear this music every day. Also, many graphic movies are only rated PG or PG-13, but contain situations and language that, I feel, are hardly suitable for adults! It is disturbing that so many people pay to see these movies that are "supposedly great," yet by going to them, we support them and appear to condone them. The problem is we are influenced by the promos, and when we get there we are not always certain we should have gone.

For example, just the other night, two of my friends and I went to Grand Forks to see a movie that critics had ranted and raved about. We went because, according to commercials, it looked like a very funny movie. During the movie we heard a girl in the theater, about seven years old, asking her mommy what a prostitute was. Her mother scolded her and told her not to talk about it. Why then did she take her daughter there?

Children are definitely affected by the scenes and comments made in these movies. They don't understand them, so they repeat phrases and swear words. By the end of the movie, my friends and I could not believe all of the crude comments, that had no real significance to the story line. I wish there was some way we could change this.

Another thing that I feel extremely strongly about is premarital sex. I have been taught that you should save yourself until marriage. I feel sex is something very special and should only be shared with ONE person, the love of your life. I do not understand why anyone would even want to risk getting all of the diseases that are out there today. I have heard from some classmates that they have sex because they are really in love and think they are going to be together forever. Yeah, maybe sometimes that's right, but it still doesn't change God's Words and make it O.K. I don't want to marry someone who has slept with different people. I also feel that I should remain a virgin for my conscience, for the safety of my body, for the sake of God's Words, and for the love of my future husband.

It's not that I feel I am better than anyone else or that my religion is superior to others. I'm just talking about what I believe. I'm not perfect. I make mistakes, but when I do, I try to correct them, not repeat them, dwell on them, excuse them, or wallow in them. My beliefs are my guides, and I'm proud of them.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Just Thinking Important Thoughts

Here's a joke I read recently:

Three little old ladies are sitting in a diner, chatting about various things.

One lady says, "You know, I'm getting really forgetful. This morning I was standing at the top of the stairs and I couldn't remember whether I had just come up or was about to go down."

The second lady says, "You think that's bad? The other day I was sitting on the edge of my bed and I couldn't remember whether I was going to bed or had just woken up!"

The third lady smiles smugly. "Well, my memory's just as good as it's always been, knock on wood," and she raps sharply on the table. With a startled look on her face, she asks, "Who's there?"

I'll admit, the joke is funny, but I do resent the sexism in it. Why are they little old ladies? Why not little old men? I'm sure they are just as forgetful as little old ladies, if not more so. We little old ladies just have so much on our minds, like our knitting and our recipes and our housecleaning. What do little old men have to forget besides hammers and the morning paper and where they set their glasses?

It does seem as though the memory gets a little rusty as one ages, however, but we don't have to call it getting forgetful in one's old age. I prefer to blame an occasional memory lapse on being so busy and trying to think of too many things at one time. Like the other day, I hopped into bed and was trying to compose myself for sleep. Of course, as always, my mind was going lickity-split, still thinking of what I had done during the day and what I had to do the next day. I thought of cooked ham.

Yes, well, it was very simple, really. That day I had bought a lot of cooked ham at the grocery store and then divided it into small packages for freezing. But that night, try as I might, I couldn't remember if I put it in the freezer or not. I know I was thinking rather deeply about something else while I did the meat packing chore and I began to think maybe I hadn't popped the packages into the freezer at all. It wouldn't be bad if I had put them into the refrigerator, but what if I had put them into the cupboard? They would be ruined!

It wouldn't be the first time that something like that happened in my house. One never knows if they will find a carton full of sour milk on the cupboard shelf or a cup of coffee in the refrigerator. Somehow things like that just happen around here. I can't imagine who is doing it! Perhaps I have an elf in the kitchen.

Often things in my house grow legs and walk away, too. I know I put whatever it is in a certain spot, and, sure enough, when I go to get it, it has walked away. After much searching, I sometimes find it in another spot. Sometimes I find it weeks later. Sometimes I don't find it at all. Maybe I will some day.

Part of the problem is having a house overflowing with stuff from five children. Those who now have homes of their own have pretty much taken whatever was theirs (sometimes what was mine, too). But there is still much remaining and I can't bear to get rid of it. I know I will surely need it some day. So it seems as though I am always looking for something that I know I have, that I have seen recently and I need right now, but where is it?

But none of this means I am getting forgetful in my old age. It is simply a case of being so busy and have one's mind so occupied with all sorts of important things that some of the teensy little things have a way of slipping through it without making much of an impression. Why bother with the little things anyway? Right?

ACTIVITIES
Oatmeal Playdough

For an interesting sensory experience, mix this oatmeal playdough for your children. You will need:

2 cups rolled oats (quick or regular)
1 cup plain flour and
3/4 cup water

Place all ingredients in a large mixing bowl. Stir with a wooden spoon to moisten all ingredients. Turn the dough out on a floured surface and knead well. If sticky, work in a bit more flour. If dry and crumbly, add a bit more water. Now it's ready to squeeze, poke, pound, pat and roll!

PARENTING TIPS
Books or Television

Today's world is clearly different from the world that most of us grew up in. Today's children are growing up with television and video cassettes. This can make story time a real challenge for parents. Some children may actually say that they prefer television and tapes to books. Some parents may feel that because their children have already seen the tape, they won't enjoy the same story read to them. So what can we do? We know that reading to children is important but how can we compete with television and video cassettes?

Children's books contain many of the same elements that draw children to movies and television: action, drama, rhythm and dialogue, but it is up to the person reading the story to bring these qualities to life. Following are some ways to do this.

- Be aware of your reading speed. Either too fast or too slow can lose your listener. Also be sure to vary the speed according to the story. Do the same with your volume.
- Try a different voice for each character so your child can tell them apart.
- Try adding texture and character to your reading. It's the difference between reading "Look at the snake slide through the grass," and "Look at the snaaaaaake sliiiiide through the grass." Use expression and you will find your children will truly enjoy listening to you.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. Recently I signed up for Social Security retirement. Since my own earnings have been low, I filed on my husband's record also. Today I received a letter from Social Security with information of how much I will receive, but it only mentioned by own record. What about my husband's record?

A. You will be receiving through your husband's record also but have not received that letter yet. When a person, such as yourself, is going to be eligible on more than one record, it is easier and faster to process the application on their own record first and then process the other application. The computer generated letter you received only contains information about your own record, and it included a phrase telling you that information about any other applications that you filed would be forthcoming. For future reference, looking at the claim letter referred to on the letter will tell you which benefits are involved. The claim number for benefits on your own earnings is your Social Security number (SSN) followed by an A. Benefits based on someone else's record will show that person's SSN followed by a letter.

Attention Parents With Minor Children: If you or your minor child will be applying for an original or replacement Social Security card, you will need to show the Social Security numbers of both parents in addition to the other evidence listed on the application. Since this information is not yet requested on the application (SS-5), please enter it by the parents' names. Social Security number applications received without this information will have delayed processing. This information is required due to Public Law 105-34, the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 and was effective February 8, 1998. Again, The SSN of both parents will be needed when an application for an initial or replacement SSN for a child under 18 is submitted.

■ Josh Deere, Aaron Austin lead Wolfpack to Sub-Section 32A win

Josh Deere and Aaron Austin were leaders of the (Wolf)pack Monday, carrying Kittson Central to a nail-biting 58-55 Sub-Section 32A boys high school basketball tournament semifinal win over Badger/Greenbush-Middle River in front of a large Northland Community and Technical College gymnasium crowd.

Deere, a senior, and Austin, a sophomore, scored 21 points apiece as the Wolfpack won the match-up of 17-5 teams. It was Deere's basket on a drive through traffic in the lane with 2.6 seconds left in a 55-55 tie that was the game-winner.

A Badger/Greenbush-Middle River player got the clock stopped by calling time with 1.9 seconds showing, but the Gators had just used their final time out moments earlier. The technical foul wrapped it up for the Wolfpack. Although Deere made only one of the two free throws, Kittson Central retained possession for the win.

It was a disappointing loss for Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "I think we have the better basketball team and we should have won the game," he said. "But they've got two outstanding kids who really played well for them. Deere just killed us. He pulled up and hit the shots whenever they needed them. And Austin had some big baskets."

Sub-Section 32A Boys
■ Semifinals Monday March 2 - Tri-County 30, Stephen-Argyle 36, Kittson Central 58, Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 55
■ Finals Saturday, March 7 - (third place) Stephen-Argyle vs Badger/Greenbush-Middle River, 6:30 p.m.; (championship) Tri-County vs. Kittson Central, 8:15 p.m.

Sparby thought he had more depth and a stronger all-around product to put on the floor, but not all the pieces were operating at peak proficiency, he said, enabling the Wolfpack to win it with their 1-2 Deere-Austin attack. And if that didn't do it, then Mitch Deere provided an extra punch by coming off the bench to score nine points on a pair of three-pointers, and 3-for-4 shooting at the free throw line.

It started like a blow-out as Josh Deere scored six points in an 11-0 game-opening Kittson Central run. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River, after turning it over on five consecutive possessions, finally got on the board on a running jump shot by Jeremy Vacura with 4:20 elapsed.

The Wolfpack never lost the lead in the first half. The spread was down to 17-12 at the first quarter break, but it was back to 11, 25-14, followed a three-point basket by Mitch Deere with 6:26 to go before intermission.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River came back with seven straight points to make it a game, pulling within 25-21 on a rebound basket by Andy Schenkey with 5:11 to play in a half that ended 33-29.

The Wolfpack started the second half much like they did the first half and quickly had a 40-31 lead on a drive to the basket from the side by Austin with 1:21 gone.

But the Gators hung in there. A strong effort on the offensive boards keyed an 8-0 finish to the third quarter as Richard Wockenfuss scored from underneath, Vacura dropped a three-pointer from the top of the key and Richard Wockenfuss completed a three-point play on a rebound basket and a free throw with no time on the clock to tie it 45-45.

"We had to battle back, battle back all night," noted Sparby. "We told the kids if we were going to get back in it, we had to play strong, physical basketball and hit the boards hard. We were missing a lot of shots inside, but we grabbed the rebounds and just kept shooting until it went it."

First Badger/Greenbush-Middle River lead of the night came on a three-point play 63 seconds into the final period by Shane Nelson.

The two teams were never separated by more than three points the rest of the way.

Nelson came up with a steal on an in-bounds pass under the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River basket, drew a foul and made one of two free throws to tie it for the last time, 55-55, with 53.7 seconds to play.

Nelson picked off another Kittson Central pass at mid-court and was fouled again heading to the basket with 33.2 seconds on the clock. But he missed the front end of the bonus opportunity and the rebound was controlled by the Wolfpack – a possession that led by Josh Deere's game-winning drive as he sailed above traffic with time running out.

Daryl Wockenfuss scored 18 points, while Vacura and Schenkey both netted 11 for the Gators.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River was 24-for-56 from the field (43 percent) and 5-for-8 at the free throw line. Kittson Central went 22-for-49 from the floor (45 percent) and 9-for-15 at the line. The Gators had a 31-28 rebound edge, including a 16-6 advantage on the offensive end. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River topped the turnover charts 14-11.

Defensive effort by Adam Holmes of Badger/Greenbush-Middle River kept Scott Erickson of Kittson Central from driving to the basket during Monday's Sub-Section 32A boys high school basketball tournament semifinal game at Northland Community and Technical College. The Wolfpack edged the Gators 58-55.

Wildcats win 32A girls title

It's tough to defend free throws. According to Badger/Greenbush-Middle River head coach Tom Neibauer, his team turned in a championship-caliber defensive effort while play was in progress, but Afton Hanson beat the Gators at the free throw line Saturday as the Wildcats came up with a 45-40 win in the Sub-Section 32A girls high school basketball tournament title game at Northland Community and Technical College.

Hanson was 6-for-6 at the free throw line in the final minute-and-a-half, with four of those coming in the last 16 seconds, to turn back the Gators' upset bid.

"Take away the free throws at the end, and we held them to 40 points on defense," explained Neibauer. "That's always our goal going into a game – hold a team to 40 points or less. If you do that, you should be able to win."

But Gators had just as much trouble generating an offense as the Wildcats.

"They've got so much talent," noted Neibauer. "They're taller and quicker than we are at most positions. We had to do everything right to beat them."

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River did a lot of things well, but not everything. The Gators ran into late-game problems when they missed three lay-ups and the front end of two bonus free throws opportunities down the stretch. "If we score in those situations, it would have put us in front, and it would have changed the whole complexion of the game," offered Neibauer.

It was close from start to finish. The two teams played to a 13-13 first quarter tie. The Gators inched ahead 24-23 at halftime and the Wildcats had a 34-31 edge going into the final quarter.

"It was a real good ball game," said Neibauer, whose team finished the year 17-8. It was the second down-to-the-wire win over the Gators this winter for the Wildcats, who won a 50-48 regular season match-up Feb. 12.

Anna Bogestad had a 15-point, 13-rebound game to lead Tri-County. Hanson finished with 12 points and Mandi Ruud contributed 11. A 14-point game by Stefanie Sparby led the Badger/ Greenbush-Middle River scoring.

The Wildcats were 14-for-43 from the field (33 percent) and 15-for-26 at the free throw line. The Gators went 12-for-34 from the floor (35 percent) and made 14 of 25 free throws. Tri-County had a 36-30 rebound edge. Turnovers were even at 11-apiece.

Kittson Central handled Stephen-Argyle 41-27 in the third place game to kick off the doubleheader final.

Fertile-Beltrami girls beat Red Lake County Central...

Mustangs lose in overtime

Overtime was needed Saturday to determine a winner in the Red Lake County Central vs. Fertile-Beltrami Sub-Section 30A girls high school basketball tournament championship game at the University of Minnesota-Crookston, with the Falcons emerging a 67-65 winner.

It was a game that featured an unusually-high turnover figure for a title game – 55. Red Lake County Central turned it over 31 times, including a number of crucial errors at the end of both regulation and overtime, while Fertile-Beltrami lost the ball 24 times.

"It's pretty late in the year to be having that many turnovers," said Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto. "Its a game we should have won."

The Falcons had a 16-13 first quarter lead and maintained a 32-29 halftime edge. It was tied 43-43 at the end of the third quarter. Red Lake County Central had a four-point lead with two minutes left in regulation time, but could not hold on to the ball, or the lead down the stretch. A final-possession opportunity for the Falcons was tipped away, sending the teams into overtime tied at 57-57.

Errors continued to plague the Mustangs in the extra session. Trailing 63-62, they had the ball with a chance to go ahead, only to turn it over with 13 seconds to play.

The steal and lay-up by the Falcons' Roni Wenschlag made it 65-62.

Fouled on the breakaway basket, Wenschlag missed the opportunity to make it a three-point play, but the Falcons controlled the rebound, and Tanya Erickson iced it by making two free throws with seven seconds to play.

A three-point shot by the Mustangs' Frances Hilgeman at the end made it a two-point final.

Erickson scored 20 points, Candice Solie 15 and Melissa Tuseth 12 for the winners.

Angie Chervestad of the Mustangs ran into early foul trouble but still came up with a 23-point, 12-rebound game. Hilgeman netted 16 points. Chervestad wound up with 1,369 career points.

Both sides shot 35 percent from the field – Red Lake County Central a busy 28-for-81 and Beltrami-Beltrami 23-for-65. The Mustangs were 13-for-17 at the free throw line, where the Falcons had a game-winning 24-for-39 showing. Red Lake County Central out-rebound Fertile-Beltrami 43-35.

The Mustangs, who lost a 59-50 regular season decision to the Falcons, finished the year 16-8.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke was a 53-50 winner over Marshall County Central Saturday in the Sub-Section 31A girls high school basketball tournament third place game played at Crookston High School.

Kathryn Stanley scored 15 points, Jenny Nelson 12 and Angie Gast 10 for the Wolverines, who led at the quarter stops 12-8, 25-24 and 40-36.

"We've played better," admitted Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "They (Nordics) played well. We played good in spots."

Kristi Kilen scored 12 points and Miki Waterworth had 10 for the Nordics. Marshall County Central had a final-shot possession, but a three-point attempt at the buzzer was off the mark – barely.

The win completed a .500 season for the 12-12 Wolverines, who beat the Nordics three times this winter. Each match-up was closer the the previous encounter, however, with Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke winning 74-39 in the 1997-98 season opener and 61-49 in a mid-season rematch.

Nordics edge Huskies 54-50

■ MCC boys win Sub-Section 31A opener

Marshall County Central has found a way to overcome a penchant for slow starts: score before the clock is even turned on.

Officials tagged Goodridge with a technical foul for dunking in the warm-ups preceding Friday's first round Sub-Section 31A boys high school basketball tournament game played in Thief River. The pregame call gave the Nordics two free throws and possession of the ball to start things. Matt Nelson made both gift tosses and Jon Donarski followed with a short jumper on the ensuing in-bounds opportunity that replaced the center jump for a 4-0 lead – which wound up being the final margin of victory as Marshall County Central emerged a 54-50 winner.

The Nordics' early success didn't stop at 4-0. Nelson scored off a drive, and after a Ben Hanson free throw put Goodridge on the board, Donarski put in a rebound basket for an 8-1 head start. The Huskies found themselves trailing the entire first half, although it was by just a single point at both stops – 15-14 after one quarter and 25-24 at halftime.

"Psychologically, it was important for us to get a lead," noted Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, who figured its been almost half a season since his team was ahead at the close of the first quarter.

"It was a silly mistake that cost us," acknowledged Goodridge coach Eric Mickelson, referring to the pregame infraction. "It wasn't the points so much – being behind 4-0 at the start of the game is nothing; you have all night to come back. But mentally, it took us a while to get over it, and by then it was 8-1."

But the Huskies did come back, and when Jim Scheef opened the second half by banking in a short jump shot, Goodridge had its first lead of the night, 26-25.

It remained close to the end. The two teams were deadlocked at 37-37 at the end of the third quarter, and it was still tied at 45-45 when the Huskies' Travis Scheef scored from underneath with 2:29 to play.

Nelson then supplied the Nordics with a key basket by hitting a three-pointer with 2:11 remaining. Moments later it was 50-45 – the biggest spread of the second half – when David Wilcox drove through the middle to score.

However, Goodridge didn't go down without a fight. Jim Scheef followed a Marshall County Central turnover with a three-point basket to make it a 50-48 game with 39.7 still on the clock.

Two free throws by the Nordics' Garrett Magner with 35 seconds left was countered by a rebound basket from the Huskies' Jared Eidelbes with 25 seconds to play. But just three seconds later Magner was back at the line, and he again made them both, to sew it up.

Having Magner, or any player, for that matter, at the line with the game up for grabs is a good position to be in, according to Ueland. "This is a good free throw shooting team," he said. "I'm not afraid to have Garrett, or any of our kids up there. I'm more surprised if we don't make them then if we do."

Nelson wound up with a game-high 17 points, including three long range baskets – two of them three-pointers – in the fourth quarter. "Matt made some big shots for us," acknowledged Ueland. "He can do that."

Eidelbes scored 12 points, while Chad Johnson and Jim Scheef both had 11 for the Huskies.

"They (Nordics) played well," said Mickelson. "I thought we played pretty well, too, but we went flat a couple of times, and when we do that, we have tendency to force things and then we get in trouble."

Marshall County Central, having missed a number of close-in shots in the second half, wound up shooting only 40 percent from the field for the night (19/48). The Nordics were 11-for-17 at the line for the night – 9-of-12 in the second half.

"We had a stretch where we could have possibly opened up a lead," offered Ueland. "We had some opportunities, but we just could not make the shots."

Goodridge didn't fare any better, shooting 38 percent (20/52) from the floor. The Huskies were 9-for-12 at the line, with just one of those attempts coming in the second half.

Marshall County Central had a 31-27 rebound edge. Goodridge topped the turnover charts 13-12.

The Huskies, who beat the Nordies 60-48 in a late-January regular season match-up, finished 9-14.

"I want to give credit to Goodridge," said Ueland. "That's one of the best nine-win ball clubs you'll see. They've really come along."

RLCC boys win first tournament contest

It wasn't pretty, but Red Lake County Central boys head high school basketball coach Chris McLean wasn't so concerned with style points as he was with the final scoreboard numbers – which showed the Mustangs advancing into the Sub-Section 30A tournament semifinals with a low-scoring 39-34 victory over Fisher/Climax Friday. The Mustangs hosted the first-round post-season match-up at Plummer.

"We shot poorly and we threw the ball away," pointed out McLean. "We had a lot of good shots – a lot of good looks at the basket; they just wouldn't go in. But we won."

Nick Waldal scored a game-high 18 points for the Mustangs, who led 10-9 at the end of the first quarter and were up 23-17 at halftime. The Knights came back for a 27-27 third quarter tie, and they pulled even again midway through the fourth quarter before Red Lake County Central gained the upper hand down the stretch.

Geralyn Moen scored 15 points for Fisher/Climax, a team whose only win this winter came against Thief River Falls. The Knights lost a pair of regular season games to the Mustangs by 53-36 and 42-38 margins.

Grygla-Gatzke rallies, but falls to RLF 69-65

It was a tough season, but Grygla-Gatzke might have had its finest moment in defeat Friday when the underdog Eagles nearly pulled off a major comeback before dropping a 69-65 decision to Red Lake Falls in the first round of the Sub-Section 31A boys high school basketball tournament played at Northland Community and Technical College.

A team that had lost 19 games and was down by 18 points late in the third quarter never quit, pointed out Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson.

"I'm very proud of our kids," he said. "To come in with 19 losses, and trailing like that, the kids could have tanked it, went home and nobody would have thought anything less of it. But they didn't give up. I really want to tip my hat to the kids. It was a good comeback. They spilled their guts out."

It was yet another close setback for a Grygla-Gatzke team that lost eight games by four points or less this year.

Only Grygla-Gatzke lead of the first half came on back-to-back fast break baskets by Alex Anderson that made it 4-3 in the first 70 seconds. Red Lake Falls had a 17-13 edge at the end of the first quarter, and thanks to nine offensive rebounds, had a 34-28 advantage at intermission.

Red Lake Falls took full control with a 10-0 run to open the second half, and had a pair of 18-point leads, including 51-33 on a fast break lay-up by Ben Largis with 2:18 to play in the third quarter.

"They came out and hit three-four shots right away, and we missed a bunny," mentioned Johnson. "The momentum swung and we couldn't get it back."

However, things did turn around in the final two minutes of the third quarter when a long jumper and a three-point shot by Anderson, a base line drive by Philip Brateng and a pair of baskets by Bryce Torgerson fueled an 11-1 Grygla-Gatzke comeback that chopped the difference to 52-44.

Another Grygla-Gatzke surge, a 16-3 run that featured 10 points by Anderson, overtook Red Lake Falls at 62-61 with 1:33 remaining.

But Red Lake Falls' Danny Gagner came up with a three-point play with 1:22 to play and teammate Chris Swendra made two free throws with 49.9 seconds on the clock to put his team on top 66-62.

Ten seconds later Brateng answered with a three-pointer from the top of the key to pull Grygla-Gatzke to within 66-65.

Swendra made one of two free throws with 25.2 seconds showing, then moments later picked off a Grygla-Gatzke pass that led to a fast break lay-up. He was fouled before he got to the basket, but made both free throws with 11.9 seconds remaining for the four-point final.

Anderson finished with a game-high 24 points, while Brateng netted 19 and Torgerson 12 before being helped from the floor with 4 1/2 minutes to play when his head struck the floor and opened up a cut that would require 22 stitches to close. Gagner and Erik Hopperstad had 16 points each for Red Lake Falls.

Grygla-Gatzke lost despite shooting 53 percent from the field (27/51) while Red Lake Falls shot 46 percent (25/54). The difference came at the free throw line, where the winning Eagles were 16-for-24 and the losing Eagles were 7-for-15. Red Lake Falls wound up with a 33-23 rebound advantage. Turnovers were even at 17-apiece.

MCC boys stopped by Ponies

Ron Ueland knew what the formula was for an upset, but the Marshall County Central coach couldn't put the ingredients together Monday as the Nordics lost to top-seeded Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 53-35 in the Sub-Section 31A boys high school basketball tournament semifinals at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

"We went there thinking we could win, but we just didn't do the things we needed to do," said Ueland. "If you're thinking about an upset, two things have to happen: the shots have to fall for you, and you have to take care of the ball. We didn't do either one."

The Nordics found themselves in a hole at the outset when they fell behind 13-4 in the first quarter. It was 25-14 at halftime. Marshall County Central was able to get it to an eight-deficit in the third quarter, but a pair of treys by the Ponies promptly rebuilt a double-digit lead that carried through the rest of the game."

Tyler Solberg scored 14 points and Joe Kvamme had 11 for the Ponies. Only double figure scoring for the Nordics came from David Wilcox with 10 points.

Marshall County Central, starting with a 2-for-10 first quarter, shot just 34 percent from the field (14/41).

"We knew we had to shoot well to stay in the game, and we didn't," offered Ueland. "We had some good looks at the basket – probably more than we normally get against their defense – but the shots just wouldn't go down."

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo shot 45 percent from the floor (19/42) and cashed in on 13 of 18 free throws. Marshall County Central was 5-for-7 at the line.

The Ponies out-rebounded the Nordics 29-15. Turnovers were even at 15-apiece.

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo beat Marshall County Central 52-41 during a regular season encounter back on Dec. 23.

The Nordics are 12-12 heading into a season-ending Sub-Section 31A third place game today (Saturday) in Crookston.

Erik Hopperstad of Red Lake Falls tried to drive past Grygla-Gatzke defender Tobey Holthusen during Friday's Sub-Section 31A boys high school basketball tournament semifinal game at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. Red Lake Falls won 69-65.

Patriots end season for Mustangs, 67-57

Win-E-Mac pulled away from upset-minded Red Lake County Central in the fourth quarter Monday to win the Sub-Section 30A boys high school basketball tournament semifinal game at Crookston High School 67-57.

The Mustangs, who lost 72-36 and 69-44 regular season decisions to the Patriots, turned a 12-8 first quarter deficit into a 26-25 lead and were still within 46-44 at the end of the third quarter.

But Win-E-Mac senior guard Jay Mahlen then took over, scoring half of his game-high 26 points over the final eight minutes as the Patriots took control down the stretch.

The loss ended an 8-16 season for the Mustangs.

Besides Mahlen's fourth quarter exploits, the game turned on free throws and turnovers. The Patriots had a busy 19-for-33 night at the line, while the Mustangs struggled through an 8-for-17 night. Red Lake County Central turned it over 26 times; Win-E-Mac 11 times.

"I was real pleased with the kids' effort," said Red Lake County Central coach Chris McLean. "We played right with them most of the game. But we didn't hit our free throws, and you can't win very many ball games with that many turnovers."

Steven Bradley and Travis Nelson joined Mahlen in double figures for the winners with 13 and 12 points, respectively. Mark Lorenson had an 18-point, 10-rebound game to lead Red Lake County Central, with teammate Nick Waldal contributing 13 points.

Lorenson's efforts pushed the junior's career scoring figure to 1,005 points.

Zach Olson earns trip to state meet

Thief River Falls sophomore Zach Olson turned in a pair of Class A state meet-qualifying performances Saturday at the Section 4A boys high school swimming and diving championships in Hibbing.

Olson had near-personal best times while placing third in the 500-yard freestyle (5:13.7) and fourth in the 200-yard freestyle (1:54.83).

Prelims were held Thursday. Finals were Saturday.

The combination Class A and Class AA state meets will be held Thursday through Saturday at the University of Minnesota Aquatic Center in Minneapolis.

"Zach struggled a bit in the prelims," explained Thief River Falls coach Brian Olson, "but he's the kind of kid who does his best under pressure. He pretty much knew he would be in the finals when he was swimming the prelims. Saturday, when the pressure was on, he responded to the challenge."

Also making the Section 4A finals was sophomore Rory Hoven, who placed seventh in the 500 with a 14-second drop to 5:26.58.

Prowlers competing in the Saturday consolation finals for swimmers who placed 9-through-16 in the prelims were junior Colin Browning in the 100-yard breaststroke and Hoven in the 200-yard freestyle.

Browning also swam the 200-yard individual medley, while sophomore Saro Kezar was entered in the highly-competitive 50 and 100-yard freestyle sprints.

"All of our kids did really well," reported Brian Olson. "They all turned in personal best or near-personal best times, and that's all you can ask for."

Hibbing won team honors.

Reading to students in Mrs. Schmitz' first grade class at Challenger elementary school, Faye Rouland selected the book "Happy Birthday To You" by Dr. Seuss. A number of volunteers came into Challenger classrooms on Monday, March 2, to participate as readers in "Read Across America Day." Arrangements for the day were made by Lori Weeding.

Read Across America Day brings readers to Challenger

To emphasize the importance of reading and to stimulate a reading interest in elementary school students, Challenger elementary school in Thief River Falls participated in "Read Across America Day" on Monday, March 2.

The day coordinated with the birthday of Dr. Seuss, perhaps the best known children's author in the country.

Arrangements were made at Challenger for a number of volunteers to come into the classrooms and read aloud to the students. In a number of cases Dr. Seuss books were used for the reading material, such as in Mrs. Schmitz first grade class where the accompanying photos were taken. Faye Rouland read to the students from the book entitled Happy Birthday To You.

Volunteer readers and the teachers in whose rooms they read included the following:

Bonnie Wagner, Mrs. Mickelson; Jim VanSchaick, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Steidl. Loree Gibson, Mrs. Newton; Kenny Beauchane, Mrs. Bauer and Mrs. Comstock; Esther Gallagher, Mrs. Froiland; Alicia Haviland, Mrs Petterson and Mrs Benson; Rev. Tim Bauer, Mrs. Skeim, Mrs. Buhl and Ms. Cerny, and Orvel Stocks, Mrs. Breiland.

Also Tim Erickson, Mrs. McGeary, Taya Hunt, Mr. Buhl, Nicole Kopari, Mr. Brekke, Cheryl Lee, Mrs. Stauss, Pat Beauchane, Mrs. Iverson, Kristie Huseth, Ms. Hinschberger and Mrs. Steidl, and Faye Rouland, Mrs. Schmitz;

Also Ed Sisler, Ms. Peterson; Jodi Flom, Mr. Grand and Mrs. Carlson; Ray Nelson, Mr. Peterson; Denny Minks, Mrs Olson's kindergarten; Barry Fellman, Mrs Venne; Gretchen Beito, Mrs Tranby and Mrs. Peterson, Jean Larson, Mrs Peterson; and Jean Heinrichs, Mrs Nelson.

Lori Weeding arranged the "Read Across America Day" for Challenger and expressed her appreciation and that of the teachers to the volunteers who took time out of their schedules to come to the school and participate in the program.

Congressman to hold area farm meetings

Congressman Collin Peterson will participate in two meetings regarding northwestern Minnesota's ailing farm economy Saturday, March 7, at Crookston and Hallock.

The first meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. in Youngquist auditorium on the campus of the University of Minnesota—Crookston, and the second meeting is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. at the Hallock city hall.

"Northwestern Minnesota is the first place in the country that is experiencing the downside of an inadequate safety net," Congressman Peterson said. "Things are so bad that there are a number of farmers who won't be farming next year.

"We've had about five years of bad weather and scab, and that has depressed farm revenue," he continues. "On top of that, farmers haven't been able to buy enough crop insurance to cover their exposure. The problem is extremely serious, and I hope that farmers in northwestern Minnesota who are concerned about this will attend one of these meetings."

Also invited to attend the meetings are Senators Paul Wellstone and Rod Grams, Minnesota Department of Agriculture Commissioner Gene Hugoson, local elected officials and Wally Sparby, state director of the Farm Service Agency.

Engelstads add to endowment at university

Ralph and Betty Engelstad of Las Vegas, NV, recently made a stock gift with a current value of approximately $2 million to the University of North Dakota Foundation in Grand Forks to add to the Engelstad Endowment which they established in 1988.

A native of Thief River Falls, Ralph Engelstad was a goalie for the UND hockey team while attending the university in the early 50s. He has contributed substantially to the university and in 1988 the hockey arena at UND was named Engelstad Arena in his honor.

Engelstad started a small construction company in Grand Forks and a short time later moved to Las Vegas. He owns the Imperial Palace Hotel and Casino—one of the largest privately-held hotel/casinos in the world—as well as a new major hotel and casino in Biloxi, MS, the Las Vegas NASCAR race track, which has seating for 112,000 and parking for more than 60,000 vehicles; and has substantial real estate holdings and numerous enterprises in several states.

Engelstad has also assisted his home town on several occasions, most notably providing funding for the agricultural machinery and display area at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village, operated by the Pennington County Historical Society.

Otter Tail to assist in dairy expansion plans

Few things are more critical to the economic well-being of this region's communities than a successful dairy industry, according to Jerry Martens, Otter Tail Power Company's supervisor of specialty testing services.

"That's because the industry impacts much more than the dairy farmers and cheese plants and other milk processors directly involved," he says. "It also has a powerful impact on related businesses such as veterinarians, feed companies and dairy-equipment suppliers, all of which are vital to the prosperity of local communities. For those reasons, we remain committed to aggressively promoting the dairy industry and implementing programs that will improve herd health and operational efficiencies."

According to Martens, the emphasis is on a team effort among dairy farmers, private industry and governmental agencies that will result in an adequate and continual supply of milk to support the region's processing plants.

"By doing all we can to retain and expand profitable dairy operations," he says, "we also enhance the economy of the communities Otter Tail Power Company is privileged to serve. After all, the success of our company depends on the success of those communities."

An essential component of Otter Tail's efforts, Martens emphasizes, is education. To that end, the company provides important up-to-date information on upgrading existing dairy facilities and building new, more efficient ones.

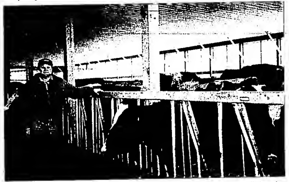
"We're creating a handbook for dairy expansion that will be useful not only for dairy farmers but also for county extension agents, veterinarians, nutritionists, farm business management representatives, investors and bankers," he said.

Otter Tail Power Company's partnership in dairy diagnostic programs, coordinated by the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, has resulted in Martens serving on one of several teams to inform dairy producers about technologies for increasing profitability.

Martens is especially proud of the national recognition Otter Tail received last year for a dairy demonstration project designed in cooperation with Kim Pederson, the company's manager of market planning.

The project documented herd health, air quality improvements, energy savings and increased milk production resulting from introducing efficient ventilation and improved lighting systems in dairy barns. Otter Tail power Company was the only utility in the nation to receive the National Food and Energy Council's Silver Switch Award for an outstanding program involving rural and agricultural applications.

"That was great," Martens said, "because it indicated to us that we were heading in the right direction. But we're not in this business to win awards. We're in it to improve the region's economy by contributing to the success of an essential industry. And given the current state of the dairy industry, we're not going to lose sight of that goal."



Jeff Ratz, who operates a 400-cow dairy east of Verges with his brother Greg, knows that proper lighting and efficient ventilation have positive affects on feed intake and increased milk production. Better lighting and ventilation also allow dairy operators to more closely monitor animal health.

Red Lake-Pennington DHIA top herds listed

Todd and Jay Johnston's dairy herd led the Red Lake-Pennington Dairy Herd Improvement Association for January with an average of 78 pounds of milk, 2.8 pounds of butterfat and 2.5 pounds of protein. Ninety percent of the 63-cow herd was in milk.

Second place herd was the small cow herd at the Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station at Crookston. Eighty-eight percent of the 57-cow herd was in milk and averaged 68 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of butterfat and 2.2 pounds of protein per cow.

Third place herd of Wayne Vettleson at Oklee is milked three times a day. The 142 cows, 84 percent of which were in milk, averaged 67 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of butterfat and 2.1 pounds of protein.

Excel Dairy of Thief River Falls had the fourth place herd. Ninety-five percent of the 916-cow herd was in milk and averaged 64 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of butterfat and 2.1 pounds of protein.

Large cow herd at the Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station at Crookston was in fifth place in January. Eighty-seven percent of the 52-cow herd was in milk and averaged 64 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of butterfat and 2.1 pounds of protein.

Other herds in the top 15 included the following with number of cows in the herd, percentage in milk, pounds of milk, butterfat and protein listed respectively:

Gerald and Loretta Visser, 64, 94%, 58, 2.1 and 1.8, Tom and Diane Kolstoe, 44, 86%, 58, 2.1 and 1.8, Walter Bros. Farm, 207, 85%, 57, 2.0 and 1.9, E. Duane and Faith Knott, 92, 85%, 56, 2.0 and 1.7; and Bob Schindler, 64, 83%, 55, 2.0 and 1.8.

Also Kevin and Beth Roppe, 36, 92%, 55, 1.8 and 1.8, Randy and Jo Gast, 78, 87%, 54, 2.1 and 1.8, Gary and Grant Gullekson, 58, 83%, 54, 1.9 and 1.6, Leonard and Marge Geske, 34, 91%, 54, 1.8 and 1.6, and Beyer Farms, 67, 87%, 52, 2.1 and 1.7.

Supervisors Randy and Margaret Rasmussen point out that production is averaged over all cows in each herd to give the dairy farmers a record of their herd's earning power for the month. The more dry cows in a herd the lower the average for the cows in production.

Accidents, drugs, thefts included in police report

Police respond to a few incidents at the end of last week.

Accidents. On February 24 at 1:25 p.m. police received a report of an accident on Third Street near Atlantic Avenue. Erica Lea Rumpea, Thief River Falls, was driving a car east on Third Street, and stopped for a bus at the Railroad crossing. A second vehicle following her, and driven by Joshua Eugene Radke, St. Hilaire, did not see the Rumpea vehicle stop and collided with the rear of the vehicle. A passenger in the Radke vehicle complained of a sore leg but did not seek immediate hospital care. Police estimated damages at $100 to the Rumpea vehicle, and $800 to the Radke vehicle.

On February 25 at 5:23 p.m. police received a report of an accident on Highway 59 near the frontage road exit at Edgewood Drive. Robert Henry Budge of Story Mountain, Manitoba, was driving a semi south on Highway 59 when a vehicle driven by Dorothy Jane Rood, Thief River Falls, entered the intersection from Edgewood Drive. There was no damage to the semi. Police estimated damage to the Rood vehicle at $4,000. Rood did not see the semi because of hard rain. She had minor bruises and a cut to a thumb.

Drugs. On February 26 at 12:41 a.m. while on routine patrol a police officer observed a vehicle on the south edge of town. Upon stopping the vehicle, 18-year-old Jay Darrick Radniecki, Thief River Falls, was cited for consumption under age and possession of drug paraphernalia. A 17-year-old male from Thief River Falls faces juvenile proceedings for consumption under age and possession of tobacco.

Thefts. On February 25 at 3:24 p.m. police received a report that rings and a jewelry box had been taken from a local residence. One wedding band and engagement ring was valued at $2,900. A Black Hills gold ring, also taken, was valued at $400. A gold chain valued at $200, and a jewelry box were also taken. The theft remains under investigation.

On February 25 at 1:29 p.m. police received a report that a snowmobile had been taken from a local business. The 1998 Arctic ZR600 had been taken on February 17 along with another snowmobile already reported missing. The theft loss was estimated at $6,700. The snowmobile, which was being repaired, belonged to an individual from Mahnomen.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Three sentenced on felony convicitions

Three individuals were sentenced on felony charges in Pennington County District Court last week.

Darryl Craig Olson, 32, Thief River Falls, was sentenced on felony fifth degree controlled substance crime stemming from an incident October 7, 1996. Olson had failed to appear and was picked up on a warrant. He was sentenced to serve 90 days in jail and ordered to pay fines and fees totaling $1,235. He was placed on supervised probation for five years and given credit for 10 days already served.

Kristin Marie Veselka, 25, Thief River Falls, was sentenced on two felony forgery cases. She was ordered to make restitution of $234.84 in one case and $447.65 in another case. She was sentenced to one year and one day in jail, which was stayed for five years. She was placed on supervised probation.

Aaron John Culkins, 21, Thief River Falls, was sentenced on a charge of felony receiving stolen property. The charge stems from an incident in January during which police recovered stolen stereo speakers during a warrant executed at his residence. Fines and fees totaled $150. He was sentenced to 13 months in prison with all but 90 days stayed for five years. He was placed on supervised probation for five years.

Mike and Linda Hanson recipients of state award

Mike and Linda Hanson of rural Goodridge were named recipients of the Outstanding Breeder Award presented by the Minnesota Purebred Dairy Cattle Association at its annual meeting February 23 in Faribault.

The award is presented by the state association annually and based on participation in and contributions to the purebred dairy cattle industry, such as activities in breed associations, youth contributions, breed sales and shows and Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Mike and Linda own and operate Good-Vue Ayr Farms II, a 45-cow purebred Ayrshire herd with an additional 1,340 acres of small grains and canola.

Mike is a past officer and Linda a current officer of the Minnesota Ayrshire Breeders Association and Linda serves on the board and is a committee chair of the national Ayrshire Breeders Association. Their purebred herd is on Dairy Herd Improvement Registry, and they occasionally show cattle, have their herd officially classified regularly, consign to major sales and advertise in breed journals, which has led to many private sales.

Their youth dairy involvement includes making the herd available to youth and collegiate judging groups, presenting workshops, chairing the Minnesota Ayrshire Association's state Shayr-A-Heifer program and supporting national youth activities.

Linda is a recognized dairy cattle judge and has judged everything from local county fairs and area dairy shows to national caliber shows. She will be judging internationally in April at the Sydney, Australia Royal Easter Show.

Mike and Linda have both represented U.S. Ayrshires in Sweden and Australia in promotional efforts and were the 1992 National Ayrshire Outstanding Young Breeder winners.

In addition to their dairy and other farming activities, Linda is a Goodridge First Responder, serves on the internship committee of Faith Lutheran Church in Goodridge and on the board of both the area and state AgriWomen organizations.

Mike is a member of the Goodridge Area Development Committee and the board of Farmers Union Oil Company of Grygla. He chairs the Cenex statewide directors association and is president of the Faith Lutheran Church congregation.

The Hansons have three sons: David, 6; Matthew, 4; and Steven, 18 months.

Minnesota Purebred Dairy Cattle Association and its national affiliate the National Purebred Dairy Cattle Association establish and/or recommend guidelines related to purebred dairy cattle activities such as showring codes of ethics, the dairy cattle judging scorecard and training and listing of approved dairy cattle judges. They also make recommendations to dairy shows, breed groups and DHIA regarding their purebred cattle activities.

The association consists of delegates appointed by their respective state breed associations.

Viking Covenant Missions Festival is March 8, 10, 11

"To a World That Is Lost" is the theme for the annual missions festival to begin Sunday, March 8, at the Viking Covenant Church. The festival will continue with an evening service Tuesday, March 10 and a pancake supper and speaking program Wednesday, March 11.

Opening event will be a combined Sunday School and morning worship service March 8 at 10:30 a.m. with Peter Ekstrand, missionary to the Congo (formerly Zaire), as the guest speaker. A potluck dinner will follow the service.

Ekstrand continues to be the field representative for the Zaire-Congo field and is responsible for regular communication with the major projects there.

"We praise the Lord for the faithful witness during the past year as the people have lived through the change in government and once again political events dictated an evacuation," Ekstrand said. "We had to leave Bangui in March of 1997."

At 7 p.m. on Sunday the film "The Harvest" will be shown at the church.

At 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 12, guest missionary Ron Ziegelbaur, who has also served in Zaire, will be the speaker. He began his first term as a career missionary there in 1991, serving in the area of technical services.

"Zaire is one of the poorest, most underdeveloped countries in the world," he said. "Things most people take for granted, such as running water, electricity, gas stations and garages or stores with goods for sale do not exist, so I ended up being a 'jack of all trades' to get things done."

Some of the many ministries of the church have continued while many others are suspended or reduced for lack of funds and supplies, he said.

"Life has become more difficult, yet God has proved faithful and continues to be their main source of strength and courage."

During one term he was permitted to set up a print shop at Karawa, ordering equipment, hiring and training workers and turning an empty room into a functioning shop which was able to publish locally-written Christian literature.

Following the 6:30 p.m. pancake supper Wednesday, March 11, Karl and Sue Peterson, missionaries representing the Evangelical Covenant Church on the mission field in Mexico, will be guest speakers.

During their first term in Cuautla, Mexico, Karl was Central District representative as well as secretary and bookkeeper for the Covenant Missionary Committee and a staff leader. Sue worked with Covenant Women of Mexico in the field of teaching Sunday School and workshops.

"Mexico is a country rich in heritage, natural resources and corruption," they said. "The most common phrase 'there is no money' is on the lips of the people. What has been the backbone of the country is now fragile, the Mexican people are searching for a solution and this is the door God has opened for the Christian and Covenant churches to minister in meaningful ways."

Special music is planned for each of the services and all sessions are open to the public. A time of fellowship and refreshments will follow each evening service.

Mesaba Airlines named Regional Airline of Year

Mesaba Airlines, operating as Northwest Airlink has been selected for the Regional Airline of the Year Award by Air Transport World. This is the first time in five years that a United States based Regional Airline has been selected for this honor by the most respected aviation journal.

In selecting Mesaba Airlines for its Regional Airline of the Year Award the ATW editors cited the superior performance of its management and employees in bringing outstanding service to the public, to its affiliate, Northwest Airlines and its shareholders. Robert Moorman, regional editor of air Transport World stated, "Mesaba has worked hard upgrading its operations at its hubs in Minneapolis/St. Paul and Detroit. Mesaba has been very adroit at distributing its mix of turboprop and jet service to appropriate markets, and has shown considerable skill in applying new technology to its operation. As a result, Mesaba has enjoyed rapidly growing traffic and profits."

Bryan K Bedford, Mesaba Airlines President and CEO commented on the award, "Two and a half years ago we began building a better Mesaba Airlines. The selection of our airline for this prestigious honor is an affirmation of the dedication and hard work of the over 2,500 aviation professionals that comprise Mesaba." Bedford went on to say, "it is especially gratifying that in our 25th year of scheduled commercial service we are selected as the regional airline of the year. The entire industry is enjoying a period of robust growth and success and to be selected by such a respected publication this year places us in the upper echelon of our industry."

URGENT!
Taxpayer Action Alert!
Write your state legislators and Governor Carlson today!

Many legislators continue to ignore the property tax policy issue of primary concern to all tax payers, rapidly escalating taxable market value increases! Taxable market values on thousands of homes and small businesses are being driven up every year solely by "market forces". For example, if someone pays more for a home or business than it's current assessed value or builds a much more extravagant home or business than the average in your locale–THE FOLLOWING YEAR YOUR TAXABLE MARKET VALUE (AND YOUR TAXES) WILL GO UP SIGNIFICANTLY! Yours is the same home/business as it was before, but more importantly no one has given you more money with which to pay the resulting increase in your property taxes! Tax increases resulting from market driven property value increases will continue to be an almost irresistible invitation to local government to increase spending unless we...........

Cap taxable market value increases at the annual rate of inflation!!

Legislation authored by Senator Doug Johnson (Tower) and Representative Bob Milbert (St. Paul) will put a ceiling on taxable market value increases at the annual rate of inflation or 5% (whichever is less). The "Cap" will apply to all Minnesota real property (homestead, ag-homestead, non-homestead, seasonal cabins, businesses, etc.) retroactive to 1996 market values. Improvements/additions are excluded from the cap and a new market value established when the property is sold (after which the cap again applies). The Cap will result in much more "even" distribution of much more "nominal" tax increases (among all taxpayers) resulting from any "necessary" levy increases while simultaneously inhibiting "unnecessary" levy increases and improving local government accountability. Write Governor Carlson, your State Senator and Representative today urging them to support passage of this bill. The bill numbers are SENATE FILE #3213 and HOUSE FILE #3720.

Your letters will make a difference!!!!!

Important Note:
All State Representatives are up for re-election this fall and should be very responsive to your letters urging their support of this very important property tax legislation. This is real long term property tax reform! (Not a one time rebate.) Respectfully suggest your legislators not come home from St. Paul until the Rate of Inflation Cap on Taxable Market Values bill is passed! This bill will be heard in the House/Senate tax committees within the next two weeks and on the House/Senate floor shortly thereafter, so don't delay!

How About A Moratorium On Department Stores?

Mark Dayton, one of a couple of handsful of Minnesota gubernatorial wannabes, announced early this month that he is opposed to large industrial feedlots and has urged the other announced DFL gubernatorial candidates to join him in signing a letter in support of a two-year moratorium on the construction or expansion of large-scale animal feedlots.

Who better than Dayton to head a parade for a moratorium? Certainly he must be extremely knowledgeable on rural Minnesota agriculture and eminently qualified to make an informed judgment on how livestock producers should conduct their business.

"I first became aware of this growing crisis last winter, when I met with farm families who were plagued by sickening odors from nearby animal feedlots," he writes. "I could smell for myself that the stench was terrible. I was told by mothers and fathers about the health problems that they and their children had been experiencing, after these giant feedlots were built and enormous quantities of raw sewage were poured into uncovered lagoons, then spread on nearby farmland.

"They also told me about their unsuccessful attempts to get the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) concerned abut these major polluters and about MPCA's failure to enforce existing toxic emissions standards."

According to a letter written by Dayton to Minnesota legislators, and including places for signatures of four other DFL candidates for governor, he (they) is asking for enactment of legislation that would prevent the MPCA and county boards from granting permits for construction or operation of any new animal feedlot with a capacity larger than 750 animal units, or the construction or expansion of an open-air manure storage basin, for two years or until a generic Environmental Impact Statement on large-scale feedlots can be completed.

Despite Mr. Dayton's own recent amazing discovery, he may be surprised to find out that others have known for some time that animal waste has a less than pleasant odor. Whether the animals are hogs or cattle or poultry or people, it is a long-recognized fact that their waste has, as Mr. Dayton has now revealed, a "stench."

And because Mr. Dayton has discovered that manure smells, he suddenly senses a "growing crisis" that involves—horror of horrors—manure being contained in open lagoons and then spread on farmland. Feedlot operators in general are branded by this expert on the subject as "major polluters" and the smell of manure fits his criteria for "toxic emissions."

Get real!

If Mr. Dayton would be willing to become more informed on the topic, he would find that placing larger concentrations of livestock on a single site is one way in which family farmers are trying to stay in business. With profits per animal shrinking, it becomes necessary to produce more animals to generate enough profit to have a viable operation. A moratorium would place a political boot heel on the throat of the state's livestock industry.

On our farm half a century ago we had a dozen or so dairy cows and assorted youngstock. Each of them produced waste material—to no one's surprise—but instead of storing it we loaded and hauled it from the barn on a daily or every-other-day basis with either horses or a tractor and spread it on our fields with pitchforks. We doubt that it smelled any better then than it does now, and all of our neighbors did the same thing.

Most farmers who raised beef cattle let the manure pack build up over winter in their sheds and shelters and hauled and spread it in the spring after the grass greened and the animals were put on pasture. No one was surprised that this manure pack also had an unpleasant smell when it was disturbed and spread on fields.

Does manure from 100 cows smell 10 times as bad as from 10, or manure from 1,000 cows smell 10 times as bad as from 100? How do the numbers come into play as to what threat a "giant feedlot" poses relative to a number of not so giant livestock operations?

Had Mr. Dayton checked with the MPCA, he may have found that large livestock operations are not necessarily polluters nor are wafting odors from manure considered toxic. He may have found that not only do "giant feedlots" pour "enormous quantities of raw sewage into uncovered lagoons," but quite a few fair sized cities—including Thief River Falls—do the same thing....under MPCA permit.

There are reasons for state and local elected officials to be aware of trends in livestock production and the who and how of ownership in feedlot and other livestock operations. But to assume a crisis when none has been identified or to create a moratorium and prevent farm businesses from growing because manure smells and there is speculation about a potential problem is political paranoia.

What Minnesotans should fear much more than large livestock feedlots is the trend toward growth in size of department stores. The bigger stores use more heat and power, have huge roofs and surfaced parking lots that rush untreated and often polluted rain water and snowmelt into our streams and rivers and lakes. Certainly there is not enough known about the ecological impact of department store growth to allow it to continue its rampant course. A two-year morotorium might be in order—to permit preparation of a generic Environmental Impact Statement just in case there might be a major environmental threat.

What say, Mark? Want to lead another parade?

Gully News

Sanna Brovold • 268-4350

Things change and so do people. Donna Lund Bringham found this to be especially true when she stopped at the Gully Mall this week. Donna lived in this area and attended grade school in what is now the Gully Mall. Donna and her husband now live at Huber Heights, Ohio, but came for the funeral of her brother, Julius Lund, at Grand Forks, North Dakota. They also came to Fosston to visit Donna's sister, JoAnn, and drove up to Gully to visit one of her former classmates, Patty Carlson, whom she hadn't seen since eighth grade. It was interesting for Donna to see that her various classrooms were now living units and the place they used to practice shooting baskets still has the free throw lines visible in the tile floor. However, the baskets were gone.

Vi Kjensmo, from Clearbrook, has been visiting at the Ethel Rouland home in Gully with Ethel and Darlene Melander. On Sunday, Ethel and Darlene went to Barnesville and visited with Darlene's sister, Estelle and husband, Maurice Bolgren. From there they went to Fargo to visit with Estelle and Maurice's son, Bobby Bolgren and his wife who have ten-month-old twins, a boy and a girl.

When our minister visited my sister's twins for the first time, he said, "Twice the work, but twice the blessings."

How true! Hope they may stay well, and it won't seem like work, but lots of blessings.

Taking care of twins can't really be called work. It must be a labor of love.

The Lund Ladies Aid met at Gully on Wednesday, February 11, with a potluck lunch served by the members. The newly elected officers were installed by the outgoing President, Cheryl Nybo. New officers are Alice Forsberg, president; Cheryl Nybo, vice-president, Vivian Rikjo and June Berg, sharing the job of treasurer; and Luverne Fora, secretary.

Since it happened to be our granddaughter, Sara's birthday that day, we had a taste of birthday cake for everyone. Of course it was Cathy Singer's and Doreen Brovold's birthday, all week, and the two of them each claimed a little corner of the cake too.

Carol and Lee Torgerson stopped to visit her folks on Sunday afternoon. They were on their way home from the Cities where they had attended the State Musical Convention. Brad Dekkers rode back with them. He and Luke Torgerson had both been chosen to be a part of the State Band and both played their trumpets.

Visitors at the Wendt and Cathy Senger home on Sunday were Bob and Joan Senger, Larry and Jeannie Sorenson, Larry Senger, Gay, Doreen and Sarah Brovold, Debbie and Cory Moy. A delicious supper was brought and served by the family in honor of Sarah's, Doreen's, and Cathy's birthday.

Gully American Legion and Auxiliary will have a Legion birthday party on Tuesday, March 3, at 6 p.m. All Legion and Auxiliary members and guests are welcome.

On behalf of the campus organizations involved with this year's annual blood drive at Northland Community and Technical College, we would like to thank you for your media support and contributions toward a successful event.

We were able to secure approximately 50 units of lifesaving blood this year and would have been hard-pressed to reach that goal if not for your help. It is reassuring to go to school in a community with such organizations as yours that care about volunteer events and help to promote them.

Give yourselves a big pat on the back for helping us on such a deserving and worthwhile project. Again, thank-you.

To The Editor:

On Tuesday, March 10, a total of 1,793 townships across the state of Minnesota will hold their annual meetings and elections on the state's Townships Day.

This special day is important to the nearly 900,000 residents of Minnesota who live in townships as they elect into office their communities' leaders and at their annual meetings authorize the level of spending they will allow for the operation of their government.

Township government is truly grassroots government as it is the only government that provides this authority of setting the financial level for administering its functions to the citizens.

Elsewhere in this newspaper are the sites of the meetings in your own townships and the listing of officers to be elected. The hours of the elections are universal: at least three hours from 5 to 8 p.m. Hours may start earlier but must end by 8 p.m.

We invite any school students to come and see for themselves the process in operation. They may also act as an ex-officio election judge.

The Minnesota Association of Townships has produced a video that tells the story of township government. There is one video given to each township to be used by any resident in that township. The video is appropriate for all Minnesotans from grade school age to senior citizens, including local, county and state elected officials, community businesses and organizations, educators and land use planners as well as others interested in local government.

The association's goal is to tell the story through video and increase awareness and understanding of our grassroots form of government—a government of the people, by the people and for the people. Plan to take time to attend the meeting in your township.

Sincerely,
Marville Magnusson
District 13 Director
Minnesota Association of Townships

Strandquist News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota has Roy looking for the real winter that has been missing the past couple of months. After the severe weather we had last winter, it looks like we are being compensated with Spring for the five months instead of Winter for eight months.

I'm on my winter stint to the Flathead Valley, Montana, and tho it may freeze at night, it has been up to fifty degrees most days. There is no snow in the valley, but plenty up on the mountains, so the skiing is still great. I came down with the flu on the train and my son took me directly to the hospital, where I spent the first week. I spent the next two weeks at their home recuperating from pneumonia and enjoying watching a hundred or more mallard ducks who have taken up residency in their backyard since Christmas. The creek which runs through their property makes a nice place for them to swim and I guess all ducks like water. They come up near the house to eat the food that Janet puts out for them. The lady in the apartment house next door, brings bags of bread and it looks so funny to see a duck with a whole slice of bread in her bill, trying to keep it away from the other ducks.

Elphie Adla left the 10th of February, for Minot, ND, to attend Amanda Kraft's second birthday party. She spent a week at Tracy and Kim Kraft's home, enjoying her grandchildren, Kevin, Anika, and Amanda, while their parents were at work.

Walter Mauer, of Aurora, visited Elsie Lahooth on Tuesday. He tracked down Isaac Thompson and visited with him at Roy Vagle's domicile.

Elmer Holmstrom, Evelyn Albaugh, and Judy Kleinvachter, brought birthday greetings to Alvin Holmstrom on Tuesday afternoon.

Hazel and Morris Anderson visited Jim and Cindy Wettarlund in Grand Forks, on Friday. Cindy drove up to Strandquist on Saturday to see them.

Morris and Marcelyn Lindstrom returned from Phoenix, AZ, where they spent two weeks visiting Clarance and Frieda Lindstrom, and niece, Oails Banks, Roger and Frances Brevik and family, Hilding and Florance Westberg, and nephew, John Westburg, and family. They stayed at Lois Lindstrom's condo and visited her sons, Larry, and John and his family. The trip was saddened the first day, when they received a call from Trevor, Wisconsin, that their brother, Rudy, had passed away. Morris and Marcelyn had just visited him the week before his passing. The obituary will be printed later. Wally Lindstrom, of Donaldson, visited Morris and Marcelyn, on Saturday afternoon.

Morris and Hazel Anderson, and Barb Visnosa, were lunch guests at Gloria Ranstrom's on Thursday. Marcelyn Lindstrom enjoyed a nice visit with them in the afternoon.

Lois and Kristin Kleinvachter, Kelly Lefrooth, and Cassandra Wollin, went to Winnipeg on Saturday.

St. Hilaire Plant Produces 333,763 Lbs. Butter In '47

"Reports on a successful year in 1947 were submitted Monday afternoon at the annual meeting of the St. Hilaire Cooperative Creamery association, with an unusually large gathering in attendance. The report on operations revealed that in 1947 sales of dairy products aggregated $302,897 while a total of 333,763 pounds of butter were churned during the year. This figure compares with 68,549 pounds produced in 1946, when most of the butterfat received was sold in the form of frozen cream."

Donations Given Family That Recently Lost Home

"A pickup truck-load of furniture, clothing and canned goods was assembled in this city Saturday for Mr. and Mrs. Handie Wells and three children, whose home east of Grygla, together with its contents, was destroyed in a recent fire. Mr. Wells was in the city Tuesday to pick up the donations which had been collected by M. R. Levorson, service officer of the local Legion post, and, Mrs. Levorson, welfare chairman of the Legion auxiliary."

Soo Passenger Trains Delayed Monday By Snow

"Passenger train service on the Soo Line Minneapolis-Winnipeg run was disrupted Sunday night when a cut between Calloway and Ogema became filled with drifting snow. The Minneapolis-bound train was held at Mahnomen, and arrived at its destination about twelve hours late, with a similar delay in the arrival here Monday of the train bound for Winnipeg."

Shelter Belts And Home Planting To Be Topic March 4

"An all-day institute on planning farmstead shelter belts, farmyard improvement and home fruit planting will be held in the Civic and Commerce room of the Thief River Falls auditorium beginning at 10:00 a.m. Thursday, March 4, County Agent Frank A. Hobbs announced today.

"L. C. Snyder, extension horticulturist, and Raymond J. Wood, extension forester, University Farm, will be in charge of the program. Wood will give suggestions on trees and shrubs to plant in shelter belts and yards. In addition to discussing species of trees for farmstead shelter belts, he will explain how and where to plant them. Snyder will recommend varieties of fruit to plant in home gardens in Pennington county and give pointers on their plantings and care. Kodachrome slides will also be shown of fruit varieties, as well as of shelter belts and landscaping plans."

Thief River Jobbing Company To Open New Quarters

"After March 1 the Thief River Jobbing company will operate from a new location in the quarters across from the postoffice on LaBree avenue recently vacated by the Veterans administration, it was announced this week by Sig Quam, manager. Since its establishment several years ago, the firm has maintained its headquarters at 116 Main avenue South. The new quarters will provide considerably more room."

Spring Fashion Clinic Shows New Skirt Length

"This spring brings the most dramatic fashion changes in many a year, Miss Olive Smith, fashion coordinator for Montgomery Ward stores throughout the country, told a gathering of fashion department managers at the fashion clinic held at Hotel St. Paul and attended by Miss Delores Horter, fashion department head of the local Montgomery Ward store. The spring fashion forecast, Miss Horter continued, puts emphasis on the new ballerina silhouette with tiny waists and new fuller, longer skirts descending to mid-calf length for suits, coats and dresses. Hips are rounder and shoulder lines softened in a sweeping style trend toward prettier, more feminine fashions that will make every woman want new clothes this spring."

IT'S MEAN
Judge Ives Denies Chas. Tedford a Pleasant Duty

"When you come to think about it, Judge Ives did a very unkind thing at the last term of the district court. After fining Charles Tedford $200, he ordered the sheriff to destroy the nickel-in-the-slot machine. It would have been a pleasure for Charles, the machine was the cause of his being fined, to break the infernal little thing up."

News Items

"$650 will pay for a good farm of 160 acres 18 1/2 miles northwest of this city. 45 acres of the land is under the plow, 50 is timber and the balance hay and pasture land. It also contains buildings. This property has been foreclosed upon and can be bought if taken at once, at cost much below its value. Inquire at the News office."

"Dorothy is the name of a new postoffice in this county. It is situated in the southeastern part of the county at the intersection of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific. J. F. Matthews is the postmaster."

NEW SCHOOL
Residents of Norden to Have One

"Ole O. Nesja, accompanied by nine other farmers all of whom had teams, was in the city Monday. They were here for the purpose of hauling out lumber which is to be used in the construction of a new schoolhouse. The building is to be located in the northern part of Norden, and will be completed this spring. Andrew Opsat having the contract for building it. School was commenced in a vacant building in that district today and Nick Nelson is the teacher."

Memorials

IN MEMORY
In loving memory of Roger Rondorf who left us so sudden March 3, 1997.

You bid no one farewell
Or even said goodbye
You were gone before we knew it,
And only GOD knows why

If love alone could have saved you
You never would have died
In life we loved you dearly
In death we love you still
In our hearts you hold a place
No one can ever fill
It broke our hearts to lose you
But you didn't go alone,
For part of us went with you
The day GOD took you home.

Sadly missed by

NOTICE OF HEARING
PLANNING COMMISSION
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Lee's Sanitation, Inc., c/o Steve Nordhagen, President, 320 LaBree Avenue North, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, has applied for a Conditional Use Permit for property located at 1424 Highways 59 & 1 West. The property is owned by Farmers Union Oil Company, Dave Kirkeby, General Manager, P.O. Box 373, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, and is legally described as Lot 8 in Block Two of Noper's Second Addition.

Lee's Sanitation, Inc. is in the process of purchasing the Farmers Union Oil property located immediately west of R. V. Sports. They propose to use the existing building on the property for storage of their garbage trucks. The garbage trucks will be parked inside the building and the company's dumpsters will be stored at another site. Because there will be no outside storage of materials or equipment, the petitioner has requested that no screening or buffering be required.

Lee's Sanitation would propose, in the future, to construct an office addition on the existing building. The office would be the location from which customers would pick up garbage bags.

Notice is further given, that the Planning Commission will conduct a Hearing on the Conditional use Permit request at 7:00 P.M. on Tuesday, March 17, 1998, at the Heritage Community Center, 301 Fourth Street East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. All persons wishing to comment on the Conditional Use Permit request will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing, or who have questions, should address them to the Office of the Community Development Department, City Auditorium, P.O. NOTICE OF HEARING
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., c/o David Loer, General Manager, 1822 Mill Road – Box 13200, Grand Forks, ND 58208-3200, has applied for a Conditional Use permit for the construction of a new Substation and for a 115 KV transmission line upgrade. Essential services, such as the proposed 115 KV electrical transmission line, are considered to be Conditional Uses in Residential Districts. In Commercial and Industrial Districts they are considered to be Accessory uses.

The proposed 115 KV John T. Anderson Substation will be located in the City's new Industrial Park immediately south of the Strata Concrete Redi Mix Plant. The transmission line upgrade, will consist of replacing approximately four miles of existing 69 KV line with a 115 KV line from the T.R.F. Municipal Substation located at the power plant and from the Morris Owen Station near Greenwood Cemetery to the Substation located two miles east of the City on Minnesota Highway No. 1. A new 1.5 mile section of 115 KV transmission line will be built from the new John T. Anderson Substation to the Morris Owen Substation.

In general, the 115 KV transmission lines will be located along the southerly public right-of-way of Greenwood Street throughout the City and along the westerly public right-of-way line of Pennington Avenue and across City property to the substation at the power plant.

This project is a portion of a larger project that will construct a 115 KV transmission line from Oslo to Thief River Falls. The project is related to the projected future demand for electrical power and to provide reliable services for the area, especially during heavy winter loading periods. The proposed project will also provide greater stability in the electrical grid in the immediate area, better capability to cope with system failures and planned outages without overloading adjacent facilities.

An Environmental Assessment Worksheet (EAW) was prepared and submitted for review. The Minnesota Environmental Quality Board signed off on the project on January 29, 1998.

Visitors at the Effie Handy home on Saturday were Marlan Handy, of Fosston, and Lyn Turonne. On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Spencer from Thief River Falls, and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Emerson, visited Effie in the forenoon. On Sunday evening, Ed and Lyn Turonne visited Effie.

We're having beautiful Spring weather, roads are good, and very little snow is left. No need to wish to be in Florida or California so far this year.

Gladyce Haugen, of Proctor, has been spending a few days here visiting her sister, Irene Carlson, and other relatives and friends. One day, Gladys visited with Mildred Sollen. Dave and Sandra Graff, Gladys Haugen, and Deloris Ringstad were guests for dinner at the Wally Paulson home in Bemidji. Gladys, Dave and Sandy also visited with Alma Solien in Fosston.

Dave and Sandra (Sollen) Graff, of Gully, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Angela Lynn, to David Vizo, of California. A June wedding is planned. Angela is the granddaughter of Delaria Ringstad and Alma Solien of Fosston.

Petre Eck, of Gonvick, Gladys Haugen, of Proctor, Dave and Shirley Sundquist and Pet Carlson, were dinner guests of Irene Carlson at her home in Gully.

Duane Erickson had his 60th birthday party at the Gully Cafe on Monday, February 23. Many family members, relatives, and friends attended. The party had been planned by his wife, Kay, and daughter Joan, and Duane's sister, Sharon Dyrdahl, of Bagley. It was good to have space enough for guests to sit and visit. The hostesses served a big supper, including birthday cake. The grandchildren were busy lining up the 60 candles on the cake and were sure grandpa would never be able to blow them all out. But, Duane surprised them. Among some of the relatives attending were Duane's brother, Ted Erickson, and wife, Yvonne, from Bagley; his sister, Annette, and husband, Steve Nyland, of Bemidji, Duane's mother-in-law, Elva and Orville Nelson. Also attending were Duane's children, Joan, Pat and Jill, and grandchildren, Ayla, P.G., Kelsey and Kyle. Except for lacking fire crackers, it seemed like an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration, with black balloons, decorations all over, even down on the highway. Can you imagine a busy farmer having had time to know so many people, that they came from all directions to help him celebrate his birthday? Maybe they realized this was the day Duane would take off work and sit down so they would have a chance to visit with him. Duane shared the day with his granddaughter, Ayla, who also had a birthday. She had her own little decorated birthday cake with candles on it, and she had her own "stack" of interesting birthday gifts. All joined in singing the Happy Birthday song for them. Many, many, happy birthdays to both of you!

We are waiting for Spring! We have much to do in Gully. We need to get everything in order. There are dead trees to clear away. "Left-overs" that have been dropped by the roadside need to go in the garbage. We need to get our flower beds worked and ready to plant, our lawn mowers sharpened, the roadsides mowed, bare spots in the lawns replanted, flag poles repaired, and much more. We are expecting an important day in Gully on July 5, when we'll have the Gully All-School Reunion. We hope to see former teachers, cooks, students, janitors, maintenance people, superintendents, or anyone else connected with the Gully School, to be here. We hope you'll begin to plan your vacation for the first week in July. On Sunday, July 5, we hope you'll be in Gully. We hope it will be fun for you to see the "long-ago" students who started dreaming about their careers as they sat in the "primary grade school" desks in Gully. Now, they look like they have conquered the world. They look so prestigious and well-groomed. There will also be those whose health has not permitted them to do so well, but one of the long-ago teachers planted the idea, "Come what may, we'll make the best of it." They have done just that and are happy to be here.

We hope people will realize Gully has changed, but the friendly, spirited and concerned, are still here and though the struggles of "Grow or Die" hasn't held true for Gully. We haven't grown in numbers, but we have grown in the area covered, and you are all welcome to come and meet again those you may not have seen in years, or just visit with those you saw yesterday. Take time to recall the happenings of "The Good Old Days."

In a small town we always notice when people have been gone for awhile and we're always happy to see them back. Ron and Sonja Stiele are back from Virginia last week. We see Rueben and Clarice Kolling are also back from Virginia. Welcome!

Carol Torgerson visited her folks in Gully during the weekend while Les and Luke were with the Northland College Jazz Band and Choir on a tour. The groups played at Clearbrook, Gonvick, Bagley and Nevis high schools on Thursday and then went on to Minneapolis and Chicago, for the weekend.

Gully Community Club issued nicely framed certificates of appreciation to the various individuals and businesses who have supported the community activities during 1997. They are nicely done in computer graphics, and a proud possession for anyone. A certificate may be seen at the Gully Cafe.

Elaine Bergman and Carol Burslie, of McIntosh, invited Alice Forsberg along, and they drove to Moorhead on Sunday and visited with Elsie (Bergman) Dole and had dinner with Elsie's son, Larry Boxell, wife and family.

Alvin and Sybil Bergman and Bob and Marlene Rukowski, of Minnetonka, visited at the Kenneth Forsberg home on Monday.

Wayne Pound conducts Earth Tours in Rockies

Wayne Pound

Wayne Pound, a 1966 graduate of Lincoln high school and son of Mrs. Beth Scholin of Thief River Falls, was subject of a recent feature by Jack Cox in the Denver Post in Colorado.

Following graduation from Lincoln, Pound attended the fledgling Northland Community College in Thief River Falls, then went on to earn degrees in geology and education from the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. The article in the Post is as follows:

When high school science teacher Wayne Pound started leading monthly field trips several years ago, he called them "Moms, Dads, Kids and Science."

Since then, he's renamed the educational excursions simply "Earth Tours," both to reflect their usual focus on geology and "to indicate that the trips are really for everyone."

The tours, now offered through the continuing education program at Front Range Community College in Westminster, CO, have enabled hundreds of adults and children to learn about the natural history of the Rockies at minimal expense and maximum enjoyment.

"These aren't for training people in science so much as just going out and experiencing it. They work as well for a five-year-old as for a retired engineer," said Pound, a master's level geologist who teaches full time at Horizon High School in Thornton.

Participants in the trips may visit a mine, explore a cave, pan for gold, inspect dinosaur tracks or investigate the ruins of an ancient civilization.

On one-day outings, they typically meet at the college and drive or carpool to the site in their own cars; on weekend or several-day trips, they have the option of camping with the group or staying in a motel.

Most of the trips take place within a short drive from Denver, but in summer they can range as far afield as the Black Hills of South Dakota or Chaco Canyon National Monument in New Mexico. The number of participants ranges from a maximum of 15 on a spelunking tour of Fulford Cave near Eagle to 50 or more on a trip to South Park.

"Scout troops and other groups join us on occasion," Pound said, "and single-parent families often join us for the security of the group."

The costs are $10 to $20 per day for adults and less for families, seniors and groups. The trips are coordinated through the college, which arranges group rates and educational waivers.

Pound, who also has guided teachers on field trips for the U.S. Geological Survey, has been a teacher in Adams County District 12 for more than 10 years. Previously, he taught on the Navajo Reservation in New Mexico and worked as a drug addiction counselor in Durango, CO.

The article listed 10 trips that had been planned for 1998, from four-hour workshops to full-week trips to New Mexico June 9-14 and the Black Hills July 11-15.

Federal tax credit available to eligible candidates

If you made less than $29,290 last year, you may qualify for a special federal tax credit, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

For over two decades, the Earned Income Credit (EIC) has been rewarding millions of hard-working low and moderate income families for going to work, continuing to work, or starting or running a farm or business. You probably qualify if you had at least one qualifying child living with you during 1997 and your income came primarily from working at a job or running a business or farm. To get the EIC, you must enter the name and social security number of each qualifying child on your tax return.

A qualifying child must live with you for over half the year. Sons and daughters are eligible, including both adopted children and stepchildren. Even grandchildren can qualify. A foster child is also eligible as long as he or she lived with you for the entire year.

According to the IRS, the Earned Income Credit is unlike most other tax breaks. That's because you can get it even if you owe no tax and even if no money was taken out of your paycheck. Eligible families now receive an average of more than $1,000 each year from the EIC. If you qualify, your credit may be larger or smaller depending upon your income and family size. The highest amount goes to working families whose incomes are between roughly $6,000 and $13,000.

Even though the Earned Income Credit mainly helps working families, some people without kids are also eligible. However, the income limit is lower, the credit is smaller, and age restrictions apply.

The IRS encourages eligible families to take the EIC. However a recent law change is aimed at discouraging people from claiming the credit when they know they are not eligible. These people can now be barred from taking the credit for as long as 10 years.

To find out more about the EIC and the similar Working Family Credit offered by the State of Minnesota call 296-6417 in the Twin Cities area or toll-free 1-800-937-KIDS elsewhere.

Moe says legislature to address housing needs

An emerging crisis in affordable housing has the attention of Minnesota legislators and the legislature is taking several steps to address the problem this year, according to Sen. Roger Moe of Erskine.

"Even though we have a very strong economy in the state, we are in great danger of not meeting our basic housing needs," Sen. Moe said.

He noted that several factors are converging to create the problem, including the 1997 floods; conversion of low-cost rental housing to market-rate rent levels; and a tax system which has discouraged construction of affordable rental housing.

Many residents of the Red River and Minnesota River valleys lost their homes in the flood and construction workers who might have been working on other housing projects are busy with replacement housing, Moe said.

"A hardship will be created by the large portion of low-cost, affordable housing that is now eligible to convert to market-rate rent levels," he said. "These building units, most of which were built in the 1960s, are now eligible to either pre-pay the mortgage loan or "opt out" of the Section 8 rental assistance contract. It's estimated that 4,000 housing units in Minnesota are presently at risk of changing to market rates, causing the costs of those units to be out of reach for low-income families.

"When these low-cost units were originally built, the intention was to construct additional units of low-cost housing to replace the original units when the opportunity to convert to market rates surfaced. Unfortunately, we have not kept up with the demand for construction of more affordable housing to replace these units."

Moe said that the Minnesota class rate tax system helps keep property taxes low for home owners and farmers, but has not encouraged construction of an adequate supply of affordable rental housing. Changes in the tax structure passed last year should help alleviate the problem, he said, and the senate has recently passed a tax provision that continues the reductions from last year and goes a step further.

In addition, the senate has passed a bill containing more than $25 million in new funding for preservation and production of affordable rental housing. Among these programs is a new tax credit for employer contributions to affordable employee housing.

"One of the greatest obstacles to economic growth in rural Minnesota is the lack of housing for workers," Sen. Moe said. "Invariably, businesses that consider expanding in our state's small to medium-sized communities look at the housing availability and often come away discouraged. The credit for employer contributions to employee housing is intended to leverage matching funds from non-profit organizations that are trying to help alleviate this problem."

Moe acknowledges that the housing crunch could get worse before it gets better, especially if the legislature does not act this year.

"We should move forward with efforts to preserve existing affordable housing and build new housing to meet the need," he said. "The problem is evident throughout the state, in both the metropolitan and rural areas.

"As we look to the future," he added, "the shortage of affordable housing is one of several economic challenges we will be facing. We will want to involve just about everyone in our communities, including workers, employers and educators to find a comprehensive approach to address the needs that touch the lives of nearly all Minnesotans."

Goodridge high school chapter of the National Honor Society had its membership increased by 300 percent Monday morning, March 9, when three members were inducted to join former member Jennicca Gallagher at the tapping ceremony. Pictured from left are Becky Brandt, grade 11; Amie Kotrba, grade 12; Jennicca Gallagher, grade 12; Erica Johnsrud, grade 11; and Elden Winge, principal and chapter advisor.

Goodridge Honor Society quadruples in size March 9

Membership in the Goodridge high school chapter of the National Honor Society quadrupled in size at the tapping ceremony conducted Monday morning, March 9, in the school gymnasium.

Juniors Becky Brandt and Erica Johnsrud and senior Amie Kotrba were tapped during the ceremony and welcomed into membership, joining senior Jennicca Gallagher, who had been the chapter's only member.

Becky is the daughter of Doug Brandt and Linda Brandt, Erica is the daughter of Danny and Theresa Johnsrud, Amie is the daughter of Larry and Gilda Kotrba and Jennicca is the daughter of John and Esther Gallagher.

Jennicca introduced the program and the candles signifying the Honor Society ideals of scholarship, service, leadership and character were lighted by high school instructors Scott Vedbraaten and Dave Dahlen, principal Elden Winge and Jennicca Gallagher, respectively. Winge is also advisor to the chapter.

As the lone member of the chapter, Jennicca also served as the tapper—circulating among the students seated in chairs on the gymnasium floor and tapping on the shoulder those selected for chapter membership.

In her introduction, Gallagher stated the following to students, parents and others attending the ceremony:

"Today our society faces numerous challenges and opportunities on a world-wide scale. Seldom has there been such a need for individuals who demonstrate an obligation to use their talents, skills and knowledge for the betterment of others and the preservation of our society and its values.

"Nearly eight decades ago, in another time of world-wide change and uncertainty, the National Honor Society was conceived. It was organized to recognize and foster the development of individual characteristics necessary for the survival and enhancement of society at that time. The characteristics identified have stood the test of time and remain unchanged today.

"The National Honor Society recognizes and supports students who demonstrate the characteristics of scholarship, leadership, service and character to a high degree."

When the students were tapped and invited on stage, they repeated the following pledge.

"I pledge myself to uphold the high purposes of the National Honor Society to which I have been selected. I will be true to the principles for which it stands, striving in every way by word and deed to make its ideals the ideals of my school and of my life."

Principal Winge presented the new members of the chapter with their National Honor Society pins.

Monday night, the board of education for School District 564 approved a plan specifying how excess levy dollars, approved by voters last November, would be spent.

Chief among goals of the plan is to be able to sustain the additional expenses. Superintendent Jerry Robicheau explained that the plan is based upon several goals. Other goals include: recognizing commitments made to the citizens during the levy campaign; being fiscally responsible and accountable; using a three percent inflation factor; and recognizing staff input regarding the five-year plans.

The specific recommendation approved by the board of education calls for the following:

- Spending 49 percent ($303,960) of the levy dollars to improve the teacher to student ratio in the following areas — $32,000 for a kindergarten teacher reducing the ration from 25:1 to 18:1; $32,000 for a grade 1 teacher reducing the ration from 24.5:1 to 21:1; $32,000 for a grade 2 teacher reducing the ratio from 22:1 to 19:1; $32,000 for a social studies teacher at Franklin; $32,000 for a science teacher at Franklin, $32,000 for a math teacher at Franklin; $22,400 for a physical education teacher at Franklin (.7 FTE); $16,000 for a .5 FTE physical education teacher at Challenger; $32,000 for a math teacher at Lincoln; 80 additional hours per week for educational assistants at Challenger; 3 FTE communications at Franklin; and .2 FTE science at Lincoln.

Board Chairman Carl Clark and Superintendent Robicheau noted that the dollars represent salary and benefits, and are general.

- 16 percent of the levy dollars on technology ($100,000 per year);
- 20 percent ($128,000) of the levy dollars for program additions including the following — $32,000 for foreign language in earlier grades; $32,000 for an agriculture education teacher; $32,000 for a teacher for gifted and talented students; $32,000 for a K-12 school social worker;
- 1 percent of the levy dollars ($6,400) for additional supplies;
- 1 percent of levy dollars ($5,000) for additional activities;
- 13 percent of levy dollars ($81,640) to be held in reserve.

Under this plan the total dollars expended in the first year would amount to $543,360 or 87 percent of the levy available; $556,936 or 89 percent of the levy dollars available in the second year; $570,566 or 91 percent of the levy dollars available in the third year; $585,598 or 93 percent of the levy dollars available in the fourth year; and $599,813 or 95 percent of the levy dollars available in the fifth year.

Robicheau explained that a list of priorities for additional funds available after distribution has been developed. Those priorities are 1) Class size, third and fourth grades; 2) Reading teacher; 3) Teacher of multi-handicapped, 4) Class additions at Lincoln; 5) LAN (Technology) manager time increase, 6) Supplies added back; 7) Music Teacher at Franklin and Challenger; 8) Spanish/communication at Franklin; 9) Education assistance at 40 hour increments; 10) Art teacher at Challenger, 11) Technology teacher at Challenger; 12) EBD teacher at Challenger.

Plans for a $750,000 addition at Lincoln High School were unveiled Monday night. The plans involve adding three shop classrooms on the southwest corner of the building near the existing music rooms.

Board Chairman Carl Clark explained that the purpose of adding the three classrooms was to get all classes on one campus, improve integration of courses, and utilization of staff. He said the dollars for the construction would come from the sale of Washington school, interest and sale of Knox elementary school property. The dollars would amount to the $750,000 estimated by architects. Further, he said they have told the architect that they will not build the three classrooms if Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts in Thief River Falls will conduct their annual collection of food for the Thief River Falls United Way on Saturday, March 21. Troop 199 Scouts Josh Swenson (left), son of Ron and Arlane Swanson, and Nathan Bylander, son of Dan Bylander, show the bags which will be distributed by scouts beginning next Monday. Canned goods only will be collected with such items as soup, beef stew, chili, canned fish, canned meats, canned vegetables, canned fruits and canned milk among the items needed.

Scouts will collect food for TRF area food shelf

As a national "Good Turn" project, Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts in Thief River Falls will be collecting food on a door-to-door basis next Saturday, March 21, beginning at 10 a.m.

This week the scouts will be placing plastic food collection bags on door knobs of houses in Thief River Falls. The bags contain information as to the type of food items needed.

All food items collected will be brought to the Thief River Falls area food shelf for distribution to people in need. March has been declared "Minnesota Food Share Month" and Minnesota Food Share will provide matching funds based on the amount of food collected and distributed.

Thief River Falls residents are asked to place their filled food bags on their front door knob or front steps by 10 a.m. Saturday, March 21. The bags should be placed where they will be visible from the street to assist scouts in the collection process.

If anyone lives in the rural area, will be out of town on March 21 or is accidentally missed in the collection effort, food may be brought to the food shelf in the basement of the Rohl Professional Building between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. March 21 or any Tuesday between the hours of 1 and 4:30 p.m. Items may also be donated through local churches.

Last year the Thief River Falls scouts collected over 4,000 pounds of food items which allowed the food shelf to be of great assistance to people in need. Scouts, leaders and the food shelf board expressed their appreciation to the general public for excellent past generosity through local churches and the scouts' collection drive.

NCTC expects new plane

Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls and Northwest Airlines have had a close relationship for many years. The college provides aviation maintenance training and Northwest Airlines offers employment opportunities to graduates.

The friendship became a partnership in 1992 when Northwest Airlines flew a Boeing 727-100 aircraft into the Thief River Falls Regional airport and awarded it to the college. The college constructed a new state-of-the-art hangar to house the huge plane and the other 25 aircraft the students practice and learn their skills on.

The relationship between Northwest Airlines and the college has also been affected by fluctuations in the market. As the aviation industry experienced a cutback in employment during the mid 1990's, interest in aviation maintenance careers subsided at the college. During that period, employment in aviation shifted from the major air carriers to manufacturers, regional airlines, repair stations, and other less glamorous opportunities. As a result, enrollment slid from more than 530 students in the Northland Aviation program to approximately 80.

The major carriers have been faced with a growing shortage of trained mechanics in the past year and are facing the prospect of current mechanics who are reaching retirement age. With this outlook, Northwest Airlines and the other major airlines are again looking at colleges throughout the country to meet their employment needs.

Northwest Airlines is faced with the challenge of maintaining and updating their fleet of DC-9 aircraft. Conversations surfaced between Northland and Northwest Airlines which resulted in the airline providing the college a DC-9 in August of 1997.

NCTC Aviation Director Jeff Buzzell, has plans for the plane. "We haven't waste any time in utilizing this aircraft. We are providing our students with hands-on structures training, a skill that is in great

Constitutional amendments may be on fall election ballot

Minnesota voters may be presented with the opportunity to vote on as many as four amendments to the state constitution at the general election in November, according to Sen. Roger Moe of Erskine. In combination with a number of state office races, the amendments should create high election interest.

Sen Moe says it appears that four proposed constitutional amendments have a good chance of making it onto the ballot this year. They include reauthorization of the Environment and Natural Resources Trust Fund dedication, the right to hunt and fish, abolishment of the office of State Treasurer and a dedicated trust fund to be identified as the Endowment for Minnesota's Children.

Brief explanations of each of the amendments are provided by Sen. Moe as follows:

Environment and Natural Resources Trust Fund Lottery Dedication Extension

The Environment and Natural Resources Trust Fund (ETF) is supported by 40 percent of net proceeds from the Minnesota Lottery. ETF was originally constitutionally authorized in 1988. Two years later, Minnesotans approved authorizing the link to lottery proceeds until the year 2000. Both of these amendments were approved by overwhelming margins.

In my opinion, the ETF has been very successful in providing funds for a wide variety of environmental and natural resources needs. I am co-author of the Senate bill extending the constitutional dedication until 2050. Legislators also have considered setting a shorter extension as well as making the dedication permanent.

Right To Hunt and Fish

The proposal to constitutionally protect the right to hunt and fish passed the Senate in 1996 but did not pass the House. That is why we are considering the proposal again. Those who oppose this constitutional amendment suggest that hunting and fishing privileges are not threatened, and therefore should not be written into the state Constitution.

However, supporters of the proposal point out that fewer young people are taking up hunting and fishing, and many people who grew up in large cities do not have as much appreciation of the heritage of hunting and fishing (as those who have experienced these activities)

The vast majority of senators are concerned about the activities of animal rights extremists, and support placing the Right to Hunt and Fish amendment on the ballot.

State Treasurer's Office Abolishment

The current State Treasurer, Michael McGrath, will retire from office at the end of this year after serving 12 years in office He has done a fine job in representing the office of the Treasurer.

The State Treasurer's office is responsible for verifying warrants or checks issued by the Department of Finance, transferring money to cover those checks once they are determined to be valid.

In my opinion, the office should be folded into the Department of Finance, and the elected office, which pays $66,168 a year, should be eliminated. I am a co-author of this ballot proposal.

Endowment for Minnesota's Children

The newest concept among probable ballot questions is the Endowment for Minnesota's Children. The idea of setting up a trust fund dedicated to meeting the needs of children under age five has already received a great deal of attention. Recent research on the brain activity of children confirms that without proper stimulation, a young child's development will be significantly diminished.

The endowment proposal calls for setting aside roughly 10 percent of the current state surplus—up to $200 million—in a trust fund that would yield approximately $10 million a year to educate and train parents and other caregivers so that all children receive the mental, social and physical stimulation necessary The ultimate goal is to assure that today's children grow up to be as productive as possible, avoiding future problems that lead to the high costs of social services and incarceration in the years to come.

It is Important that the public is informed about the constitutional amendment proposals and that voters turn out to voice their opinion on these proposals.

Two Rivers Area Theatre presents Bad Year for Tomatoes

Two Rivers Area Theatre will present John Patrick's "Bad Year for Tomatoes", as a dinner-theatre Friday, March 20 and Saturday, March 21, and as a dessert matinee on Sunday, March 22, in the intimate space of the new Lafayette High School Cafeteria in Red Lake Falls.

"Bad Year for Tomatoes" will showcase area talent with its cast and crew. Directed by Don Johanneck, it stars Ramona Thibert, Lowell Arlt, Stephanie Sorensen, Sherry Knott, Amanda Wavra, Al Walker and Rob Conwell.

Set in the small town of Beaver Haven, Myra Marlowe, famous television actress (Thibert), attempts to escape her Hollywood lifestyle in order to write her autobiography. The show is a laugh every other line as you view the antics of various townspeople and see what happens when small-town hospitality goes a bit too far.

Reservations are required as seating is limited. Tickets are available at Center Drug in Red Lake Falls. Dinner will be served at 6 30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. Sunday dessert will be served at 2 p.m. with the show following at 3 p.m. The choice of dinner entree includes Seafood Alfredo Fettucine or Meat Lasagna.

The dinner theatre costs $13. The dessert matinee is $8. Reservations must be made by March 19.

This activity is made possible in part through a grant provided by the Northwest Regional Development Commission through funding from the Minnesota State Arts Board and the Minnesota State Legislature.

Moorhead State University Concert Choir and Chamber Singers under the direction of Dr. Charles Ruzicka will present a concert Saturday, March 14, at Trinity Lutheran Church, 325 Horace Avenue North, in Thief River Falls. The program will consist of a variety of choral music from the Renaissance through the 20th Century, including spirituals and folk songs from the United States and Sweden. There is no admission and the public is cordially invited to attend. Vicki Bitzegaio, a graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls (fifth from right, second row) is a member of the concert choir.

they cannot pay for it with the money they have on hand. They will not bond for the project.

Clark also explained that the board has been examining its off-campus shop class program for some time. Although the plan presented to the board was only a rough draft, it seems to be the best option yet, and was presented to them to give them time to review it before formal action expected sometime in April.

Plans to make the District Service Center handicapped accessible and improve safety were reviewed Monday night. Board members and staff see the project in two separate issues — making the building handicapped accessible and meeting fire codes to improve safety.

Harry Nelson, business manager, said a rough "guesstimate" from the architects was $200,000 to $250,000 to improve the stairways and install an elevator.

Clark said this too was not a new issue. The school district has been examining the issues for some time.

Currently, the building does not meet AOA requirements. If a handicapped student enrolled in the ALC program, the program would have to be brought to the student.

Nelson also said the fire marshal has expressed concerns about the stairwells and exits in the building. He isn't sure how much time the district has before it is told to comply with ADA and fire codes. Otherwise, the building has a relatively good structure and new roof. It does have a few problems with water downstairs, and would need to put some money into the heating unit in the near future.

At one time, the board looked at moving the District Service Center to Washington Elementary school, but that didn't work out and it was sold. Now they are proposing to keep services in this building. The current building, he said, is functional if it is made accessible.

Without more specific answers from the architect, Nelson could not come up with specific answers about where the money for the project would come from. It's possible that the state could kick in 50 percent or more for the project.

Board Member Steve Young and other board members expressed concern about the local levy impact on local citizens.

Clark said they were only asking the board to think about the proposals. More formal action would be sought in April.

Glenn Espe, principal at Challenger Elementary School submitted his resignation Monday night. Espe is planning to retire after 22 years of service in the school district, and over 40 years in education. His resignation, which was reluctantly accepted by a thankful board, would take effect July 1, 1998.

Two Amity Scholars, Mauro Hernandez from Bueno Aires, Argentina, and Roland Cron from Wuppertal, Germany, presented information about the experiences in the district and educational program from their home countries.

The board approved a recommendation regarding a number of policies including: broad based local participation; ensurance of preparatory standards; ensurance of high school standards; and staff development for standards.

The board approved an extended sick leave policy for non-certified staff.

The school board recognized the following: Kyle Anderson and Beth Goddard who have been named nominees for the Region 8 Triple A awards from Lincoln High School; Zach Olson who advances to state swimming competition in the 500 and 200; Sterling Joppru who has completed his graduation requirements through the Area Learning Center; Lynn Oyer who donated $300 for the purchase of a laser disk player for Lincoln High School; Bridgeman's which donated ice cream bars for Challenger's Good Behavior Celebration, and the Thief River Falls Dental Association which donated toothbrushes to kindergarten and first grade students at Challenger as part of a dental health presentation.

The school board approved the following personnel items from the consent agenda: the resignation of Patricia Soli as community education director who is currently on leave of absence effective April 30, the resignation of Delores Blom as education assistant at Challenger; the resignation of Kyle Jordet as high school girls tennis coach; an extension to Sharon Philion's leave of absence through the end of the 1997-98 school year; the employment of Jane Mattson as interim community education director for up to 20 hours per week with hours to be vouchered effective through the end of the 1997-98 school year, the employment of Carolyn Haugen as Family Advocacy Program clerical assistant for up to five hours per week with hours to be vouchered effective through June; the employment of Kimberly Langan as Family Advocacy Assistant for up to 12 hours per week; the employment of John C. Lindahl as cleaner in the district; the employment of Lori Benson as cleaner in the district, the extra-curricular assignment of John Halvorson as middle school softball coach.

The next meeting of the board of education is scheduled for March 23 at 7 p.m. in the School District Service Center.

The working relationship between the college and the airline has become closer over the past six months. Buzzell, as well as NCTC instructors Janese Thatcher-Buzzell and Walt Osborn have received DC-9 and 747 training from Northwest Airlines at their facility at the Minneapolis/St Paul Airport. Northland students have also assisted NWA in removing elements from the DC-9 including seats, flight deck seat tracks, a clip assembly and other parts of the plane needed by Northwest for use on their DC-9 fleet.

Most recently, Northland aviation students are beginning to work with NWA to do a SID inspection. This is a non destructive inspection required by the FAA for the aging aircraft program. Northland students will be assigned inspections and prepare the aircraft for the inspection. When the inspections are ready, an NWA inspection crew will do the inspections at the college with the students who prepared the particular inspection. After the inspection is completed and discrepancies are found, Northland students will do the repair work. Northwest Airlines inspectors will then come and inspect their work.

The college recently learned that Northwest Airlines will soon provide another DC-9. It is scheduled to arrive in Thief River Falls sometime this month.

With the increasing demand on updating aircraft, the college will receive $130,000 from the state of Minnesota to upgrade structures, composite, and electrical areas. The money will be used to upgrade equipment in those areas as recommended by trainers from Northwest Airlines.

As the demand for trained mechanics increases, so does the interest in the occupation. Enrollment for Falls Semester in the Northland aviation major is well ahead of this time a year ago. "We are seeing interest from throughout Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin and South Dakota.", said Don Howe, director of Enrollment Management at Northland. "Someone is requesting information everyday on our Aviation Maintenance program and almost daily we have prospective students visiting our campus. They travel here from the Minneapolis/St. Paul metro area, many from the Duluth region and we see them from Iowa and other states."

Northland is looking at the possibility of having at least 100 new students when Fall Semester beings on August 24, 1998. "It's an encouraging picture for both the college and airlines," said College President Dr Orley Gunderson. "We have always tried to provide industry with the best product possible and with the number of candidates they need. With this added interest, and the prospect of even more students over the next year, we should be able to meet our goals," he added.

Northland Placement director Susy Dowers is faced with a growing list of employment opportunities for college aviation graduates. "We have been notifying those who are nearing graduation and those who are presently in the field about the job openings we have received. We want to be able to offer the airlines all the skilled candidates we can and make these exciting employment positions available to all of our grads," she said.

Northland Community and Technical College will host representatives from Northwest Airlines in the near future. The representatives will be on campus to speak with current students about the opportunities that exist and what skills they need to take advantage of the expected openings.

Northland has been offering aviation maintenance training since 1959 at its airport campus. Students have the option of a two year diploma program or an associate in applied science degree major that is transferable to the University of North Dakota's Center for Aerospace Science in Grand Forks, ND. The college also offers FAA testing on campus.

Campaign to invite use of local airports

A multi-media campaign to promote local air service in Minnesota is being undertaken by the state department of transportation with an appropriation of $400,000 from the 1997 session of the Minnesota legislature.

"Easy Goin'—Fly Your Local Airport—It's Just Plane Easier" is the theme line for the promotion which is designed specifically for Greater Minnesota cities with full-service airports. Included are Bemidji, Brainerd, Duluth, Ely, Fairmont, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, International Falls, Rochester, St Cloud and Thief River Falls.

"The economic vitality of Minnesota's cities is directly related to having access to the global transportation system," states Raymond Rought, director of the DOT's office of aeronautics. "Now more of our citizens can fly local or go global by using scheduled air service from their local airport."

He said the legislature's support for the campaign emphasizes the importance of Minnesota's airports and their economic impact statewide as they draw scheduled air service and attract and retain business in each community.

AAUW announces essay contest winners

"Women in Sports — Stretching the Limits!" was the theme of the Thief River Falls Branch of American Association of University Women (AAUW) writing competition.

Lincoln High School senior Beth Goddard won first place for her essay on Cammi Granato, captain of the USA Women's Hockey Team. Beth will receive a $50 award from Northern State Bank, and her essay will be submitted for state-wide judging by the Minnesota AAUW.

Second place winner was Jenny Brunkhorst, also a senior at Lincoln High School, who wrote about Kerri Strug. Jenny will be presented a $25 award by Northern State Bank.

Two additional seniors from Lincoln High School received honorable mention. Christopher Mumm wrote about Mary Lou Retton, and Kerri Strug was the subject of an essay by Breann Fugleberg. All of the winners are students of Loiell Dyrud.

The contest encouraged students in grades 10-12 to research and write about a woman sports hero who, in the last 25 years, has pushed through barriers to excel as an athlete and has made a difference as a role model for young women. AAUW's focus on sports this year celebrates the 25th anniversary of Title IX in recognition of progress women have recently made in sports and education.

Criteria for judging essays included research that showed sufficient breadth of inquiry, clarity of thought and a style that is lively and concise.

American Association of University Women promotes equity for all women and girls, lifelong education and societal change.

Beth Goddard's first-place essay has been printed as a guest editorial elsewhere in The Times.

Second Place Winner
The Unforgettable Bravery of Kerri Strug
by Jenny Brunkhorst

Who can forget the girl who braved her pain in the 1996 Summer Olympics and brought home the gold for the women's gymnastics team? This "girl" is Kerri Strug. Anyone who saw this miraculous vault will never forget the bravery of this young woman. Kerri Strug's bravery during the gymnastics competition in 1996 show me and the rest of the world the power that women can have in the world of sports.

Kerri Strug was born on November 19, 1977 in Tucson, Arizona. Her parents, Burt and Melanie, also have two other children, Kevin and Lisa. Kevin is five years older than Kerri, and Lisa is nine years older. Kevin and Lisa both studied gymnastics, and Kerri also began taking gymnastics classes when she was three because she wanted to be like her older sister. When she grew up, she attended a small private school. According to Nancy H. Kleinbaum in The Magnificent Seven: The Authorized Story of American Gold, after school she took gymnastics classes with University of Arizona coach Jim Gault.

When Kerri was 13, she was told that she had the potential to compete at Olympic level, but in order to do so she would have to get a new coach. So Kerri decided, on her own, that she needed to move to Houston and train with Bela Karolyi, who Kerri knew because her sister had previously attended his summer camp. Kerri's parents were very upset at this decision because it meant breaking up the family. For two years, Kerri lived with a family in Houston during the week and visited her aunt and uncle during the weekend. About her experience, Kerri has said, "It was hard for me, because I'm the youngest child, and I'm really close to my parents. But they visited me a lot. And I knew that if I wanted to do this, I would have to make sacrifices." Kerri had to overcome many struggles when she was training in Houston. She had "a lot of crying phone calls" with her parents, but Bela realized her sensitivity and tried to treat her with more kindness than his other gymnasts.

Kerri's talent qualified her for the1992 Olympic team when she was only 14. Her good scores helped the team win the bronze medal, but she was overshadowed by Shannon Miller and her five medals. In 1993, Kerri tore a stomach muscle and was sent home for six months. During this time, Kerri had to reevaluate her desires, but the following statements shows us her decision: "After I was out for a time, I realized I missed gymnastics." It tood her two to three months to get back into shape, but with hard work, she was able to come back better than ever.

In 1995 she won golds for the first all-around and the uneven parallel bars, and tied for a bronze on the beam at the U.S. Olympic Festival in Boulder, Colorado.

After this successful competition, she began considering the 1996 Olympics. She worked extremely hard, qualified for the Olympics, and left for Atlanta, Georgia with high hopes.

After the team compulsories, Kerri learned that she was eligible for three individual Olympic events: the all-around, the floor exercise and the vault. However, after her courageous vault that caused her to severely sprain her ankle, she was unable to compete in the individual competitions. On the other hand, Strug's gold medal for the team competition was won with such courage that it should have eased the pain of not being able to compete in the individuals.

Kerri Strug's ability to forget the pain during the 1996 Olympics and go on with the second vault proves that she is a woman's sports hero. One of the amazing details of this story is that nobody expected this heroic move by Kerri. Bela Karolyi was quoted in the August 5, 1996 issue of People as saying, "You'll never see Kerri on a Wheaties box." Bela was also quoted in the August 5, 1996 issue of Sports Illustrated as saying about Kerri, "Her basic personality was not that aggressive. I always had to handle her like a baby." These statements show that Bela didn't believe Kerri would ever excel enough to become a sports hero, but she proved him wrong.

Mary Lou Retton, a 1984 gymnastics gold medalist, was quoted in the August 5, 1996 issue of People as saying about Kerri: "She has always been the bridesmaid, never the bride." However, Retton realized how powerful Kerri really was after her vault, and was quoted by Mark Starr in the August 5, 1996 issue of Newsweek as saying, "She pretty much sacrificed herself." The one person who may have known Kerri was capable of this heroic move was her father Burt who was quoted in the August 5, 1996 issue of Sports Illustrated as saying, "She's quiet, driven, an over-achiever. She's totally self-motivated and wants to be perfect all the time."

Kerri is a wonderful role model for young women because she has braved the pain under pressure and continued the competition in order to win a gold medal for her team and herself. Women's gymnastics has been criticized in the past for its extensive training on such young girls. However, Kerri Strug showed the world that women can handle pain as well as men and don't need to go crying to mom everytime something hurts. Kerri Strug is also a good role model because she is not only talented athletically but also mentally. According to Richard Zoglin in the August 5, 1996 issue of Time, Kerri "is a straight-A student who graduated from high school a year early." This shows young women that you can be both intelligent and athletic.

Kerri Strug is a good role model for me because she has shown that when you stretch your limits you can do whatever your heart desires. We saw Kerri do this when she decided to go for the second vault, even though she was in pain. The concept of stretching our limits in order to fulfill your dreams does not apply only in sports but in life in general. Therefore, Kerri Strug is a good role model for women because she has proven that if you work intensely at something you can make your dreams come true.

Middle River's Women of Today delivered 206 towel sets and 206 toys to the Minnesota Women of Today convention recently. The towels and toys were donated by community members and purchased with funds raised at New Year's Day Games Day at the American Legion in Middle River. The towels and toys were donated to Mary's Place in Minneapolis, a shelter for homeless families. A total of 1,453 towel sets and 1,258 toys were donated by Women of Today chapters throughout Minnesota in the state-wide project.

Tureson of Hallock named Volunteer of the Year

Elaine Tureson of Hallock, a volunteer at Kittson Memorial Healthcare Center, has been named the Minnesota Health & Housing Alliance's (MHHA) statewide Volunteer/Auxilian of the Year for 1998.

The award annually honors a volunteer or auxilian of a MHHA-member facility who goes the extra mile to enhance the quality of life for older adults, has demonstrated a commitment to Minnesota's elderly and has provided exceptional service to a MHHA-member facility.

At least three days a week, the 79-year-old Tureson usually walks several blocks to Kittson County Memorial Healthcare Center, often regardless of the weather. While she fulfills many roles at the home, her favorites are helping with bingo, one-on-one resident visits and making cookies. Because she makes and distributes popcorn to the residents, she has affectionately become known as the "Popcorn Lady."

The MHHA represents nearly 250 non-profit nursing homes and more than 270 senior housing communities throughout Minnesota. MHHA and its members are dedicated to helping older adults live as independently as possible.

Elaine Tureson (center) recently received the 1998 Volunteer/Auxilian of the Year award from the Minnesota Health & Housing Alliance. Presenting the award to Tureson are Kyle Nordin, chairman of MHHA and MHHA President Gayle Kvenvold. Tureson, 79, is an outstanding volunteer at Kittson Memorial Healthcare Center in Hallock, a MHHA member.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

It's Time To Say Good-Bye

This is the last column I will write for the Thief River Falls Times. My husband has been transferred to the Twin Cities with his job, and I guess I'm going along. (I tell people the real reason I'm moving is because I've run out of column ideas!)

Our move comes just as Thief River Falls was feeling like home – comfortable - and somewhere we could stay and be happy. We're settled; we have friends; we're involved. I'll admit, I had my doubts when we moved here 3 1/2 years ago. Especially early on when my son and I were sitting on the front steps of our new house eating a popsicle and he asked: "So...are we making any friends yet?"

At exactly that moment we weren't, but eventually we did. I jumped in with both feet and don't regret it.

When the movers arrive in a couple of weeks and pack our personal belongings, I can't promise that I won't cry. In fact, I'm sure I'll cry. Just hand over a great big box of Kleenex.

We're leaving much more than a house; we're leaving 3 1/2 years worth of memories and a way of life. Like my husband says: "The Twin Cities are a nice place to visit, but I'm not sure I want to live there."

Before long, the Twin Cities will be home, too. That's how we are. But not before we miss many of the people we know here in Thief River Falls.

I'll certainly miss all of our friends and our son's friends who helped make this home. You kept calling even if we seemed a little strange at times.

I'll remember the people I met in the organizations I belonged to (possibly too numerous too list). Like my friends in the Thief River Falls Women of Today. It's a great group of women working together to build a better community. And what better way to meet a lot of people and get involved right away?

Good-bye also to the women who are members of the American Association of University Women (AAUW). Another great group of diverse women who openly welcomed me and put me to work on their newsletter.

I'll miss my co-workers at Hospice of the Red River Valley. I loved my job as a public relations assistant and admire the work of all the people in that office. Because of my association with these caring people, I know I'll be a lifelong supporter of hospice.

I'll miss my neighbor who immediately signed me up for her bowling team when she welcomed me to Thief River Falls with zucchini bread. I'll miss the upbeat woman who cuts my hair. I'll miss the volunteers and teachers at Challenger Elementary School. My first involvement in the Early Childhood Family Education program introduced me to good friends for my son and me.

I'll miss a lot of people and things – like the brand-new walking bridge that was just built near my house; it provides a direct route to the park and the Dairy Queen. I'll miss the River Walk, where my good friend and I strolled many, many mornings.

And I'll miss you, my readers. Erma Bombeck I'm not, but oftentimes you made me feel as if I were. Thanks to all of you who stopped me on the street and in the grocery store to compliment me on a certain article. For me, it's nice to know that someone actually reads what I write.

I'm sure that I'll visit Thief River Falls again. I have to; I will always remember this town as the place where my car rolled into the river and handed me my 15 minutes of fame.

Good-bye and thank you!

Christian Parents

There is nothing I can say that will stress the importance of Godly parents enough. God-fearing parents will always look out for you and direct you toward God's best. They encourage, support, and pray for you. Now I'm not saying that they are perfect; they are human like everyone else. For example, sometimes my Dad loses his temper, but he always apologizes and asks for forgiveness.

Nor am I saying that we teenagers will always agree with everything they tell us to do. Too many times I have been angry with my parents and made that list that all teenagers are familiar with: "When-I-am-a-parent-I-will-never ___." But when I cool down and look back on that list, I realize that I probably will do all of the things on it. I also realize that my parents did this or that for a reason: they simply want the best for me.

Christian teenagers should respect and honor their parents. This is very important to God. He even included this command in the Ten Commandments: "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." This is the only one of the Ten Commandments that God gives a promise to all that obey. It also says in the book of the law that God gave to Moses (in Deuteronomy 21:18-21) that if anyone did not honor his parents, he must be put to death. I would say that honoring one's parents was extremely important to God! And if it's important to the Lord, it should be just as important to us. Now, thanks to Jesus, we don't live under the law, but we are covered by the grace of Jesus Christ.

Even if we don't face the death penalty today for dishonoring our parents, we should respect, honor, and thank God (constantly) for our mother and father. For if we cannot learn to obey and respect our earthly parents, how will we learn to respect other authorities, and how will we ever learn to obey and respect our heavenly Father?

Godly parents are truly blessings from the Lord! They love us with all their hearts and seek God's guidance while rearing us. We need to be more consistent in expressing our appreciation for our parents and never stop praising the Lord for them. To my folks I say, "I love you and am so thankful for you." To God I say, "Thank you, Lord, for blessing me with Christian parents; they are the greatest!"

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...I Love Stickies

I, and I'll bet many of you, grew up BPN - Before Post-it Notes (I call them Stickies). How did we ever manage? Can you remember how we put notes on our papers before Stickies? Oh, yes, there were paper clips. They were, after all, invented in 1900, so they were around when I was growing up, but we didn't have a readily available supply at my house. I'm sure there were staplers around back then, too, but I don't remember having access to one of those. I think those things were hidden from me.

I know we had rubber bands and string, because they were saved in a kitchen drawer (post Depression, you know), but I don't think I used those to hold my notes on my papers very often either. I do remember clipping notes to papers by folding the top corners together and then tearing two lines from the fold in the middle of the triangle that was formed. The torn square was then folded in the opposite direction of the triangle, and this was our version of a "paper paper clip" that put our notes and messages on the front of our important school papers.

Whatever did people do at work before Stickies? No doubt they had an abundance of paper clips and used those, but then, as now, paper clips could slip and get hooked off and thus lose the important message. Staples would hold messages on important papers, but they made holes and were hard to remove from the papers. Scotch tape would probably have been used too, since it was invented in the 1930's, but how did one remove that hard, shiny, ugly stuff they had back then (nothing like the write-upon, matte type we have nowadays)?

Don't we have it nice now, with our little sticky Post-it Notes? I have them at home and at work and I use them for everything. At work, they are wonderful for telephone messages because one can stick them to a surface and the paper doesn't scootch around when I am writing with one hand and holding the phone with the other. I put questioning and commenting notes on papers, I stick them around to remind me of things, I even carry them around on a finger to keep track of something, lest I get waylaid on my way from one room to another and forget whatever it was I wanted to remember. They also work well to cover something that shouldn't be there when I am copying documents - a little stickie on it and it disappears when copied.

At home, I use stickies a lot. I use them to leave messages for my kids anywhere I can stick them, doors, mirrors, the fridge, their noses. I use them to mark my place in books, to mark good recipes and stories in magazines, to mark things in catalogs that I might want to buy, to highlight a row in a knitting or crochet pattern I am working on or a recipe I am cooking, reminders on the calendar, grocery and shopping lists, and notes about things I find on the Internet. My house is filled with little yellow scraps of paper and I keep little tablets of them upstairs, downstairs and in the basement, just in case I need to jot something down, like a reminder or a column idea. Sometimes they end up on the bottom of the dog or the bottom of my socks, accidentally, of course.

Did you know that Post-it Notes came about because of a mistake made by an employee of the 3M Company in Minnesota? They did. To produce Post-it Notes, it took two 3M employees, one who made a mistake and produced a sticky glue instead of a very strong glue, and another who was simply trying to keep track of the hymns sung in his church. More about this next week.

Extension service offers master internet program

University of Minnesota Extension Service is offering the Master Internet Volunteer Program.

The program is designed to provide 20 hours of training on using the Internet including getting connected to the web (equipment requirements), using electronic mail, searching the web for information, downloading from the web, web page development, internet issues and volunteering, and more.

In return, the persons receiving the training will volunteer 20 hours with an organization, agency, school et cetera in their community to share their internet knowledge and skills with others. It is patterned after the very successful master gardening program.

The Master Internet Volunteer Program training will be held at the University of Minnesota, Crookston, and will consist of five sessions on the dates of April 2, 9, 16, 23 and 30 (every Thursday evening in April). Each session will begin at 5:30 p.m. and run to 10 p.m., with a half hour break for dinner.

The fee for the training is $40 which includes the curriculum which participants keep. If a participant chooses not to volunteer the 20 hours, the cost of the training is $180. Application forms are available from your County Extension Office; also, call them with any questions you have. The application deadline is Monday, March 23.

Alternative Sewage Treatment conference in Warren March 30

Rural areas not served by municipal water and sewer depend on individual or group on-site sewage treatment systems to protect human health and environmental quality. Traditional septic systems using trench and mound soil treatment have and will continue to serve these areas. Some sites and soil conditions, however call for other kinds of treatment technology.

"Alternative Sewage Treatment Satellite Conference" will be delivered March 30 at the Marshall County Courthouse. The educational seminar will discuss the results of Minnesota and Midwest research on several alternative treatment technologies including constructed wetlands, aerobic tanks, sand and peat filters, and various discharge systems.

Operation and maintenance of individual and group treatment systems is critical to proper treatment. This seminar will discuss several system management structures including homeowner associations, environmental subordinate service districts, water quality cooperatives, and sanitary sewer districts.

Pre-registration for the conference is encouraged. To register or for more information contact the Marshall County Water Plan office at 218-745-4217.

Star Homemakers to meet March 16

"Elder Options - Housing and Services" will be the lesson for the Star Homemakers at its meeting on Monday, March 16 at 1:30 p.m. at the Ekelund dining hall.

Market basket and a potluck lunch will also be held. Everyone is welcome to attend.

State issues alert about Nigerian Scam

Minnesota's Attorney General's office is reporting that a number of businesses have reported they received letters from a person who represents himself as a Nigerian "Prince," "chief," or "doctor" seeking to transfer money from Nigeria.

The United States Postal Inspectors are trying to stop this scam which has already taken significant amounts of money from a number of people, including several Minnesota business owners.

Most of the businesses and individuals have been contacted through the mail. Often the letter is generically addressed to the "business owner," "president," or manager". The Nigerian doctor or prince requests the use of the company's bank account to transfer money into the United States. Usually the amount proposed for this transaction is millions of dollars. A percentage of the money (as much as 30 percent) is then offered for assisting with the transfer of funds.

Businesses or individuals receiving such letters should throw them away or give them to their local post office.

If you receive any business or investment opportunity, check out the company or individual's reputation. Find out if the Better Business Bureau has any complaints or if the Attorney General's Office has taken any legal action. Make sure that you have all the information before you send any money. And, remember that if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

For more information about business scams or fraud call the Attorney General's Consumer Helpline at 612-296-3353 or 1-800-657-3787.

ACTIVITIES

Paper Plate Shamrocks

To make a paper plate shamrock, color three small paper plates green with paint, markers or crayons. Arrange the plates on a 12" by 18" sheet of paper to create the leaves of the shamrock and glue them in place. Then cut or tear a stem from green construction paper and add it below the shamrock leaves.

PARENTING TIPS

Too Many Toys?

Eventually almost every child will have more toys than he/she can use or more than you have room for. When this happens, your child may drift from one toy to another for only brief or superficial play. One solution to this problem is to put some of the toys away for a while.

When you pack some of the toys away for a while, several things can happen.

- Fewer toys are easier to pick up and put away.
- Fewer toys encourage your child to be more resourceful and inventive in looking for ways to play with the available toys.
- When you rotate the toys, the "new" toys that are coming out of storage will be interesting and fun.

If your child is old enough, he/she can help decide which toys to put away and which ones to bring out. These periodic switches also offer a good opportunity for you to examine the toys. If repairs are needed, make them. If the toy is damaged beyond repair, discard it or salvage whatever may be reusable. A "junk" box of old toy parts can be a treasure chest to an older child who like to tinker with construction projects.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Name the toys that you are taking out of storage. Ask your child what he/she might do with each thing.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. My children were born outside of the United States, but I am a citizen. Can they get Social Security numbers (SSN's)?

A. The children can be issued SSN's but we would need to see evidence that they are citizens in addition to the usual age and identity types of information. For children born to military personnel the "Report of Birth Abroad of a Citizen of the U.S. (form FS-240), which is issued by the Department of State, is usually readily available for this purpose. For non-military circumstances the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) can issue a "Certificate of Citizenship" (form N-560). Other evidence such as a passport is also acceptable. Note that a face-to-face interview is needed if a person has never had a SSN. The SSN's of the parents must be included on the application to get a child under age 18 a SSN if one did not previously exist.

Q. Is it better to have my interview for retirement completed over the phone as opposed to going into the office?

A. Whichever you prefer is the correct choice. The majority of our local claim applications are completed by telephone appointment even if the person lives near our location and the telephone appointment option has been popular since its inception.

Q. How often do people getting disability benefits have their case reviewed?

A. This will vary depending on the nature of the disabling condition but everyone receiving disability is supposed to have their continuing entitlement to disability reviewed every one to seven years. Someone who is expected to show eventual recovery would be reviewed more rapidly than someone who is not.

Stumpf likes his PWC bill better than House version

"Two very different bills aimed at providing clearer regulations for personal watercraft (PWC) are moving through the state House and Senate, and I believe the Senate bill is better," states Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls.

One might say the senator is a little biased, since he is author of the Senate bill. On the other hand, he designed the bill to be much more moderate in its approach to PWC regulation than the House version.

"It is my goal to address tensions between PWC enthusiasts and other users of our state's lakes and rivers by improving the safety and education of PWC operators," Stumpf said. "The Senate bill has been called 'weaker' than the House bill, but this characterization is inaccurate. The House bill, beyond its safety and education components, would ban personal watercraft on more than 87 percent of Minnesota lakes. In fact, our Senate bill is stronger in some areas and it strikes a more reasonable balance among all groups wishing to share our state's abundant water resources."

Origin of the legislation is a 1996 legislative directive to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources establishing a Boating Advisory Panel to look at various boating safety issues. The panel included representatives from state and local law enforcement, among others.

"Because many personal watercraft problems arise from lack of experience, training or knowledge, it is appropriate that the emphasis of any new state laws should be placed on education of the users, not restriction of use," Sen. Stumpf said. "In addition, the Senate bill focuses on ensuring courtesy to and from all who enjoy recreational use of Minnesota's lakes. Our bill contains the recommendations of the Boating Advisory Panel, plus two additions addressing noise and safety concerns."

The senator said key parts of the Senate proposal would:

- Establish a $30 fee for each three-year period a personal watercraft is licensed, with the revenue going toward increased waterborne law enforcement;
- Extend the distance PWCs must maintain from shore, docks or swimming rafts to 150 feet;
- Limit the hours of PWC operation to no earlier than 9 a.m. and no later than one hour before sunset or 8 p.m., whichever is earlier;
- Require an operator's permit for 13 to 18-year-olds, with satisfactory attendance in a DNR-approved training class.

In researching solutions to noise concerns, the Senate received testimony from PWC manufacturers, including the only two American producers of PWCs—Polaris Industries and Arctic Cat, Inc.

"These manufacturers have already made considerable improvements to their machines to reduce noise, and one foreign manufacturer has recently been touting its quieter PWC as a selling point. Market pressures will ensure that all manufacturers continue to develop quieter machines.

"Personal watercraft manufacturers are also committed to being a major part of the solution to ensuring safer and more courteous personal watercraft usage," Stumpf added.

"The industry supports our bill, and continues to be an important part of the enforcement effort. Through an equipment loan program, Polaris and Arctic Cat have provided law enforcement with hundreds of personal watercraft to help enforce boating laws."

Stumpf said Minnesota has always prided itself on its lakes and the recreation they offer for our citizens. The lakes are public property, to be shared by all.

"Banning personal watercraft from the majority of our lakes because of the discourteous use of a small minority is not the answer," he said. "Strong enforcement of boating laws and increased education provide a fair solution and strike an equitable balance among all users of our state's lakes and rivers."

LHS mock trial team second to Fergus Falls

One more bridesmaid's role was the lot of the Lincoln high school mock trial team as it lost in the regional finals Tuesday, March 3, to another strong Fergus Falls team. Lincoln has reached the finals a number of times but has never managed to snag a state appearance.

Final score was Fergus Falls 192 and Thief River Falls 179. Prior to coming up against Lincoln, the Fergus Falls team had defeated its other four opponents in the regular season and tournament by an average of more than 25 points per trial.

Presiding judge Galen Vaa gave the edge to Fergus Falls 100 to 88, while scoring judge Steven J. Cahill saw the trial much closer and awarded Fergus Falls 92 points and Lincoln high school 91 points. And Lincoln, representing the prosecution, prevailed in the trial which is more favorable to the defense.

Teacher coach Cal Lindberg was disappointed with another championship loss but not with his team's performance. To the contrary, he said he was very pleased by the performance of all members of the team.

"We knew that this was the tougher side of the case to present, and it was only the second time in competition this year that we have presented this side," he said. "However, our team prepared extremely hard in the week prior to the trial and their hard work showed in all their performances.

"Our witnesses held up well to some tough cross examinations, and our lawyers were great at raising numerous objections and in delivering excellent opening and closing statements."

Lindberg said he and his team felt the trial was very close—as indicated by the score awarded by Judge Cahill, who has judged mock trials for five years—and consequently were disappointed by the other judge's point spread.

"But we also acknowledge that scoring trials is very subjective and it is often difficult for us to know exactly what judges are looking for," Lindberg added. "Both judges told the teams that they were 'superb' and that they performed better than many actual lawyers in real trials. They also indicated that this trial was the best high school competition they had ever judged.

"Although it is obviously tough to make it this far and be defeated, team members felt very good about their strong performances and, as always, represented their community in a very professional manner once again exhibiting good sportsmanship," he added.

Lindberg said he and the team again appreciated the support of parents who attended the trial and teacher coach Charlene Drenckhahn who brought her Warren team to watch the trial and support Thief River Falls. Some members of the Moorhead team, which Lincoln had competed against during the regular season, also showed up in support.

In representing the prosecution, Lincoln had Allen Bolar, Lesley Ihle and Paul Dehnert as attorneys, Nikolas Kotz, Rachel Greelis and Stephanie Wiseth as witnesses, Sara Rasmussen as timekeeper, Kristine Koop as bailiff and Marisa Holmstrom as video photographer.

Attorney coach for the team was Mike Jorgenson.

Nordics lose third place game

Marshall County Central fell to East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 61-56 Saturday in the Sub-Section 31A boys high school basketball tournament third place game at Crookston High School.

It was the end to a 12-13 season for the Nordics, who lost to Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 53-35 in the semifinals after opening post-season play with a 54-50 win over Goodridge.

Sacred Heart led at the quarter stops 12-11, 32-25 and 52-42. The Eagles led by as many as 13 points before the Nordics rallied.

It was a typical third place game, noted Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "It started out a little slow," he acknowledged. "We didn't have much intensity to start the game. But we picked up some momentum in the second half, and the fact that we came back to make a game of it was a positive for us. It would have been really disappointing if we would have packed it in when we fell behind and lost by 18 or so."

Ben Horken of the Eagles led all scorers with 20 points. He was joined in double figures by teammates Erick Neil with 16 points and Paul Sunar with 12.

David Wilcox scored 16 points to lead Marshall County Central, while Jon Donarski turned in a 14-point, 14-rebound game and Garrett Magner added three more assists to his school career record he set during the semifinal loss to Warren-Alvarado-Oslo.

Marshall County Central was 21-for-62 from the field (34 percent) and 11-for-15 at the free throw line. Sacred Heart went 21-for-55 from the floor (38 percent), which included 6-for-12 shooting from three-point range, and had a 13-for-28 free throw game. The Nordics had a 35-31 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 8-7.

Sauk Rapids winner in 8AAA girls finals

Sauk Rapids was a 58-52 winner over Alexandria Friday in the Section 8AAA girls high school basketball tournament finals at St. John's University.

The state tournament-qualifying match-up featured the winners from the North and South Sub-Section 8AAA playoffs.

Zach Olson of the Prowlers was accompanied by Thief River Falls boys head high school swimming coach Brian Olson at the 1997 Class A state meet held Friday and Saturday at the University of Minnesota Aquatic Center in Minneapolis. Olson qualified for state in both the 200 and 500 freestyle at the Section 4A meet a week earlier in Hibbing.

Zach Olson takes part in state meet

Zach Olson, representing Thief River Falls in the Class A portion of the first two-class Minnesota state high school boys state swim meet, was a consolation finalists in the 500-yard freestyle during the Friday/Saturday competition at the University of Minnesota Aquatic Center in Minneapolis.

Olson turned in a 5:14 83 to place 14th in the event in Saturday's finals. Top eight swimmers in Friday's prelims earned spots in the second-day championship finals, while the 9-through-16 prelim placers competed in the Saturday consolation finals.

Olson earned a state meet spot in both the 500 and 200-yard freestyle races during the Section 4A meet a week earlier in Hibbing. He wound up 18th in the 200 at state.

The post-season efforts by the Thief River Falls sophomore were close to his season-best times despite the fact that his preparation time for the meets was hindered by illness that kept him out of the pool for a week-and-a-half prior to the trip to Hibbing.

"Zach had a fantastic effort," reported Thief River Falls head coach Brian Olson. "It has to be one of the greatest comebacks I've ever seen. With the illness and the practice time missed, he could have very easily said, I can't do it, and thrown in the towel. But that's not his style. He never said a word. You're never going to hear an excuse from him."

The performance turned in by Zach Olson at less than full strength, has Brian Olson eagerly looking forward to the future. "Zach had a great season," said the coach. "He shouldn't have been able to go that fast after being sick like that. If he can have a time like that when he's sick, just think what he should be able to do when he's healthy."
